THE SUGAR MAPLE

Is a beautiful tree at all seasons, and no better variety can be used for Street, Park, or Lawn Planting, as its growth is rapid and straight, its form symmetrical, and it does not have the objectionable density of foliage possessed by the Norway Maples. For this reason it is well adapted for planting near buildings, as it does not obstruct light or air, and being deep rooted the grass will grow up to its very trunk, which is a very strong point in its favor. No tree has more gorgeous Autumn coloring, as it varies in all shades of yellow, orange and scarlet until the leaves finally fall. It was a sagacious popular instinct which selected this as one of our best trees for ornamental planting, and in some of the old places on the Hudson River long avenues were planted with it three quarters of a century ago, and they are now worth a long journey to see. We have an extra large stock of magnificent trees, many times transplanted, which we know offer at the following low prices:

NOTES BY THE WAY.

OMAHA.—Hess & Swobada report a very busy season, with stocks fine, plenty, and bringing good figures. Jubilee is a favorite among the several scarlet carnations.

S. J. Stewart was almost too busy to say howdy. The open weather has given the seed trade a boom that keeps all hands on the run.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—W. Krumm & Sons are remodeling their store to add to the attractiveness of the Easter display. They keep their place well supplied with seasonable stock. Business has been very satisfactory. J. N. Kidd speaks in a similar vein; his Daybreak carnations are the talk of this section.

L. J. Stuppy is an ardent disciple of Izak Walton, and has an invitation to try his luck in the fishing ponds of one of the prominent craftsmen of Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—R. S. Brown & Sons report one of the best seasons for several years. Should the demand continue it will be a record breaker.

Hunfeld Floral Co. are fortunate with some good lilies, which are none too plentiful with the most successful growers this season.

Sam'l Murray is strong in blooming stock for Easter—both pot grown and on the bench. His store will be very attractive when completed. Touching up is perfectly in order just now during the lull.

W. L. Rock reports heavy business in decorative and funeral work, and finds his handsome store just the thing for the times.

Arthur Newell keeps two stores running, and finds plenty to do.

LAFAYETTE, IND.—One of the most interesting sights at F. Dorner & Sons' establishment is the house fitted with sub-irrigating beds. It is an expensive but complete construction, built to stay—on brick piers, cement floor. Greater care is required in the manipulation of this house, which is used entirely for cuttings. At present it is filled with carnations, which are taken out in batches; many are transplanted into flats, to harden up before being sent out. Special orders are treated in this manner. The stock of cuttings is immense, and is going out at a lively rate. The houses of seedlings are at their best just now. One can be pardoned for waxing enthusiastic over the lovely collection, embracing almost every tint and color. But few also are of commercial value; for instance, of 181 seedlings of 1898, which year produced the best crop, about 50 will be given another trial, possibly reducing the list to a dozen or so really well-tried and satisfactory kinds, which will include a vivid scarlet with Jubilee blood in it, a clear yellow, a satiny white—its equal I have not yet seen. Another, a result from crossing Pingree and Bradt, is a lovely white, with the faintest pencilings of scarlet. Those mentioned are the cream of the assortment, and the most promising of the futures. I was much struck with a scarlet in its fourth year—not seat out under name. While not a large flower, it is perfect in form, freedom of flowering and color. The pistils are also scarlet. All looking for a scarlet for every-day use should give this one a trial. A shell pink is a candidate for honors, but Morning Glory shines above all. Daybreak looks as fine as ever here, but when compared with the newer kinds its lustre is dimmed. Glacier is the finest of the disseminated whites, and blooms free enough to be considered desirable for floral work. White Cloud is grown upon irrigated benches and on ordinary benches in Balsley's bottomless pots, and look about the same. A house of Crane is immense, although the plants have been cut closely for cuttings. To see this grand scarlet at home should encourage those who may not have been very successful with it this season to give it a further trial.

Roses are secondary here. Fred., Jr., is greatly in favor of grafted stock, but, not holding it over one season, claims heavier and earlier crops.

But when I saw the magnificent Kaiserin, Bride and Bridesmaid, grown on own roots by J. Newby & Son, when visiting their houses at Logansport shortly after, one-year-old stock at that, it is to my mind a vastly open question as to the advantage of grafted over own root, all things considered. Another house will be added shortly for the new white carnation Peru, which is doing even more satisfactorily than with its raiser, J. F. B. Tinker. This is a charming white, surpassing White Cloud or Flora Hill, embracing the floriferousness of the one with the earliness of the other, and overreaching either in size and strength. Messrs. Newby have a pink seedling named "Dream." It struck me as being a reality, as it is a lovely flower, and in its third season. Rose Maid of Honor is badly affected with mildew; the proportion of perfectly formed buds is almost nil. W. M.

THE "NOVELTY" OF NOVELTIES FOR 1900
A MAGNIFICENT HYBRID RESULTING FROM A CROSS OF ITALIA×MAD. CROZY

The Color is a rich shade of orange scarlet overlaid with gold, a superb coloring which in open sunlight is simply dazzling. The Form is an ideal of the Crozy type of bloom, the petals being very broad and overlapping, measuring 2½ to 3 inches wide, while the individual flowers are from 6 to 7 inches across. The Texture of the flowers is all that could be desired; they partake of the nature of the pollen parent or Crozy race in this respect, and withstand our hottest summer suns without wilting. The Foliage is a bright glossy green, equal to a Musa in size and substance and forms a beautiful foil to the gigantic trusses of bloom. The Height of the plant is 6 to 7 feet, the growth is luxuriant to a degree, but very compact; the massive foliage, giant trusses, and enormous individual flower, give the plant a noble tropical appearance. It is the Only Canna of its kind in existence, and absolutely surpasses all others its intrinsic value will make it a leading standard sort for years to come.

PRICES.—Strong roots, 35c each; $3.50 per dozen; $25.00 per hundred. Terms strictly cash with order, no exceptions. Stock limited; orders filled in strict rotation. Address,

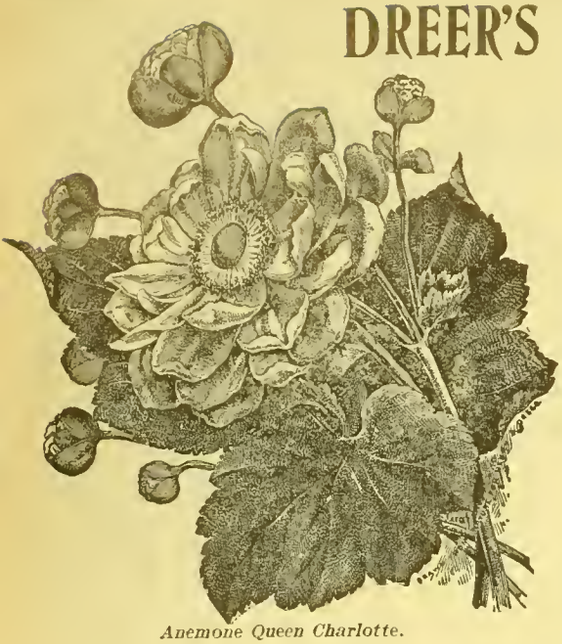
DREER'S SEASONABLE OFFER OF HARDY PERENNIALS



Anemone Queen Charlotte.

THE increased demand for this class of plants, not only by the amateur for the planting of private grounds but also for florists' use for cutting during the Summer and Fall months, has induced us to greatly increase our plantings of this stock. Our grounds at Riverton, N. J., being especially suited for the growing and quick development of most perennial plants, we are in a position to supply first-class stock at low prices.

Now is the time to decide on what you intend to do in this line the coming season. Hardy Nymphæs to give best results should be planted early. If you need any information as to what and how to plant our Mr. Tricker will be glad to offer practical suggestions.

Rudbeckia Purpurea.

HENRY A. DREER, 714 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Our Paris Letter.

The cold season is still with us. Trade in seeds in general is consequently slow, although plantings of stocks are commencing now.

Work in connection with the exhibition is advancing, and it is hoped that the opening will take place on April 15.

A Rose Congress will be held on June 13; Abel Chatenay, Vitry-sur-Seine, is secretary. There will also be an International Congress of Arboriculture and Pomology on September 13 and 14. In connection therewith two excursions for the members will be organized, one to Fontainebleau and Thomery—the latter place famous for its outdoor grape culture—the other to Versailles, our great horticultural center.

It is also said that the exhibition will close October 31, with a large show of chrysanthemums.

Some Novelties.

Below I give names and short descriptions of the principal new plants of this and last year, excepting stove plants, ferns and palms. These are but a small part of the new things sent out in this country, in vegetable, farm and flower seeds, there being also many sorts of new cabbages, lettuces, potatoes, beans, radishes, peas, etc., which would not interest American growers, as well as many new kinds of Zonal pelargoniums, fuchsias, chrysanthemums (some hundreds of varieties), heliotropes, petunias; also bulbous plants, such as dahlias (especially cactus sorts), cannas, gladioli —Lemoine's, gandavensis and nanceianus —montbretias, etc., and numerous trees, shrubs and roses.

In the farm and vegetable section may be mentioned two mangolds—Giant White Half-sugared Green Top and Giant White Half-sugared Red Top. These two sorts are remarkable for the regularity of their form, ovoid-elongated; are very large, possessing a single tap root. They are richer in sugar than the red and yellow sorts, and have been proved to resist the great heat and drought of last Summer.

Endive-Chicory Titmoise produces leaves which resemble those of the dandelion, but better furnished in the center, nearly as much as seen in Meaux endive; the roots are as large as those of Cichorium intybus. The variety is very easy to blanch.

Carica papaya—Mr. Chartier, an able gardener of Pierry Marne, says Le Jardin, has succeeded in obtaining fruit of this plant. It must be cultivated as the melon or cucumber is. This gentleman says it is a good acquisition.

Bean L' Inepuisable—This has been largely grown for several years. It comes from the Flageolet but is a distinct variety, producing flowers in pyramids at the head of each stem. It is very early and free flowering and keeps on producing young thin haricots two to three months. It is also good for forcing.

Everbearing Large Strawberries—Much is thought of the varieties of large everbearing strawberries, which appeared five or six years ago in San José and Louis Ganthier, followed soon after by Joan of Arc, La Constante Feconde, Leon XIII., Oregon, and, last year, by Saint Antoine de Padone, offered by Vilmorin, a cross between Saint Joseph and Royal Sovereign. The last named is a decided success. The most popular of this class to date is Saint Joseph, it being a good grower and giving crops of medium-sized fruits, beginning in June, and remaining outdoors till the first frosts. It is also a forcing variety.

Among annuals and outdoor flowers may be mentioned the following:

Amaranth Hybrid Brilliant—A variety of Amaranthus tricolor, obtaining a height of 5 feet on a single stem more or less ramified. From base to top this plant produces variegated red leaves, with numerous flowers of vivid carmine, yellow, etc. It is a magnificent variety and very decorative. Offered by Cayeux & Le Clerc.

Begonia Gracilis—A new begonia in the way of Versaillensis; color pure rose. Much esteemed for bedding outdoors.

Begonia Aigrette—This begonia, as announced by Le Jardin, was found among seedlings of Begonia semperflorens atropurpurea. The habit, foliage and dimensions are the same as in the latter variety, the female flowers being well and naturally formed; but all the male flowers abnormally so, and this anomaly is constant, the stamens having been supplanted by a bouquet of brilliant yellow pistils, forming a striking contrast to the red color of the petals and being very showy. Mr. Cappe, of Vesinet, the originator, has grown this plant for two years, outdoors, in Summer, and says that its flowers can be taken for those of calceolarias among begonias. The blooms keep well. This variety would be suitable for pot culture. As it is now well fixed and constant, it will be used largely in France for bedding outdoors in Summer.

Celosia cristata—This curious plant is intermediate between Celosia cristata and Celosia pyramidalis. The central stems expand as a cockscomb, the side branches forming plumes. It is of fine ruby color. The leaves, which are similar to those of Celosia salicifolia, are bronzed green, bordered with dark red. It is easily reproduced from seed. Offered by Rivoire & Son.

Helianthus cucumerÆfolius Orion is an improvement on the old sort, being larger and giving the appearance of a single cactus dahlia. Very good for cut flowers. Also offered by Rivoire.

Heracleum Mantsgazzianum is a plant which reaches a large development; very good for isolating on lawns. Specimens two and three years old are very ornamental, producing flower stalks 9 feet in height. The flowers are white. Offered by Cayeux & Le Clerc.

Hibiscus Manihot is a fine decorative plant, producing at the axils of the leaves very large flowers in the form of widened bells. Color is yellow, with light purple spots. The leaves resemble those of ricinus. Offered by Vilmorin.

Lathyrus pubescens—A climbing plant with glaucous green foliage, attaining a height of three to four yards; produces elegant trusses of blue flowers tinted with white and lilac. Good for countries having a moderate climate Also offered by Vilmorin.

Nicotiana sylvestris originated in Argentine, where it grows in some places naturally. Very decorative, with long white tubular flowers. Plants grown to a height of about 6 feet were much admired in isolated groups and large beds in our parks.

Polygonum Baldschunianum—A new climbing plant from Turkestan. Hardy in our Paris climate and very vigorous. The plant reaches a height of 6 yards in one year and produces a profusion of white flowers. Offered by Cayeux & Le Clerc.

Primula orconica (large flowered)—The different large seedsmen announce this year several new improvements of this popular plant, especially in the rose tones.

Salvia splendens aucubÆfolia—A variety with variegated foliage in the way of aucuba; leaves green variegated with sulphur or creamy yellow; flowers intense scarlet. Offered by Cayeux & Le Clerc.

Among perennial plants are: Arabis alpina flore-pleno, a new plant; very hardy and useful in Spring for ornamental beds and cut flowers. It keeps flowering outdoors from the end of March till July.

Anemone japonica Mont Rosa—A large flower, opening perfectly; pure rose, lightly lilac colored on the reverse. It is said to be the best obtained to date. Offered by Lemoine.

Astilbe Lemonei pyramidal—Flower stem reaches a height of about a yard. Color milky white, lightly tinted rose. The inflorescences are remarkable for their lightness owing to the divergence of the ramifications. Foliage elegant. This astilbe is hardy, having withstood the rigorous frost in March, 1899, without hurt. Obtained by Lemoine.

Violet La France is the largest flowered variety we have; its color is blue violet with metallic sheen; the petals are very ample and round. The leaves also are solid, dark green, finely dented. This violet is exceedingly vigorous.

Messrs. Rivoire exhibited last Autumn a dahlia named Mme. Réiné Gerard, which seems to be a new departure in dahlias. The white checks which are streaked on the red—main color—of the flower produce a moire effect with particular brightness. This section of dahlias, to be named Dahlia Moire, will, I think, create some surprise. The term "moire" has been chosen on account of the characteristics of the color of the flower.

Porlia pratensis—A new bulbous plant, approaching to and must be grown same as tigridias. The flower stalks attain a height of about one foot and a half, and produce flowers 2 inches in size. Color is a celestial blue, with yellow and white center. The flowers, like those of the tigridia, are of short duration, but come in succession throughout the Summer.

Three new Clematis viticella are announced, named Crateri, Purpurea alba, Purpurea plena elegans; also a hybrid clematis (Ville de Lyon), a cross between Clematis Viviand-Morel and C. coccinea, with medium-sized flowers; color carmine and crimson.

Deutzia Hybrida Lemoinei Boule de Neige (Snowball) is an improvement on Deutzia hybrida Lemoinei, producing globular inflorescences of creamy white flowers, stamens and discs clear yellow; flowers larger than in the parent. Lemoine.

Two New Weigelas—Bouquet rose, large flower; color satiny rose with throat marbled very pale yellow. Flowered outdoors on May 5 last. Fleur de Mai (Mayflower), with numerous serrate flowers, exterior color purple, rose marbled, interior light salmon rose; buds clear purple.

Raspberry Marvel of all Seasons—This raspberry described in Le Jardin is from Red Marvel of All Seasons, and was obtained by Mr. Congy at Ferrieres. It is exceedingly free and strong, giving a crop of excellent fruit on old wood in season, and on the young branches in Autumn. It is not rare to see 200 fruits on the four or five branchlets on a single plant.

Vegetables Under Glass.

Fungous diseases common to cucumbers, lettuce and tomatoes under glass were considered by Professor G. E. Stone, of the Hatch Experimental Station at Amherst, before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society recently. He said in part:

We shall take up first the subject of cucumbers. These are extensively grown in our State and require a temperature from 65 to 85 degrees Fahr. They are not especially sensitive to mechanical conditions of the soil, neither do they respond very quickly to fertilizer. A good soil for cucumbers is one made of decomposed sod and horse manure. This makes a light, pliable soil. They require all the light possible under glass, especially between the months of November and March, a matter which is too little understood by those growing cucumbers. Some of the so-called diseases can be traced directly to the lack of light in the house. This is especially true where growers have resorted to the practice of using two layers of glass in their houses. The plants under such conditions become yellow; they cannot assimilate the carbon dioxide from the air properly, as the light is largely excluded by the two layers of glass and the usual two accompanying layers of dirt. Frequently under these conditions they behave like plants grown in the dark, their stems become weak and slender and they are rendered more susceptible to disease. When raised under these conditions and exposed to the bright sun of Spring they wilt badly and the foliage becomes quite useless to the plant, as a result of which many cucumbers are stunted, and owing to the lack of assimilation due to the paucity of green foliage the cucumbers grow stubby and bring a low price.

There are ten fungous diseases peculiar to the cucumber. Some of these are of rare occurrence and only show themselves when something is radically wrong with the crop. There are others, however, that are more or less universal and require consideration. Among these may be mentioned the damping fungous which attacks seedlings, the powdery mildew, stem rot, the anthracnose and the wilt. The wilt is peculiar to outdoor cucumbers. This is caused by bacteria, which plug up the vessels, thus interfering with the water supply. This has not been seen on indoor cucumbers in Massachusetts. The powdery mildew is more or less common and can be controlled by attention to moisture conditions and light. It is seldom found on vigorous plants of good texture. The damping fungus is troublesome to young cucumbers, and can be prevented by sterilizing the soil. The anthracnose would seem to be caused by too great a difference between the day and night temperature. On this account it is far more common in the Spring in greenhouses when the fires go out.

Besides fungous diseases there are two or three troublesome pests which belong to the animal kingdom, known as aphis and thrips, both of which are controlled by tobacco; and nematodes, which give rise to galls on the roots and can be controlled by the application of heat or by thorough desiccation of the soil.

Tomatoes require similar temperature and moisture conditions to those of the cucumber. There are some 12 fungous diseases recorded for tomatoes, but the fruit rot and mildew are the most troublesome diseases of these parts. These can be controlled by spraying. They, also, like the cucumbers, are subject to nematodes, and the same method of treatment applies to both.

The lettuce is the most difficult of the three plants enumerated to grow under glass, and no finer examples of skill in lettuce growing can be seen anywhere in the world than in the neighborhood of Boston. The coast soil in the first place is especially adapted to lettuce growing, whereas that in the interior of Massachusetts is not so well adapted, on account of containing a larger percentage of clay and a less amount of coarse material. There are several fungous diseases listed for the lettuce. Among the more important ones are the mildew, top-burn, the drop and the rhizortonia. At the Hatch Experiment Station, Amherst, especial attention has been paid to the diseases of lettuce, and, as in most instances, where we have generally supposed there is a certain abnormal condition brought about by a single disease, we have found a number of distinct ones which frequently require distinct methods of treatment. The most troublesome disease, however, is what is known as the drop. This is caused by a fungus which ramifies through the soil but does not propagate by spores. This disease causes enormous losses in our state. Some houses almost entirely succumb to it, whereas many other growers have from 25 to 50 per cent. of the disease in their houses. It has been found that the best method of treating this disease is by the use of heat or sterilization of the soil. Numerous experiments with gas and chemicals have shown but the slightest efficiency in controlling this. Various methods are being tried to control this disease, one of which consists in covering the soil with a layer of about one inch of sterilized soil. This succeeds in greatly reducing the loss. Two inches of sterilized soil is far superior to one, but the only absolute method known yet is to completely sterilize the soil in the house, or at least to heat it up to about 200 degrees Fahr. This is done by placing 2-inch tile in the soil about one foot deep and passing steam through them. With a large high pressure boiler enormous quantities of soil can be heated up in a very short time to the requisite temperature. Plants grown in such soil are greatly accelerated, on account of the effect of the heat on the humus compounds. When this disease, moreover, is once eradicated, care being taken to prevent the inoculation from refuse heaps, there appears to be no reason why the disease cannot be kept out of the house indefinitely. The same method of treatment would appear to apply to some of the other fungous diseases which do not propagate by spores.

Trade Items.

Business is good with enough stock to fill orders. Easter trade will be all we can desire. Bulbous stock will be plentiful; one firm, George & Allan, will have 150,000 bulbs in for Easter. Their two houses of Beauty are extra fine, but the Easter cut will be small. Two houses of Bride and Bridesmaid will be in, but Meteor will be a scarce article.

Max Rudolph is building a new range of glass at College Hill, consisting of four houses, each 125x22 feet. He will also erect a residence at the same place.

The minstrel show given by the Beechwood Band (the Florists' Band) was a howling success, and the treasury was nicely replenished.

Rochester, N. Y.

A prominent Rochester florist recently received a good-sized retail cash order for carnations from a resident of Buffalo. It cannot be there is a scarcity there as it was incidentally remarked in the order, "Carnations are 25c. a dozen in Buffalo."

On the 16th calls were made at several greenhouses. At every one slight traces were found of the recent big storm or the sudden cold wave preceding it. Chas. Suhr had a boiler give out and was obliged to lay down and cover a house of asparagus while repairs were being made. Other houses were injured, but little stock was killed outright. The temporary inconvenience is past; the real damage is now showing in retarded growth.

The old White farm, on the Thurston Road, was bought early in the Winter from the estate of the late Dr. Thos. White, by Russel K. Smith, a market gardener from the Ridge Road. At present Mr. Smith is using only one of the greenhouses—for vegetables—but will fill more of them later. He intends overhauling the houses the coming Summer and putting them in shape for vegetables and carnations next Winter.

A mile east, along the ridge of which Mount Hope and the Pinnacle are prominent heights, brought us to E. R. Fry's new place, probably the highest point in the city on the west side. The houses are nearly at right angles to the bluff, and are so situated that the light cannot be obstructed in any direction. The location favored an arrangement of heating apparatus that insures perfect work. The houses drop toward the bluff, so that gutters and heating pipes are parallel with the benches; and the floor of the boiler room is 20 feet below the level of the farthest point in the hot-water pipes. The houses are now full of Easter plants, which Jas. Bishop has brought along in fine shape. A few hybrid roses in pots and a fine lot of spiræa were particularly noticed.

Across the river, at Wm. H. King's, the land is really too valuable for greenhouses, and will soon be used for other purposes. Meanwhile, Mr. King continues to grow a nice general assortment suitable for his retail trade. An immense orange tree, now loaded with buds, and a plant of Niphetos rose that fills one end of a house, seem like relics of a past age in floriculture.

Farther out, Mount Hope avenue, we found Geo. J. Keller trying to devise means to pot on 10,000 fine geraniums without sacrificing anything that would be valuable at Easter. Every inch of space was crowded with well-grown stock. An unusually fine bench of mignonette and several hundred pots of Primula obconica attracted especial attention. Having an outlet for both the cut flowers and plants, Mr. Keller has found the improved strains of Primula obconica quite satisactory and not difficult to handle.

Opposite the farther entrance to Mount Hope we glanced through the new houses of Geo. Crook & Co. The houses are light, modern and well built, and filled with an assortment of plants suitable for cemetery work. All was clean and thrifty. A very broad center walk seemed like an expensive luxury at this season, though it will no doubt be a great convenience in handling the Saturday and Sunday rush of customers two months hence.

Turning cityward we stopped a few minutes at J. B. Keller's Sons, on South avenue. Within the month since my last call a big lot of plants had gone to the store; bulbous stock had about disappeared and Easter and bedding stock was coming to the fore. Two houses are given over to a fine collection of palms; and at this season the propagating work incident to the extensive collection of herbaceous plants grown here occupies considerable space.

Later in the day, taking the Charlotte car to the Stone Road, a short walk brought us to Frank S. Payne's, where we saw three of the neatest houses it was ever our good fortune to visit. They are modern in construction and the stock was all remarkably clean and healthy, while the neat and orderly arrangement was most admirable. A center bench of geraniums, hedged in by luxuriant vincas along the walks, looked like a miniature lawn. Mr. Payne grows a stock of bedding and other plants for the wholesale trade, including an extensive collection of verbenas. He had just pulled out the last carnation plants to give needed room. He has 10,000 pansy plants in frames that were in bloom before Christmas. A large acreage is given, in season, to dahlias and branching asters.

At Barnard Crossing Mr. Hill escorted us through the 11 houses of the Vick & Hill Co. A very clean, thrifty lot of stock was the unanimous verdict of the visitors. The last carnation plants had gone out two days before, but, as elsewhere, "more room" was wanted. Severe weather is delaying mail-order plant trade somewhat, still, Fred. Vick was sending out a goodly load. Thirty thousand thrifty young rose plants in one house made a pretty sight, which was eclipsed in the next by a hundred plants of Magna Charta, clean and well set with bloom.

Leaving the central at Otis Station we called on Jos. Pridmore, Lyell avenue, finding him busily engaged with customers. Some designs just going out here out Mr. Pridmore's enviable reputation for skill and taste in this line. He has a large and well-established retail trade built up by 16 years of courtesy and fair dealing. Mr. Pridmore was the first grower we had met who had a good word for Primula Forbesi. Grown in heavy soil he had found it very satisfactory and useful in design work. A few pots in lighter soil were not so good.

HEADQUARTERS FOR EASTER PLANTS

Blooming Easter week!
Time is money! Lose no time! Order your supply now!

I have an immense stock of the choicest in the market. You would be astonished it you could have a peep into seven large greenhouses which are crammed full, and devoted to the cultivation of Easter plants alone, and therefore I will be prepared to fill all orders, if ordered in time, as far as the supply will reach.

AZALEA INDICA I am a very large importer of this choice Easter plant. I have erected two new houses, 20x100, for the cultivation of them alone. These Azaleas were selected by myself last fall, on my trip to Ghent (Belgium), and as I am Agent for a large concern in Belgium, it gives you a chance to buy your goods first hand and not through middleman.

I can offer you plants in bloom or in buds, blooming Easter week, 6 inch pots, 75c., and some for $1.00. Most of them are Mme. Vander Cruysen, and some other choice varieties, which will be selected by myself.

SPIRÆA, Compacta and Floribunda, fine bushy plants, my own importation, a perfect gem, 6 inch pots, $3.00 per doz.
Specimen Plants, $4.00 per doz.

CINERARIA Hybrida, choice colors, 6 inch pots, $2.50 to $3.00 per doz. In bloom now or at Easter. I have a house full of them.

Chrysanthemums.

Paper read before the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, March 29, 1900 by Jas. T. Scott, House of Refuge, Randall's Island, New York.

In dealing with the chrysanthemum in a paper such as this society looks for, it is utterly impossible to give the subject justice, or even portray an adequate idea of the salient points. If my remarks then appear superficial I crave your generous indulgence, and trust you will fully take into consideration the magnitude and scope of the subject in hand. I do not intend to dwell upon the geographical distribution of the chrysanthemum, or to discuss its history; suffice it to say, that the progenitors of the present race have been known to us for upward of one hundred years, during which time their popularity has fluctuated according to the whims and fashions of society. They probably reached the zenith of their glory ten years ago, when the gardening fraternity and society in general were crazy-anthe-mum on the brain, and since that time many and varied have been the speculations as to how long this popularity could be sustained; yet to-day the looked-for reaction has not taken place. And though we are not annually flooded by a host of new and doubtful creations, yet the evolution goes on, and now (thanks to our Chrysanthemum Society) while we have fewer novelties we have better quality.

"How long will the chrysanthemum retain its popularity?" is a question daily asked by professional and amateur alike, and it seems to me that the old adage, "Nothing dies, 'tis only superseded," answers the inquiry. The chrysanthemum comes in all her glory just at a time when nature is laying waste the landscape. The Summer is practically sustained indoors, and up to the present time there seems to be nothing in the horticultural horizon that is likely to supersede the Queen of Autumn, at that particular time.

In considering the chrysanthemum it would be well for us to carry our fancies back to the Autumn, to the time of the flower's perfection. This is the particular season that the chrysanthemum student balances his notes, compares theories with results or vice versa, stores up for himself new ideas, rearranges his next year's lists and culls out the weaklings. The survival of the fittest is inevitable. There is no use growing a host of synonyms. Better grow, say, two or three dozen of one or two varieties, than have 50 to 100 varieties with the half of them poor. The Autumn is a good time for the beginner to arm himself with a note book. If he be alert he will find enough at one or two chrysanthemum exhibitions to supply the necessary information regarding varieties. The old hand ought to know the capacity of his place, know at this time the number of plants he will grow again; and while the actual demonstration is before his eyes he ought to make a memorandum of the number of each variety that he intends to grow next year.

I once heard a gardener say, "That the man who introduced the chrysanthemum ought to be stoned," for he said, "They are a whole year's trouble." We do not all think with that poor mortal, yet his remark suggests a truth, i. e., that we must give to them a whole year's care. Do not get disgusted when you have cut your flowers; think of the old stools and your next year's stock. Keep your old plants in a cool place and give them plenty of light. By a cool place, I do not mean to put them in cold storage, or a place that is continually below the freezing point, although five or six degrees of frost occasionally will do them no harm—but a dormant grapery, a peach house, or violet house—any place where the temperature averages from 40 to 32 degrees. Give them an occasional hosing overhead, and do not let them suffer for want of water.

For cuttings use medium wood. Very thick, pithy wood is not always satisfactory; and by no means use weak, spindly material. Chrysanthemums root readily in the ordinary propagating bed, or in small pots. Propagation may commence in January and continue on till May, according to the system of culture to be practiced. January, and even earlier, is a good time to propagate for bush plants, but for bench culture May is time enough. There are many opinions as to the best time to propagate the general collection. I have tried (and have seen tried) several dates, but all through would recommend the latter part of March or the beginning of April.

When well rooted the young plants may be potted in 2½-inch pots, in a moderately heavy soil, not too rich, and placed on the side benches of a violet or carnation house, or any place in fact where they are near the glass, get plenty of air, and are kept at a moderate temperature. I have found it a good plan about the month April, after the first and second pottiag, to put the young plants in a cold frame (being always careful to exclude frost); but give abundance of air all day, and, when the nights grow warmer, at night also. I have also found it good to have about 2 inches of fresh horse manure put in the bottom of the frames and about 2 inches of coal ashes on the top of it. This insures good drainage; and the little ammonia arising from the manure gives the leaves a healthy, green color.

The main point at this time, however, is not to rush growth, either by feeding or high temperature. Keep your plants stubby and short.

About the middle or first week of May we always make a point of cutting back the general collection. In doing this never make a rule of cutting so many inches from the pot. It is never advisable to cut back to hard wood; if this be done the plants usually break weak. The points you cut off, if put in the sand bed, make excellent material for benches.

After cutting back the plant will not require so much water for a few days, so be sure and pay particular attention to this. If the plants are syringed overhead in the afternoon, and the frame kept somewhat closer, the breaking away will be considerably helped. Each plant will break away, making perhaps four to six shoots, and now is the time to determine how many flowers are to be grown upon each plant. I leave the commercial man to answer this for himself; he knows the quality that suits his trade best, and the price he is likely to receive, but for private gardeners, where competition or a home display is aimed at, I should advise only two shoots to a 7 or 8-inch pot, and one for a 6-inch pot.

Now as to the final potting: I believe that more depends upon the physical nature of the soil than upon anything else. Many believe in adding, so many bones, so much fish manure or guano, and so on. This is all rubbish; see to your soil's friability or tenacity first, then look after the chemical constituents. Chrysanthemums require a moderately heavy soil, and great judgment must be exercised.

In preparing a compost get at it early. The Fall of the year is the ideal time, but if not done get at it right away. It is perhaps superfluous to say, get your turf from as old a pasture as you have at hand. If your turf be of a heavy clay nature, do as follows: Lay down one layer of turf, grassy side under, spread on that a small quantity of horse manure, some bone meal and a few handfuls of air-slacked lime. If your turf be of a gritty or sandy nature use cow manure, say one part manure to five or six of turf; add some bone meal and a very little lime. Conjure up in your mind's eye an ideal soil, i. e., physically, and if you cannot get it ready-made endeavor by every means to make it.

After such a compost has laid for two or three months it ought to be ready for use. Commence at one end and cut down the pile with a sharp spade, but by no means make it too fine. The idea of sifting soil for potting purposes is too old-fashioned to need condemnation, but let me emphasize the fact that roots need air, or, in other words, oxygen, in large quantities. When a soil is too fine it is impossible for such to permeate freely. The old-fashioned idea of adding leaf mould to all composts so far counteracted this evil; but leaf mould is unnecessary, provided your compost be rightly constituted.

The plants ought to be ready for their final shift about the end of May or beginning of June. Drain your pots well and ram the soil firm; it is important that chrysanthemums be firmly potted, otherwise the growth will be soft and pithy. Large pots are an encumbrance and unnecessary; 8-inch pots are big enough for exhibition blooms, done as I have stated, and 6-inch pots grown to single stem and bloom usually give excellent results.

IN all of our long experience we have never had a Carnation produce as many first-class, high-grade blooms to the square foot as Genevieve Lord. It blooms early and the year round. Its color is just right; "beautiful," "lovely," "exquisite," "perfectly charming," are some of the adjectives used by some of our lady customers in describing it. With all its good productiveness, size is a leading feature, large enough to put it away up front. Its grand stem is perhaps its crowning feature. What is a flower without a stem? Genevieve Lord stands up straight twelve months in the year. When you think of all this, and a con-bursting calyx thrown in for good measure, there is little left to be desired. We are pleased to announce that we can fill orders promptly after April 10th, but do not know how long we can promise this, as stock is going rapidly. To clinch matters and drive a good bargain, order at once.

Price, doz., $2.00; 100, $10.00; 1000, $75.00.

Can also furnish all of the big new ones at Introducers' prices, as well as the best standard varieties.

In the hurry of getting our Special Edition to press, some errors crept in.

In advertisement of Stumpp & Walter Co., page 11, bone dust and sheep manure, should read in 2 lb. boxes, instead of in No. 2 boxes, and the price of Storm King dahlias should be $20.00 per 100, not per 1000.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., register Cattleya Trianæ "Aurantiaca." Flowers very large, sepals and petals white, slightly suffused with palest lilac; lower part of petals thrown forward, upper parts gracefully reflexed; lower part of lip whitish lilac superposed by a large wedge-shaped blotch of very bright orange.

Cattleya Trianæ "Fairy Queen." Flowers of medium size, well balanced in all parts; sepals and petals pure white, the latter being slightly reflexed. Upper part or tube of lip white, the lower part light lilac extending to the edges.

Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., register seedling canna "The Express" (Philadelphia × Gloriosa). Flowers bright crimson, large green foliage; height 2½ feet.

WM. J. STEWART, Secretary.

Easter Styles.

There is little, if anything, new in Easter offerings this year, either in the way of plants, or in baskets and pot-covers to put them in. Celluloid pot-covers seem to have given place entirely to those made of wicker-work, and the latter prevail in all shades of color. For pots of violets the purple colored ones only should be used. For Erica melanthera there are several shades that are suitable, the flowers and foliage being so delicate that a pot-cover of gilded wicker-work is all right, or a light green or a pure white one may be employed. For hydrangeas the natural straw-colored basket pot holder is the most appropriate; if any other color be used it should be of a very light green.

For azaleas crepe paper is certainly the best. This can be had in any shade or tone wanted, and care should be taken that only those that blend properly with the subjects be used. Ribbon also is permissible with azaleas, as they are such a mass of bloom, a little break in the color adds to their beauty, though gauze ribbon is the best for this purpose. White varieties will allow of both crepe paper and ribbon of a decided pink, but deeper colored ribbon than that should hardly be used. For such kinds as Mme. Van der Cruyssen white paper for the pot and a delicate pink bow among the foliage is the very best combination, and nothing darker should be employed. The deeper rose colored and red varieties are more often spoiled in effect than otherwise, by having ribbon of inharmonious color affixed to them. If in selecting colors to match the flowers we went on the general principle of using lighter shades of the same color for the pink, pink and white variegated, rose and white, or any of the kinds that had white in the flowers, and darker shades of the same color for the scarlet, red and others that show no white in the flower, we should not see so many ugly monstrosities sent out at Easter as works of art.

For the Rambler roses there is no better way to fix them up than to cover the pot with green crepe paper and overlaying the soil with live moss, using green ribbon for tying among the foliage. The width of the ribbon must depend altogether upon the size of the plant. A very wide bow on a small plant is just as much out of place as a small and narrow one would be on a plant 5 feet in height.

Four or five lilies planted together in a wooden tub make one of the choicest of Easter offerings, and, if the tubs are painted nicely—white is the best—and the surface of the soil covered evenly with live moss, ribbons or other accessories are unnecessary. To employ baby ribbon, as is sometimes done, among the blossoms of the noble lily detracts from the flower's beauty, and, moreover, is a waste of material.

With pans of hyacinths, tulips and lily of the valley no elaborate trimming can be done, nor is any needed—simply hide the pan with crepe paper held in place by a narrow white or delicate colored ribbon, excepting, perhaps, where the pan is filled with yellow tulips, when a ribbon of the same shade may be used.

Acacia and cytisus plants should have a wicker pot-cover of a green color; and the ribbon used among the branches should be yellow colored.

Palms, araucarias, dracænas and any decorative plants that are not simply intended for Easter, but are bought for the purpose of house decoration indefinitely, should not have the pots hidden by a flimsy paper cover, but should be put in one of the wicker ones, or, what would be better than either, persuade the purchasers of these plants to take a nice jardiniere.

For more elaborate gifts zinc-lined baskets are the most desirable. These may be had in any required size, and every florist ought to have a collection of them, as they are now made more rustic and natural in appearance than formerly; aside from a spray of some vine or other over the handle no trimming is required.

The August Exhibition.

The schedule of premiums for the horticultural exhibition to be held at the Grand Central Palace during the convention of the S. A. F. O. H., under the auspices of the New York Florists' Club, August 21-24 inclusive, has been issued. The list comprises 36 classes in plants, 8 in cut flowers, 6 in fruit and 7 in vegetables, besides a few miscellaneous, the latter embracing a flower-garden design, a group of ornamental evergreen trees and shrubs, in pots or tubs, etc. The classes for plants provide for groups of foliage plants, groups of flowering plants, ferns, palms, stove and greenhouse plants, dracænas, crotons, caladiums, nepenthes, orchids, new and rare plants, lycopodiums, Asparagus Sprengeri, Acalypha Sanderi, geraniums, rex begonias, gloxinias and cannas.

The flower classes make provision for hardy and half-hardy annuals, hardy perennials and bulbous plants, gladioli, cannas and asters.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

THE FARMSTEAD. By Professor I. P. Roberts, Cornell University. Publishers The Macmillan Company, 66 Fifth avenue, New York.—Though intended more for the farmer proper, yet the many things that all who till the soil have in common, and which are treated upon in the work before us, make a perusal of it equally interesting to the horticulturist as well. The aim of the author has been to furnish advice, which, if heeded and followed, will make the life of the farmer really worth living. Excellent hints as to selection of a location for the dwelling house, the interior furnishings; plans for barns and other outbuildings are provided, and much useful information on the subject of farm life generally and its environments vouchsafed, the whole being presented in a most entertaining manner. The price of the book is $1.25. It is for sale by the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE.

THE AMATEUR'S PRACTICAL GARDEN BOOK. By C. E. Hunn and L. H. Bailey. Publishers The Macmillan Co., Fifth avenue, New York. Cloth, price $1.—This is still another of the Garden Craft series, and contains "the simplest directions for the growing of the commonest things about the house and garden." The subjects treated upon are arranged alphabetically. The authors have furnished nothing new, the aim being to provide answers to the many questions on gardening matters that are asked every year. Many of the illustrations in the book are neither ornamental nor helpful, and the writers even presuppose a complete ignorance of the commonest gardening utensils, supplying pictures of a spade, a shovel, a rake, etc.

Our Prize Competitions.

The attention of our readers is called to the following competitions inaugurated by the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE, and which we hope will receive cordial support from our subscribers:

Commercial Home Grounds Competition: page 336, issue of March 31.

Prize Photographic Competition: page 341, issue of March 31. We have reprinted Mr. L. V. Hallock's paper on Practical Photography for Florists, together with all particulars concerning the contest now under way, and will send same free to any subscriber on application.

Judging Carnations.

Editor Florists' Exchange.

In some quarters there seems to be an inclination to laugh at and ridicule the present method of awarding certificates of merit to new carnations that are candidates for that honor. Some assert that our judgment is based on comparison and that a scale of points is useless. As one who has had the honor to be on the committee to award or withhold certificates for the past four years, I must acknowledge that it is by comparison that we score a given flower a certain number of points, and I cannot conceive how we could ever arrive at any just or reasonable conclusion without the scale of points. My colleagues, one of whom has been associated with me for four years, may have a different view of the subject; but in practice we entirely agree.

I must pause a moment to say that if you placed the new comers of to-day before a committee who had not seen any of the late varieties, and their experience was then confined to such kinds as Silver Spray, Portia, Grace Wilder or Garfield, then they would be so amazed and delighted with the grandeur of Enquirer, The Marquis, Estelle, or Mrs. Lawson, that they could not possibly see a fault in them, and would be glad to call them perfection. Men of such limited knowledge hardly exist, much less are they elected judges. The standard of quality, or the several qualities, has been gradually going higher and higher. While we have no fixed standard of qualities, nor is it possible we ever shall, such as the stem being a certain length and thickness, the flower so much in diameter, or the calyx so much in size, or a certain number of petals, yet we know where the present highest qualities have been reached in several flowers—not all in one flower by any means; but several varieties have some quality that is developed higher than others; and the very best we take as our present standard of perfection. We have not yet seen the carnation that possessed all these highly developed qualities in one variety.

When judging or scoring a flower the stem, form, color, size, substance, etc., are compared with the highest respective quality possessed by some other flower; and when the ones being judged fall short in that quality, which we know exists in another variety, points are deducted according to the deficiency. Without these definite points I cannot see how it would be possible to come to any conclusion. Without the scale of points one judge would say: "Well, I tell you that's a mighty fine flower; that deserves a certificate." Another judge would say: "I don't agree with you. I see several faults about that flower." Then there is an argument, and both will argue on general principles, with no grounds on which to base their reasons.

Without going into other proposed methods of judging, the present seems to me entirely satisfactory; and as long as men are appointed judges who have watched the development, and are acquainted with the leading varieties of carnations, it will continue to be satisfactory to the exhibitors and a guide to the intending purchaser. I have heard of no dissatisfied parties this season.

Perhaps not more than one-third of the aspirants for certificates gain them. The leading growers know pretty well when they see their flowers on the table whether they are going to score the desired points; and less prominent growers can plainly see if they are unsuccessful, why they failed, and how good an all-round flower it now takes to score the requisite 85 points.

The evolution of the carnation during the past 15 years has been wonderful; but not more so than in other plants and animals, where such a thorough system of selection and breeding has been pursued; and cultivation has done much. The human family comprises about the only animals on earth whose perpetuation is left to a perfectly haphazard system, or no system at all; and its a wonder with the tender care that is given to the halt, the lame, and blind, the cripple, and criminal, that man is physically as good as he is to-day. If he is improving physically and morally (we sincerely trust he is) it is due entirely to cultivation, and not in the slightest degree to the great law that produces our carnations or apples, pug dogs or race horses.

Without in any way wishing to criticize our amiable secretary, Mr. Herr, I would beg to say that a great improvement could be made in entry books, so that the judges may know what they have to judge. The books and system followed at any ordinary flower show would be a guide. As it is, the two sets of judges are now turned loose in the hall without a memorandum of any kind whatever. No wonder the three men at Buffalo who judged the competitions made no report. They had nothing to report. They took up a ticket and wrote on, first, second or third, as the case may be; but they could not report it, for they had no entry. In the entries for certificates a few cards could be supplied the judges, ruled with the several qualities and number of points for each; then the judges could hand in a full and correct report of merit each variety scored. And it would be a record for the secretary to publish and file away. Above all, the judges should have a book, with the entries and their number, which should correspond to the number on the exhibit.

I have no wish to increase expenses or entail work on the secretary, but what I have mentioned is most simple and highly essential. And now that entries are to cease definitely a few days before the exhibition they can be entered in a small book and handed to the judges with ease, which will make more satisfactory work all round

I feel, Mr. Editor, that I have said nothing new on this subject. The venerable Mr. Graham or the classical Rudd could give you brighter ideas. I see nothing but what is very simple in the whole matter, and, as I have before said, the present system is highly satisfactory. If I had the good fortune to raise a carnation of great excellence, there would be nothing I should strive for so quickly and eagerly as the certificate of the American Carnation Society. As a guarantee of its high qualities the certificate is even more lasting than the alleged $30,000 sale.

As the member from Spokane said, "Them's my sentiments."

WM. SCOTT.

Our Carnations as Others See Them.

Editor Florists' Exchange.

In the last issue of your contemporary, American Gardening, I see Mr. Richard Dean returns to the above subject, not however, to discuss it on its merits, but having dipped his pen in some corrosive or sulphuric fluid proceeds to express himself in vituperative abuse that ill becomes a Victorian Medalist of Horticulture, which honor, I thought could only have been accorded to broad-minded men, whose utterances would command respect. I have no desire to emulate him in this, but since he has referred to my past writing in the Garden I will make reference to chapter and verse. If any readers have access to back volumes of the Garden they can refer to Volume 34, page 242, where they will find Mr. R. Dean in a "white heat of indignation" regarding statements of mine that were just as true as those I made in regard to carnation Olympia.

If Mr. Dean's faculty for reasoning is so obtuse that he could not perceive why the exhibitor made the statement that the carnation in question was only grown in four inches of soil, I must decline the laborious task of enlightening him, for it was certainly not made as an apologetic excuse; but there is no need to quibble as to the interpretation placed upon the statement made, for we have it stated as plainly as Mr. Dean could express himself, that the depth of soil was responsible for the shortcomings of the flower, and he reiterates this statement in his latest communication when he says: "There can be no doubt about it that to the method of culture adopted in the case of the plants brought to the meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society was attributable this fact."

Now the fallacy of this assertion is pointed out Mr. Dean would have the exhibitor held partly responsible for the absurd statement; which, followed to a logical conclusion, implies that any carnation can be improved in a direct ratio with the depth of soil given.

In most controversies there is room for substantial difference of opinion, but that Olympia can be improved by being grown in any greater depth of soil than is given it at Summit will not be conceded; and I fancy Mr. Dean will have some difficulty in getting others to indorse his opinion.

Madison, N. J. A. HERRINGTON.

Firms Who Are Building.

CHATHAM, N. J.—J. T. Wagner expects to build this Spring.

CARMEL, ME.—Ernest Harvey will build a greenhouse shortly.

HOMER, N. Y.—During the coming season J. J. Arnold expects to build two carnation houses to meet his growing trade.

CHANGES IN BUSINESS.

KINGSTON, ONT.—D. G. Johnson will shortly take possession of his new place of business.

CHICAGO.—The Boulevard Floral Co. has opened a place of business at 907 Garfield Boulevard.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—W. H. Manly has bought the Williamson greenhouses, and will enlarge them.

KINGSTON, N. Y.—John McVey, Broadway, owing to increasing business, will remove from his present location in the Mansion House block, to No. 37 Broadway, in the Kennedy row, on or about April 1.

FIRES.

DES MOINES, IA.—J. W. Lozier's flower store, at 408 East Sixth street, was completely destroyed by fire March 26. The loss on stock and fixtures was $1,500, and on the building $500. The building was fully insured, but there was no insurance on the stock. The fire is supposed to have started from an electric wire, but nothing definite is known. He will rebuild at once and continue the business.

SALEM, MASS.—A fire in the rear of the greenhouses of Henry F. Conant & Co., March 30, caused some damage to the houses through breakage of glass.

Among the Magazines.

The Forum for April, among its thirteen noteworthy articles, contains the following: "The New Financial Law," by Frank A. Vanderlip, Assistant-Secretary of the Treasury; "The Puerto Rican Relief Bill," by Congressman Albert J. Hopkins; "The Hay-Pauncefote Treaty," by James G. Whiteley; "Immediate Naval Needs," by Capt. William H. Jaques; "A Tuberculosis Quarantine not Practicable," by Dr. William P. Munn; "Canals from the Great Lakes to the Sea," by Maj. T. W. Symons, of the Special Canal Committee appointed by Gov. Roosevelt; "The Truth about Zionism," by M. Gaster, Founder of the English Zionist Federation, and "Literature as a Profession," by Prof. Brander Matthews.

Notes from Southern California.

The General Outlook.

With the opening of the season last Fall the outlook for the seed, florist and nursery trade was indeed auspicious. With the remainder of the country conditions were favorable for business—good, healthy activity in every direction, and in all lines. The opening found every condition favorable for a prosperous year, and matters continued in that light until about February 1, when it became apparent that unless rain fell copiously in the immediate future another dry season could be anticipated. At this writing, March 20, that expectation is about to become a rather unpleasant as well as an unprofitable fact. The total precipitation has been, so far, about six inches in this immediate locality; at Santa Barbara about nine; at Riverside a trifle over seven, and in San Diego less than four. At each of these points, covering a wide geographical area, the rainfall has been much less than normal, and, as a consequence, all growing things will be retarded, and the crops at best but a partial success. Readers of the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE in New York State will probably not quite grasp the situation. If they can imagine no rainfall from May to November, its significance will become apparent.

To be sure, climatic conditions are entirely different, and in the main we rely on irrigation; nevertheless a scant rainfall even in Southern California is not calculated to lubricate the wheels of business. It is safe to say that the grain crop is from two-thirds to three-quarters failure, and the general run of garden crops much below the average. Orchard products, particularly where irrigation water is available, will do better, though the yield will be lighter and the quality slightly inferior to that of average years. Of course, along with this general depression the seed trade is destined to "pot luck" for the present, unless for some unforseen reason we should have a few weeks of rainfall before the Summer season sets in.

The Seed Trade.

Those comprising the principal houses in the wholesale and retail seed trade in Southern California prepared for big business last Fall, and in so far as trade in Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Southern Nevada, Central California (where the rainfall has been ample to mature crops), and the Eastern and foreign exports are concerned, the trade has been exceptionally good; locally, however, the stocks have moved rather slowly. In keeping with this the production of seed crops the coming Summer season must necessarily be light, and in some cases a total failure. Owing to this auspicious promise of good business in the Fall, the Germain Fruit Company, the Johnson & Musser Seed Co., Messrs. Watson & Son, Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd, Messrs. Howard & Smith, Dr. F. Franceschi, etc., all issued catalogues of good size and in large editions. The Germain book was probably the largest catalogue ever issued west of the Missouri River, and was a valuable contribution to the literature of seed growing and seed selling under a California sun. It is indeed surprising, as well as gratifying, to see the trade enjoyed by these houses in the southwest generally. It is a trade covering an empire peculiarly its own, which is distined to make Los Angeles its chief and only distributing point.

The Florists.

Viewed by itself the florist trade has less to fear from a drought than the seed trade or nurserymen. Cut flowers are quite generally the product of green or lath house conditions; in any event the area devoted to this branch of soil tilling is after all comparatively small, and hence more under control. The trade in this direction is also extending, and shipments are now quite common to Texas, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

And while on the subject of flowers I want to call the attention of the readers of the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE to a meritorious novelty in the new canna, Mrs. Kate Gray, now being first introduced to the trade by Messrs. Howard & Smith, nurserymen, of Los Angeles. I am constrained to this in deference to the discussion now going on in these columns anent the question of hybridizing cannas. It has been my pleasure to critically inspect this new candidate for garden and indoor decorative honors in all its glory in the open field, and I unhesitatingly pronounce it a really magnificent thing. Let me briefly describe it: Imagine a canna plant about 7½ feet high in the clear, with foliage of a bright glossy green, equalling in many respects that of a musa, with enormous spikes of bloom of a rich shade of orange scarlet overlaid with gold; flowers perfect in form, the petals being broad and overlapping, measuring 2½ to 3 inches across, while the flower itself is from 6 to 7 inches in diameter; the texture is all that could be desired, partaking strongly of the Crozy or parent race. The plant is hardy and will withstand our hot Summer days admirably. Mrs. Kate Gray is a magnificent hybrid, originating in the nursery of Capt. F. Edward Gray, in Alhambra, and is the direct result of a cross between the orchid-flowering canna Italia and Mme. Crozy. It is admitted that the latter is the result of various crosses of Canna indica, and several species other than C. flaccida; it is further admitted that C. flaccida crossed with Mme. Crozy produced the present Italian type, which is generally supposed a sterile hybrid, though literally this is not true, as the successful cross between the Italian and Crozy on Capt. Gray's unply proves, a half-tone engraving of which (made from a wash drawing from life) is shown herewith.

The Nursery Interests.

In this department of horticulture the call has been for citrus trees and ornamental stock, in which the demand for good plants has been in excess of the supply. Three or four dull seasons have resulted in old stocks being well cleaned out, the new not sufficiently along to be of saleable size. Prices are good in all directions. Citrus nursery trees are bringing from 75c. to $1 each, and other prices in other lines are equally stiff on a rising market.

Trade Echoes at Random.

Messrs. Chas. Brazee & Co. have three acres exclusively to freezias at Wilmington. They are growing for the export trade, and anticipate a splendid crop of the bulbs.

The Redando Floral Company reports business good at their Los Angeles store. At their seed and flower farms, situated at Redando, they are planting heavily to carnation cuttings.

Flower of Canna Mrs. Kate Gray.
(Italia X Mme. Crozy.)

O. C. Saaks succeeds to the business of the Central Park Floral Company, at No. 135 South Spring street, he having bought out Mr. Sumner, the former proprietor.

The Brose-Fleur Seed and Plant Company are forging ahead. Their growing trade has demanded larger quarters for the plant department, which has been secured just to the rear of their seed and florist store. They now have a handsome stock of flowering and ornamental foliaged plants.

Ernest Braunton, long known to the trade, is now in charge of the magnificent home grounds of John Singleton, Esq., where some of the best landscape art to be found hereabouts is gradually taking shape. Some $10,000 has already been expended on the grounds, and when these are all planted they will contain the finest collection of trees and plants to be found in Southern California. It is the intention to issue a private catalogue later on.

Edmund Germain, who has been placed in authority in the Germain Fruit Company, is certainly winning his spurs. This last Spring they added a full nursery equipment in the rear of their seed house, in order to expedite their plant trade. This house now carries poultry supplies also.

Among Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd's novelties must be mentioned three varieties of Giant cosmos, two beautiful giant flowered nasturtiums, some fine new rex begonias, chrysanthemums, etc. Her new catalogue comprises some 75 pages, and enumerates a vast number of plants, many of which are peculiarly products of Southern California conditions, coupled with her enterprise and painstaking care and industry in their creation.

HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

(79) Begonia Vulcan.—Begonia Vulcan is known botanically as B. semperflorens atrococcineum. It is a seedling from B. Vernon, and represents a variety only.

(80) Carnation Flora Hill Bursting Calyx.—Perhaps the reason why your Flora Hill carnations have bursted so badly is owing to the temperature being kept too low. This variety does remarkably well with some florists, while others are unable to grow it successfully.

(81) Heating by Bundy Boiler.—Is a Bundy sectional boiler suitable for greenhouse heating? How many tons of coal should be a fair estimate for a rose house, 100x18 feet, from September to May?

—We would suggest that you inquire of the makers of the boiler. Very much depends on the manner in which it is set, and the kind of coal used.

(82) Carnations in Solid Beds.—To what extent are carnations grown in solid beds. One of the local growers here seems to have unqualified success in solid beds in high houses; said beds are from 8 to 15 feet from glass. The old method was as near the glass as possible to secure sufficient head room, but the local grower seems to have a much better result. Has anyone else tried this method to your knowledge?—WORCESTER.

(83) American Beauty Outdoors.—To have American Beauty roses flower more than once in a season when planted outdoors, no particular treatment differing from that applied to other hybrid roses is necessary. When the flowers are ready for use, cut them with long stems, that is, down to within three or four eyes of last season's wood; feed them liberally to induce new growth, and keep them as clean from thrips or greenfly as is done in the greenhouse.

(84) A Shower Bouquet.—A shower bouquet differs from the ordinary bridal bouquet by having long sprays of flowers trailing from the bouquet proper. The length of the trailing sprays is according to the height of the person who is going to carry the bouquet. They may reach almost to the ground if so desired. As rose stems are rather stiff for the purpose a few buds fastened to sprays of asparagus with fine wire give the best effect. Make the bouquet as loose as possible, and let the sprays droop gracefully from the front, rather than from the center.

(85) Pearl Tuberoses for Autumn Cutting.—To make the best use of 1,000 tuberose bulbs we would start a number of them at once, by putting them in a sand bench with bottom heat, in a greenhouse, potting them into 4-inch pots after growth begins. Another batch should be started ten days later to follow in succession. When the weather becomes mild enough the plants must be taken out of the pots and set outdoors. Successive batches also must be planted in the open ground, getting the last lot in by the middle of July. By pursuing this plan the flowers can be had over a period beginning early in the season and lasting until frost comes.

(86) An Average Rose Cut.—What should be a fair or average cut of roses—Bride, Bridesmaid, American Beauty and Meteor—in new and modern houses, 100x14 and 100x18 feet, with proper temperature, per day and week—fancy, extras, etc.? How many roses would I require to fill houses of said sizes?—H. F. A.

—What would be the average cut from the roses mentioned would depend upon too many unforseen circumstances to allow us to estimate correctly. Plants when well grown will throw up from 20 to 30 buds each in a season, and if 7 or 8 of the buds made fancy and extra blooms that would be a fair average. Some growers would do better than this, however, and many would not do so well—it all depends upon the grower and the facilities at hand, such as soil, help, etc. The number of plants required for a house 100x18 feet would be about 1,050; this would allow of the paths taking 5 feet from the width of the house, and planting the roses 12x15 inches apart.

Bulb Show at Haarlem, Holland.

On Friday, March 16, the quinquennial exhibition of blooming bulbs at Haarlem was opened by Mr. E. H. Krelage, and was quite a success. The room was transformed into a beautiful garden, with thousands of flowers in every color. On the left groups of blooming hyacinths were nicely arranged. Every set was fine and every flower a giantess. The finest display of hyacinths was made by Messrs. J. H. Kersten & Co., Humstede. It consisted of 75 varieties in pots, and was awarded a gold medal and $10. Amaryllis (Hippeastrum) made a splendid sight, shown by J. W. Dandey. The flowers were wheel-shaped, and have a much nobler form and less green in the inside.

Seventy-five hyacinths in glasses were splendidly shown by G. Van der Mey, of Lisse, receiving also a gold medal and $10. Darwin tulips (self-breeders) were exhibited by Messrs. E. H. Krelage & Son. These tulips were from 2 to 3 feet in height and were arranged in a semi-circular bed. Every variety had only one color that was somewhat lighter toward the edge of each leaf. The colors are soft and nice, sometimes dark; but they comprise also bright red and sparkling violet. They gained an extra prize.

Next came a bed, consisting of different species, yellow, white and rosy richardias, and strangely shaped arum flowers, being the principal stock. Near this was a bed of Polyanthus narcissi in pans. This makes a very nice display, and I do not understand why American florists do not use more of these bulbs for cutting purposes. They can easily be forced and are very cheap, too.

A collection of 25 pans of blooming hyacinths in 25 varieties, 10 of each variety, forced and sent in by Messrs. E. H. Krelage & Son, were a masterpiece. Nearby was a bed of botanical tulips; that is to say, tulips something monstrous, but never grown in large quantities. Among them were Tulipa cornuta, Tulipa oculus solus, Tulipa Florentina odorata, Tulipa elegans, Tulipa viridiflora (a variety with a deep green flower), etc. Close to these were some 20 pans of blooming valley clumps, which were literally covered with snowy flowers. A bed of blooming iris, lachenalia, muscari, trillinms, etc., was next to them, and farther on a large circular bed of spiræas and Dielytra spectabilis. I have often seen finer plants of those kinds.

The bouquets and flower arrangements were composed of bulb flowers only, and very loosely arranged; but I think the work was somewhat superficial.

In the next hall were found narcissii, tulips and a few collections of orchids. Neither the narcissi nor the tulips can be compared with those of five years ago. There were numerous pots and pans and glasses that created quite a show, but really extra flowers and plants and superior collections were absent.

As regards tulips there is not the same enthusiasm in forcing fine collections of them as existed five or ten years ago. I suppose the cause is the heavy expense, which is not within the power of every grower here. J. B.

BRIEFS FOR BUSY FLORISTS.

If the herbaceous beds or borders were not renovated in the Fall now is the time to do it. This part of the florist's garden should be kept up in the best possible manner, as the flowers that can be cut and used from the plants come at a time when they are really valuable. Where it is intended to plant new stock it should be done as soon as the ground can be worked. The following are all useful for cut work and should be in every collection: Tritoma, rudbeckia, achillea, aquilegia, helianthus, hemerocallis, funkia, scabiosa, phlox, dianthus, gypsophila, gaillardia, digitalis, campanula, coreopsis and anemone. Dig over the ground thoroughly, adding plenty of good rotten manure before planting; and if late frosts threaten, be sure and protect the newly planted stock.

Outdoor roses will have to receive some attention as the Spring advances. The mulch can be cleared away and the plants pruned back. Hybrid perpetuals should be cut well back, and the weaker last year's growth was more severe the pruning should be. The tea and hybrid tea roses will not stand such severe pruning, and this must be borne in mind when the work is being done. Tie every plant to a stout stake after the pruning is done; stir the surface of the soil lightly with a fork, being careful not to go deep enough to interfere with the roots.

There is other outside work that ought to be pushed as rapidly as the weather will permit, such as sowing sweet peas, planting of gladiolus bulbs; firming the soil around the pansies when the covering has been cleared away should not be forgotten either.

Quinquennial Bulb Exhibition at Haarlem, Holland.

In the greenhouse stock is apt to get a little crowded. Easter being so late we have to keep the flowering plants in good condition longer than usual, and if extra care be not taken of the bedding stock some of it will be found lacking when wanted. All semi-hardy plants, when well established, are just as well off in frames as they are on the benches, providing some protection can be given when frost occurs.

Seed of Primula obconica should be sown about now. The impression that prevailed at one time about this flower being too dangerous to handle has almost died away, and as a Winter-flowering plant we cannot afford to be without it.

Nasturtiums, also, should be sown, and they will be just the right size when wanted. If sown earlier they usually get too large and do not transplant well. The best method is to sow in pots, three or four seeds in each; they can be kept in the same pots until time to plant, when they can then be knocked out and separated without shaking all the soil from the roots.

From present appearances the hyacinths, pot grown, for Easter, are not going to be very satisfactory, a large proportion of them being small indeed. Named varieties, however, are much better, and though they are more costly it looks now as though they will be the most profitable.

American Dahlia Society.

A poorly attended meeting of this society was held in New York City, March 27. L. K. Peacock resigned the office of secretary, and J. W. Withers, of New York, was elected to succeed him.

Interest in this society as at present constituted seems to be limited, and there was an evident desire in some quarters that reorganization on a different basis was necessary to insure success; but a majority of the eleven persons present favored continuing under existing conditions, urging greater enthusiasm and more work by the members.

The society indorsed arrangements making for a show at Springfield, Mass., next Fall, and appointed a committee to outline the work of the association, particularly with regard to nomenclature.

HINTS and HELPS.

Magnolia stellata is well adapted for forcing as medium-sized plants; that is, those about 18 inches or 2 feet in height are usually well provided with flower buds. The plants will stand lifting from the open ground a few days before they are wanted in bloom. In this locality they are now showing color in the open border. Those intended for forcing should be lifted and potted before the roots get dry through being exposed to the air. A few days in a genial atmosphere will bring them into flower.

Achimenes.—In places where these plants are grown they usually increase at such a rapid rate that many of the tubers are annually thrown out for want of knowing what to do with them. They are generally grown for the embellishment of conservatories in Summer, but they may also be very successfully utilized for planting out-of-doors in partially shaded situations during the Summer months. During the last 15 years we have used them for this purpose, and they do grandly, the flowers being very freely produced from June till September. Start the tubers in the pans in which they were grown last season without any further preparations than giving a top-dressing of leaf soil and sand. When the shoots are about an inch high an 8-inch pan will give about a dozen clumps each, large enough to go into a 4-inch pot. Grow them on until they show flower, which should be about the middle of May. Plant them out in light soil.

Moonflowers.—For covering trellis-work or for training up strings by the sides of porches, there is nothing better than the moonflower Ipomœa grandiflora or Bona-nox. It is by no means so well known as it might be, mainly because during the period when the people plant flowers in their yards, the plants offered for sale have an unattractive appearance. This, of course, cannot be otherwise, as they will not flower except on large vines. The plants should never be sold except from 4-inch pots, and if from 5-inch so much the better, as they then start growing right away and flower from three to four weeks earlier than when planted out from 2½ or 3-inch pots.

Primula elatior cœrulea.—So far as color is concerned this is a decided acquisition. It is, so far as I am aware, a nearer approach to blue than is to be found in any other variety of primrose. The variety was sent out a short time ago by Haage & Schmidt, of Erfurt. It is quite hardy, coming into bloom in this locality about the middle of April. It has a very striking appearance when grown in pots, and ought to be a good selling plant for small city gardens. Seeds sown now will give blooming specimens by next Spring. Older plants are best divided and replanted during the latter part of September or put in pots and kept during the Winter in frames.

Nepenthes cuttings, which have been occupying thumb pots for some time, and which show the roots at the edge of the ball, should get a shift into 3-inch pots. I find the easiest way to do this is to place a little of the potting material in the palm of one hand, lay the ball among this and place some more potting material over it, then squeeze the mass into a 3-inch pot pretty tightly. The operation can be performed quickly and without hurting in the least any of the tender roots. Replace the plants in the propagating frame for a few days, gradually giving air. Remove in a week or ten days to the house in which they are to grow, plunging the pots in sphagnum, to prevent rapid drying.

Cœlogyne cristata.—Plants of this popular orchid which are becoming too large may be successfully divided at this time. The growing points make only one pseudo-bulb and two leaves each year, and along the stem may be found three, four, and sometimes five old pseudo-bulbs, representing the growth of so many years. Under favorable conditions new growths will start from the bases of one or more of these old pseudo-bulbs, and it is owing to this characteristic that the plants are capable of division. Great care must be exercised in the operation of dividing to disturb the plants as little as possible. The pieces after division should be large enough to go into a 6 or 8-inch pan, packing the potting medium carefully among the roots, and finishing off with live sphagnum.

The Market.

This has been the dullest week experienced during the present Lenten season, although the weather has been all that could be desired for the first week in April. Funeral work only seems to be in vogue just now, consequently white flowers are in greatest demand. Red roses have probably suffered more during the last few days than any other flower. Good Brunner have sold very cheap, some going as low as $4 per 100 some days. Beauty are plentiful, and no reasonable offer is refused; although for the top grade $3 per dozen is asked regular buyers are getting them at a figure much lower. Rothschild also have met with poor favor this Spring, and the prices realized for them will tend to disheartenn growers from increasing the output of either this or any other hybrid rose for early Spring, as there is certainly no profit in growing this class of roses under glass for $6 or $8 a 100. Present indications point to a large supply of roses for next week, both in American Beauty and the teas.

Carnations will probably not be so abundant; they have been coming in rather light for some time and, as yet, show little sign of increase. Would-be holders up of carnations will do well to refer back to last year's results and not dump a lot of old flowers on the market Easter Saturday, as was done then.

Violets of special grade are very much in the minority, and bring 75c. per 100; the others, well, they go at any price. The Greeks are selling them on the sidewalks at 15c. a bunch, so they must have been bought very cheaply.

There are plenty of Easter lilies around, and the best can be had for $1.50 per dozen. It does not seem at this writing that there will be any advance on this price for next Saturday's sales.

Cattleyas have gone up, 60c. each being now asked for them. Valley remains about the same as last quoted, as do daffodils, tulips and single narcissus, all of which are in plentiful supply.

Asparagus and smilax are in good demand; maidenhair fern going rather slow.

Several of the cut-flower dealers are preparing to handle plants for the Easter trade. These have become such a prominent feature for this holiday that many growers are willing to send plants on consignment to this market.

Alex. Guttman moved into his new quarters, 52 West 29th street, on Monday last.

Auction rooms.

Rhododendrons, roses, boxwood and general nursery stock have been the principal offerings in Wm. Elliot & Sons' and Cleary & Co.'s auction rooms this week. The latter firm announces a Japanese sale for the 11th and 12th inst.

An Orchid Sale.

Sander's annual Spring sale of orchids will take place at Cleary & Co.'s rooms, Vesey street, on Thursday, April 19. Many new and rare kinds are to be offered.

Among the Retailers.

Theodore Lang has taken the store and greenhouses situated at 93d street and Broadway, recently vacated by Edward Smith. Mr. Lang will make this an uptown branch of his Sixth avenue store.

Alex. McConnell is having the electric fountain taken out of his window preparatory to having a new interior fixed therein, to make room for a large Easter display.

The monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, in Elks Hall, corner 27th street and Broadway. The Bowling Club will meet in the afternoon of the same day at the alleys, corner 57th street and Sixth avenue.

Alex. McConnell, Fifth avenue, has just compiled and published an interesting pamphlet, giving descriptive botanical classification of hardy evergreen deciduous trees and shrubs, and herbaceous perennial plants, ornamenting Georgiancourt, the Winter home of George Jay Gould, Esq., at Lakewood, N. J.

J. Arnot Penman (Jim the Penman) has recently been having rather a hard time of it physically. An abscess on his head kept him confined to his room for two months. This was followed by an attack of erysipelas, necessitating his removal to Bellevue Hospital, from which institution he was discharged Friday last.

A Flower Show.

An exhibition of flowers, fruits and vegetables will be held in the rooms of the American Institute, Berkeley Lyceum Building, West 44th street, Wednesday, April 11, at which some substantial money prizes will be offered. At the meeting in the afternoon of same date the subject, "Easter Flowers," will be opened by Samuel Henshaw.

Rose Show Notes.

The gold medal of the New York Florists' Club, for best 100 roses, in four varieties, from growers residing outside a radius of 100 miles of New York, was captured by Peter Crowe, Utica, N. Y., with Bride, Bridesmaid, Golden Gate and Beauty, the silver medal being won by Benjamin Dorrance.

The Lincoln Co.'s prize, for "finest roses in the show," went to E. M. Wood & Co., of Natick, Mass., with some handsome Bridesmaid and others.

J. L. Dillon showed a vase of the white carnation Queen Louise.

Market Notes.

Business quieted down a little bit the past week. Flowers are becoming more plentiful generally, and a slight falling off in prices has been the result.

Roses are in very good supply—American Beauty, Ulrich Brunner and Jacqueminot being all quite plentiful. Beauty fetch about the same prices as last quoted. Brunner have decreased in value and now range from $6 to $20 a 100, a limited supply of extras fetching $25. Jacqs. are not at all abundant, and do very well, at about the same prices as Brunner.

Carnations have become a trifle more plentiful and have moved slower; still the good ones are snapped up early at very good figures. White and Daybreak, though still short, are more plentiful than they have been for some time, and finest grades which last week brought $3.50 to $4 sell this week for $3 to $3.50.

Lilies are now in good supply and values are decreasing. Valley is abundant. Mignonette is in very good supply, and prime stock still maintains $3 per 100. Violets are beginning to show the effects of the warm weather. It is a question whether they will hold out of good quality until Easter. Single violets are now pretty well played out.

The News.

Thos. Capers, of Wellesley Hills, has a fine crimson seedling carnation, of which he brings in a few flowers each week. It is a cross between Mangold and a Mangold seedling, and he calls it seedling No. 44. It is a large, well, formed and fragrant flower, borne on a long, strong stem, and is a very free bloomer.

The Flower Committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society visited David Monteith, at Dedham, on Thursday of the past week, to inspect two seedling carnations of which mention was made in my notes some time ago, the most promising one being a dark pink—a cross between Scott and Daybreak.

The Committee on Gardens, the same day, visited the tomato houses of Dr. Jabez Fisher, at Fitchburg, Mass., where tomatoes are grown on the sub-irrigation principle, and the cucumber houses of William Proctor, of the same city.

Jos. H. Woodford, chairman of the Committee of Arrangements of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, who has been confined to his home for three weeks, was out for the first time on Wednesday, and is on the road to recovery.

James H. Delay, of Beacon street, returned last week from a business trip to New York and Philadelphia.

A scheduled exhibition will be held at Horticultural Hall, on Saturday, April 7, prizes being offered only for vegetables.

The shelves in the new chest at J. Newman Son's store gave way Saturday morning just after the stock for the day had been put in, doing damage, it is understood, of about $100, including stock, vases, plate glass, etc.

T. G. Thrasher, of Avon, is bringing in a fine lot of Ulrich Brunner roses.

H. K. Southworth, the violet grower of Stoughton, has been confined to his house for three or four days with the grip.

W. Rosenthal has sold out his place on Bosworth street, sale to take effect June 1. He is to occupy, in addition to his present quarters, at 5 Bromfield street, a commodious room above, with separate entrance at No. 3½. Mr. Rosenthal is also occupying No. 7, next door, for the Easter trade.

Among Growers of Easter Stock.

Wm. A. Bock, at North Cambridge, has an unusually fine lot of Easter stock. He is growing about the same variety as last year. The lilies are very fine, clean, healthy, and well flowered, and with a very good average of blooms per stem. Azaleas and rhododendrons, too, are finely grown. He also has a nice lot of small spiræas, marguerites and genistas in salable sizes as Easter plants. Hydrangeas are grown also, but not so many as in former years. Mr. Bock has a nice lot of geraniums, heliotropes, fuchsias, etc., in small plants, for which he finds quite a demand in his home trade.

Fred. C. Becker, Cambridge, has azaleas in all sizes this year, as well as a fine lot of lilies. Outside of these, the staples, most of the plants are grown for home trade. Mr. Becker also has quite a demand for small plants of geraniums, heliotrope, ageratums, fuchsias, etc., which he supplies to the neighboring churches to be given away to the children. The houses of Boston ferns are in excellent condition.

Wm. S. Ewell & Sons have a nice lot of bulbs that will be in prime condition for Easter delivery, and a lot of azaleas in all sizes. This firm is also growing quite a number of geraniums, begonias, heliotrope, etc., for which they find quite a demand at home.

E. E. Sutermeister, Dedham, has a nice lot of bulbs in pans, also very fine spiræa plants.

The Market.

The cut flower market has shown great activity during the past week. Business with the stores has been good, and flowers of all kinds in demand. It really seems that dull Lenten seasons are things of the past.

Roses are in good supply and sufficient for all demands, long-stemmed Beauty being rather too plentiful; $5 per dozen is asked for the best, but very few are sold at that price. Medium-stemmed flowers, of good quality, are in demand. Outside of the very best flowers the price for Beauty ranges from $1 to $3 per dozen. Of tea roses a few choice Bridesmaid and Bride sell at 10c., but the general price of all teas is from 4c. to 8c.; good Perle sell at from 4c. to 5c. There is also in the market fine flowers of Liberty and a fair supply of Morgan and Goldea Gate, also a few Chatenay. Not very much bulbous stock is offered. Valley is now selling at $3 and $4 per 100. Lilies are going at 8c., 10c. and 12c. per flower.

Carnations are about the best selling stock just now, it being difficult to fill all orders. This is on account of the supply falling off, so many growers having thrown carnations out to make room for other crops. Prices range from $1.50 to $4 per 100, according to quality; all colors selling well, except yellow. Choice strings of smilax are in demand.

Visitors this week were: P. Welch, Boston; A. Lange, Chicago; Theo. Vincent, Baltimore; G. R. Clark, Scranton, and Z. D. Blackestone, Washington, D. C.

The Easter Outlook.

From present indications Easter business, as far as the grower is concerned, will be very good. Already many growers are sold out, and if the present good weather continues the retail stores will do a larger trade than ever.

Club Notes.

The Florists' Club meeting on Tuesday last was not largely attended. Benj. Dorrance read his paper on what the American Rose Society is doing for the Queen of Flowers. A discussion followed which was mostly a repetition of that of two months' ago, viz., as to why no more than four varieties of roses were grown. No satisfactory explanation was reached. The grower said it was the store man's fault, and the store man said it was the fault of the grower.

The Floral Exchange, Inc., had a vase of blooms of their new rose Queen of Edgely on exhibition. The committee on exhibits reported as under:

"We are convinced that this variety is a valuable addition to the list of forcing roses, being in every respect, except color, the exact counterpart of the American Beauty. The color is a beautiful bright pink, which is good even in the full flowers. The fragrance is also as fine as that of Beauty, and the exhibited blooms showed remarkable vigor.

Trade Notes.

Wholesale men report excellent trade the past few days, almost everything being cleaned out nicely, and at very good prices for this time of year. Roses sell at 3c. to 8c.; carnations, 2c. to 4c.; Beauty, $2 to $4 per dozen—rather scarce; violets, 20c. to 30c. per 100 for California; small, at $1.50 per 100. Valley is plentiful, at 3c., and very good callas bring 10c. to 12c. A few Dutch hyacinths come in that realize 2c. to 3c. Very few Harrisii are in the market; they sell at 10c. to 15c.

As Easter approaches the usual cry of scarcity in lilies is heard, and we fully believe this time it is correct. Lilies are so uneven this year, more so than we have ever noticed; and very many bad ones are among them. Some men who are supposed to be well informed predict a very poor lot of Easter stock in general for this season. Why, we cannot see, as we certainly have had splendid weather almost all the time.

Notes.

The regular club meeting has been postponed from the 12th to the 19th. This was done on account of the regular meeting day coming so near Easter, it was feared the attendance would be so small that there would be no quorum. All local members please note.

The Shaw banquet occurred on the evening of the 31st. Besides the trustees many prominent citizens and distinguished educators from all parts of the country were present. Mr. Henry Hitchcock, one of St. Louis' most prominent attorneys, was the presiding officer.

Chicago.—A meeting of the Bowling Club was held March 30 and some new life instilled into it. Alex. Henderson resigned as secretary and George Asmus was elected in his stead. A series of eight games are to be played, from which the six men to be pitted against the St. Louis team will be determined on. More regular practice will also be indulged in looking to a creditable team for New York in August. The following were the scores played on a new alley on Randolph street, March 31:

Market News.

The past week's trade was somewhat slower than usual, and stock was abundant enough for all demands. Prices hold up well; good roses as high as 15c., and even better; carnations from $1.50 up, and lilies from 10c. to 12c. Carnations are not any too abundant, and will be short for Easter, as crops are about off with our growers. Lilies are more plentiful this week than was expected, but will likely be scarcer next week. Prices will hardly go much over 15c. for good stock. Harrisii are poor generally, but some good longiflorum are in the market Tulips and hyacinths are coming in good, and are in better demand now. Valley is also choice, but goes slow. Smilax seems scarce.

Potted plants are plentiful and will likely sell well. Hydrangeas are good, but azaleas generally not so good as last season. The same can be said of Dutch hyacinths.

Jottings.

C. B. Knickman, representing Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., spent several days in the city.

The weather is still Wintry-like—snow on the ground April 4 and thermometer below 32 degrees.

Trade News.

More store openings recently gave a bit of impetus to the loaning of palms for decorating; and in some cases purchases of blooms in quantity for giving away to callers were made, with also a brisk demand in some quarters recently for funeral flowers. The annually known Lenten plethora of bloom in beyond salable quantity has not appeared here this year. Carnations have not come in at all numerous for some time; other blooms generally are ample and of good quality.

An attempt to mobilize a club meeting on Thursday of last week failed for lack of a quorum.

The weather now shows up fair and favorable for Easter stock, in which interest is now becoming rife. A hurried call at several nearby places in town was made on Tuesday.

At Rebstock's growing houses, on Elmwood avenue, an attraction were several good-sized specimen Acacia armata that ought to command fancy prices. Lilies are nicely timed, but disensed ones are unprofitably noticeable. A large lot of 7-inch pot Rambler roses is here, some fairly grown, but blind growths freely seen, especially in the yellow variety. A bench of Brunner and other hybrids running into hundreds look profitably pleasing. A good number of wreaths are seen. A fair lot of hydrangeas and azaleas in good sizes.

Chas. D. Zimmerman's new place on Norwood avenue includes a showing of a good batch of Harrisii, but sunny weather is needed to bring some on in time. His azaleas are fine and well timed. Rambler roses are inclined to be late.

Wm. Scott complains of diseased longiflorum lilies. His stock generally is well timed, with the misses scarcely worth mentioning. Some American Beauty in pots, in bloom, with from six to eight blooms and buds to each will surely be in demand. A bench of Dutch hyacinths in pots, in their uniformity might be likened to an army from Lliput. Shapely genistas vie with azaleas in their good timing and opposite colors. Not so showy is Giant mignonette in pans, which esthetic buyers prize, while a narrow shelf, close to the glass, is occupied by some hundred of fruiting strawberries in 4-inch pots. A greenhouse Easter novelty to us these are, and with interest we shall await their reception by flower buyers. We are sure we never before saw so fine a strain of pansies forced, which Mr. Scott informs us came from somewhere in Massachusetts.

Fair quantities of bulb stock are seen at various places, but not nearly so much as in years gone by. Unless our present estimate is much awry, good weather permitting at Easter time, all the locally grown stock will find ready sales.

Charles Jansen has started in a modest way, with a 60-foot house given over mostly to bedding stock. It is located at Broadway, corner of Green street.

Mr. C. Smith, of Smith & Fetters, visited friends in town last week.

J. McHutchinson, of New York, called this week. VIDI.

Grand Rapids.

We have been having beautiful sunshiny weather of late—just what we needed to bring the flowers and plants into bloom, yet with all the bright weather and the profusion of bloom the Lenten demand continues so great there is actually a carnation famine here. Few, if any, shipping orders are filled complete. When all efforts to secure a few carnations round town at wholesale have failed recourse has been had to buying a few dozen each at several establishments to help out an order, but none could be had even then. Roses are in good supply; quality fine. Price, $1.50 per dozen. The violet houses are a sight to behold, being a perfect sheet of purple. Longiflorum are in just right and will be fine.

Much of the Dutch bulb stock is very poor this year. It is noticed that the best bulbs were ordered from those bulb men who grow their own bulbs. This may be a pointer for the wise.

Aside from carnations the outlook for an Easter supply is good, and we shall feel disappointed if we don't break all previous records.

Trade Notes.

There is little, if any, change in trade conditions since last writing; likewise little change in weather conditions. Trade is quite brisk despite unfavorable weather. Numerous store decorations have furnished a large amount of work within the past two weeks, and these, with funeral orders, have provided an outlet for most all of the cut flower stock offered. Prices have held up remarkably well all through Lent, and at the present time do not vary much from former quotations. The dull weather of the past several weeks has curtailed the supply of flowers, and while there is no noticeable scarcity, at this writing, good prices obtain. From present indications a few days of bright weather will bring out an abundance of choice stock for Easter.

The flower stand in the Arcade, operated for several season past by Frederick Schneider, has recently been abandoned.

A. T. Boddington, of Cincas & Boddington, New York, was a visitor this week. G. A. T.

New Canaan, Conn.—Stephen Hoyt's Sons have received a shipment of 74,730 trees from France. They will be set out at the nursery grounds, which cover 5,000 acres.

State of Trade.

During the past week trade held up well. When one makes the rounds after the early morning hours, and finds, practically, all grades of stock well cleared off, there is no mistake about business being lively. We are now close enough to Easter to know for a certainty that the good tidings will continue at least until after that important day.

This will indeed make the Winter of 1899-1900 a record breaker, in that there has been substantially no serious glut of flowers at one time the whole Winter through; that roses and carnations have sold well all Winter; that quite often there has been less than the actual demands called for, and even yet carnations are short of demand, especially in white.

The fact is, prices keep so good and Easter is so late that it is not expected there will be any great advance in values over what we have been accustomed to.

Dealers are already giving out expected prices as follows: For extra long Beauty, per dozen, $5 to $6; mediums, $3 to $4; No. 1, $1.50 to $2; Bride, Bridesmaid and Meteor, per 100, $6 to $10; Golden Gate and La France, $8 to $10; Perle, $4 to $5; carnations, standards, $2 to $3; fancies, $4 to $5; lilies, $10 to $12, a few extras go to $15; callas, $10 to $12 (both these are selling well now at figures quoted); tulips, $3 to $5; Romans, $2 to $3; Dutch hyacinths, $4 to $6; narcissus, $2 to $3; valley, $3 to $5; smilax, $12 to $15; violets, $1 to $1.25.

Shipping to outside points is still a very important part of the trade, which tends to show that business is good throughout the West.

In the matter of bulbous stock, while it is expected there will be a fair supply, there is no such quantity available as in other years.

J. Schoepfle, 884 Blucher street, has a notable lot of 200 Harrisii lilies just right for Easter; that shows they can yet be done well. They are in 6-inch pots; stand from 5 to 6 feet tall, well clothed with foliage from the pot up, crowned with noble heads of from 12 to 14 flowers on each plant. He tells me he paid a local dealer $18 per 100 for the bulbs last Fall, size 9 to 11, and says no more cheap bulbs for him.

He has also some scarlet and fancy geraniums well in flower for Easter, and plants of smaller size to take their place on the benches when the others are sold.

He is well supplied with seasonable bulbous stock in capital shape.

Round About Town.

H. S. Harmon, representing E. H. Hunt, is out on a Western trip.

Mr. Dickenson reports Spring business opening in fine shape.

P. J. Hauswirth will move from his old cramped quarters in the Auditorium, to a fine store on Michigan avenue in the Annex.

Peter Reinberg is receiving heavy orders from all over the country for rooted cuttings of roses and carnations.

J. S. Wilson, of Vaughan's Greenhouses, is delighted over the birth of a young son the past week. Mother and boy are doing well.

H. B. Beatty and wife, of Oil City, Pa., and J. C. Vaughan and wife left the past week for a trip to New Orleans.

The John C. Moninger Co. has increased its capital stock from $10,000 to $25,000 and amended its charter, to qualify the company to build iron as well as cypress greenhouses.

It is reported that Chas. H. Fisk will again enter the wholesale contingent after Easter, in association with A. L. Randall, with whom he was formerly in business.

Visitors the past week were Mr. Van Akin, Coldwater, Mich.; Geo. M. Geraghty, formerly of Denver, and S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia.

O. P. Bassett and wife are at West Baden, Ind.

A. L. Vaughan took a flying trip home, but is gone again, and reports trade very flourishing. Ess.

Easter Prospects.

As Spring and Easter approaches trade in the florist's line, as well as in other kindred vocations, is on the increase. Retailers have bought heavily expecting a big demand, especially in blooming plants for Easter. Carnations have and will be exceptionally short this year. Prices on these have not ruled higher than they are now for several years. Violets have been in abundance, and at the home of violets, in this section (Warren), they are most beautiful. Seymour Bros., as well as Messrs. Barkers' have each two to three large houses in prime condition for Easter.

A tour among the growers clearly illustrates the increasing demand there is for plants and other Easter flowers. Geo. C. Kelley makes a specialty of growing all kinds of bulbous stock. George is getting ready for his usual Easter display, which commences next Sunday. From present indications his exhibit will surpass anything he has previously shown.

S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, is seading exceptionally fine White Cloud carnations to this market. The same is true about his other varieties, including his roses.

Jottings.

The grip has been very prevalent with us this season. Timothy O'Connor and Walter Hogg have been unable to attend to business for over a week, but are expected soon to be around again. Not a week passes but some of the craft is laid up.

One of our large department stores has opened a flower counter for the sale of cut flowers and plants, and desiga work. Naturally, it is causing considerable comment in the retail trade. The growers get as much for their stock from the department store as they do from the florist, but the trouble comes to the retailers, who cannot afford to sell on so close a margin as bargain-counter prices. This department, I understand, is in charge of a Mr. Lake, formerly of New Bedford, who had the misfortune of being burned out some time ago.

The demand for all kinds of stock has been very heavy of late, owing to the unprecedented call for funeral work. Among the more notable of our associates called home was J. McCarthy, assistant superintendent of Swan Point Cemetery; D. W. Reeves, director of the American Band, whose funeral was held a few weeks ago, had the largest amount of design work seen here in some t me.

James Hockey, president of the Florists' Club, and formerly gardener to Mr. F. C. Sayles, Pawtucket, has launched out in the commercial ine, having leased a place in Pawtucket. His friends wish him success.

E. J. Johnston mourns the loss of a valuable horse.

Alexander Miller has sold his store on Weybosset street. Mrs. Miller has been very ill for a long time, but is now slowly recovering.

Alfred McCoyd has reopened a flower store in this city, since selling out the one he had in Fall River.

The next meeting of the Florists and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island will be held April 12, at 96 Westminster street.

A. M.

Washington, D. C.

At the funeral ceremonies over the remains of the late H. P. Godwin, on Monday afternoon, in St. Mark's Episcopal Cathedral, three of the finest floral designs ever seen in Washington were furnished by the American Rose Company. They comprised a massive crescent wreath, 6 feet in diameter, of bronze galax leaves, with magnificent specimen Golden Gate roses and Easter lilies and a cluster of cycas leaves, and the same rose festooned with loopings of lace and taffeta ribbon in lilac and white; an anchor of galax and violets, 6 feet high (both of these designs were mounted on easels), and a double cluster of the celebrated Mme. Chateaay rose (the most exquisite shade of coppery pink), containing about 300 blossoms, and tied with open work ribbon of the same shade.

Portland, Me.

Niles Nelson, of South Portland, has two houses of roses which are looking exceptionally fine. Mr. Nelson says they are better than he has ever had them before. Being grafted stock he intends keeping them in the benches another year. A large lot of Lilium Harrisii and an exceptionally fine lot of azaleas will be in good shape for Easter. Great credit is due Mr. Dyer, the manager of this thriving establishment, for the splendid quality of the stock that is grown here. Mr. Dyer is going to surprise the natives of Portland with some fine tomatoes which he is growing.

S. C. Dennett's new store under the Columbia Hotel is always very attractive.

J. A. Dirwanger, Sr., is somewhat indisposed with an attack of the grip.

The local seed houses report good business. The catalogue issued by H. T. Harmon & Co. is the best thing of its kind sent out by any house east of Boston.

FOREST CITY.

Tarrytown, N. Y.

The Tarrytown Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting on March 29. Wallace Odell and John Walquist were elected to membership.

Spiræa grandiflora was exhibited by Wm. Scott in splendid form. Imantophyllum miniatum, also a seedling from it, a shade lighter in color, both being well grown, were shown by Louis A. Martin.

A very interesting paper on the culture of chrysanthemums, by James J. Scott, gardener at the House of Refuge, New York, was read, in his absence, by Wm. Scott. The paper was well received and a lively and interesting discussion followed.

ROBT. ANGUS,
Reporting Secretary.

Columbus, O.

Harry Ballou, who for the past four years has been in charge of the Livingston gardens, has resigned his position with the firm and started in business for himself.

I. D. Siebert has been installed as manager of the Livingston Seed Company's greenhouses and gardens. He has grown up in the flower and plant business.

Our florists seem to be well pleased with the demand for flowers for this time of year. Present indications point to a lively Easter business.

KEAP STREET GREENHOUSES,
BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 23, 1900.

MESSRS. THOS W. WEATHERED'S SONS,
46 and 48 Marion Street, New York City.

GENTLEMEN:—I purchased from you last September, one of your Sectional Hot Water Boilers for my greenhouse at Flatbush, and was so well pleased with the results, that I bought another one for my Keap Street Greenhouses, taking out another make. Anything I might say would not be too high praise for your boilers. They work perfectly, and I am pleased to say that so far I have saved in coal one-half of the cost of the boilers. They will therefore pay for themselves in another year, a result which I consider remarkable. I would be pleased to reply to any one desiring the actual proof of above.

Yours very truly, Signed, JOHN SCOTT.

P. S.—Kindly book my order for another boiler. I will let you know later when to deliver it. J. S.

IRON GUTTERS

Parties contemplating using Iron Gutters will do well to note the following extracts from Patent No. 616,781, issued to George M. Garland:

The object of the invention is to provide a valley-gutter for greenhouses which will be so constructed as to combine a stop for the glass and a drip-conductor.

Another object of the invention is to so construct the gutter that the devices for fastening the gutter to supports will be below the weather-face of the gutter, thus avoiding perforations of the weather-face and consequent liability to leakage.

The nails, screws or other fastening devices are passed through the drop flanges and into the lower ends of the roof-beams, so that these fastening devices for connecting the valley-gutter to the roof structure are below the weather-faces of the valley-gutter, and consequently the weather-faces of the valley-gutter need not be perforated, insuring against leakage.

NEW CARNATIONS

Now Ready.

G. H. CRANE THE BEST SCARLET CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED.

We have the finest and best selected stock of this Carnation in the country. We have 25,000 selected cuttings now ready, and can ship promptly on receipt of order.

Price, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL MACEO THE BEST CRIMSON CARNATION.

Pure, Rich, Clear, Effective Color, the Best Keeper of all Crimsons. The Most Profuse Bloomer of all. Produces 25 per cent. More Flowers than any other Carnation we have ever grown. Sells Out Clean in Quantity. Is Liked by Everybody.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL GOMEZ Some growers who have not grown Maceo think this is the best of the two varieties. Our experience shows Maceo to be the most profitable of the two. Gomez has a longer stem, is lighter in color and sells at 20 per cent. higher price than Maceo.

If you are in doubt as to which to plant, buy an equal quantity of each variety. That will enable you to determine which is best suited for your requirements.

15,000 Cuttings ready, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

A MAGNIFICENT HYBRID RESULTING FROM A CROSS OF ITALIA×MAD. CROZY

The Color is a rich shade of orange scarlet overlaid with gold, a superb coloring which in open sunlight is simply dazzling. The Form is an ideal of the Crozy type of bloom, the petals being very broad and overlapping, measuring 2½ to 3 inches wide, while the individual flowers are from 6 to 7 inches across. The Texture of the flowers is all that could be desired; they partake of the nature of the pollen parent or Crozy race in this respect, and withstand our hottest summer suns without wilting. The Foliage is a bright glossy green, equal to a Musa in size and substance and forms a beautiful foil to the gigantic trusses of bloom. The Height of the plant is 6 to 7 feet, the growth is luxuriant to a degree, but very compact; the massive foliage, giant trusses, and enormous individual flower, give the plant a noble tropical appearance. It is the Only Canna of its kind in existence, and absolutely surpasses all others: its intrinsic value will make it a leading standard sort for years to come.

PRICES.—Strong roots, 35c each; $3.50 per dozen; $25.00 per hundred. Terms strictly cash with order, no exceptions. Stock limited; orders filled in strict rotation. Address,

SEED TRADE REPORT

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Chicago, Ill., President; ALBERT MCCULLOUGH, Cincinnati, First Vice-President; F. W. BOLGIANO, Washington, Second Vice-President; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Secretary and Treasurer.

New York.—John Speelman, of C. Speelman & Sons, Sassenheim, Holland, who is now on his annual visit to this country, was a recent caller. He reports the demand in America for tulips, hyacinths and narcissus as being very good. As regards supplies, he states that hyacinths will be scarce this year again; tulips will be equal to the demand. Recent advices indicate that Roman hyacinths will be in short supply, and prices on same will be advanced over those of last year. There is a good demand for French bulbs in general.

M. Koster, of Boskoop, Holland, arrived in New York Wednesday morning last, on his annual trip.

European Notes.

The cold wave is increasing in intensity, and from 12 to 18 degrees of frost are registered every night. As, however, the atmosphere keeps dry the injury to growing plants is not so great as it would otherwise be.

Now that the land is in good working order the growers are beginning to kick, and the greatest difficulty is being experienced in the placing of contracts, particularly for radish and spinach. Contract prices for these articles have been much too low for several years, and this, coupled with the miserable crop of last season, has naturally made growers shy. At the same time it is certain that they will make a plunge in some other direction and court fresh disaster.

With such a favorable sowing time it is strange that the market for heavy seeds should be in such a stagnant condition. Owing to the appearance of some fine samples of English red clover prices for this article have dropped considerably, but as it is reported that Germany will be a large buyer values may stiffen again later on. Other varieties of clover remain unchanged, although the tendency for alsyke is downward. Rape is being so extensively used for sheep feed that the price is advancing rapidly, and unless we soon have some warmer weather to give the grass a start it will soon be out of reach. There are no turnips or rutabagas now left for feed, and not many mangels, so that every available scrap of green fodder is at a premium.

Visitors who expected to find a good display of narcissi at the last meeting of the Royal Horticultural Society were disappointed, but the splendid display of cyclamen amply compensated. An entirely new form of Cyclamen persicum was exhibited by the St. George's Nursery Co., in which the leaves were exquisitely fringed and cut. The flowers are those of the fringed or papilio section, and of the grandiflora size. It is a very distinct novelty. It is not a sport from the Belgian strain, but an entirely distinct development, the first plant appeared nearly nine years ago. An award of merit was accorded to the strain. The proprietors received several very handsome offers for the stock, but have decided not to offer it to the trade for another year.

Among other interesting exhibits, a new variety of rhubarb (Davis Champion) a gigantic early variety, of beautiful appearance and fine quality, received the rare honor of a first-class certificate. An impetus to the sale of the lovely Iris germanica was furnished by a display of plants that had been successfully forced, and were shown in simply perfect condition.

The many friends on your side of Mr. Fred. Sharpe, of Wisbech, will regret to learn of his sudden death during the present week. Although he had been ailing for some time there was no reason to anticipate such a speedy and sudden end. He was a through seedsman and a genial gentleman, who made friends of all with whom he came in contact.

EUROPEAN SEEDS.

Imports and Exports Statistics.

The following exports and imports of plants, shrubs, seeds, etc., are for the month of February, the latest period for which the official figures have been compiled by the Treasury Department.

The dutiable imports of plants, shrubs and vines amounted to $26,953 in February, 1900, against $9,717 in the same month of last year. The free imports of seeds amounted in February, 1900, to $136,089, against $89,485, the value of the imports of February, 1899. The dutiable imports of seed amounted to $73,298 in February, 1900, against $51,212 in February of the previous year.

The exports of seeds to other countries amounted to $485,672 against $351,233 in the same month of 1899. The countries to which the United States exported seeds were the United Kingdom, which received shipments to the value of $167,537 in February, 1900, against $73,659 in the same month of 1899.

Shipments to France amounted to $29,857 in February, 1900, against $135,959 in the same month last year. Germany imported seeds from the United States in February to the value of $180,922, against $41,772 in February, 1899. Other European countries received shipments to the value of $26,269 in February, 1900, against $27,464 in the corresponding month of 1899.

An increase is noted in the exports of seed this February to British North America, being $72,250, as against $61,330 in February of last year.

Only $4 worth of seed were shipped to Africa during this February, against $970 worth in February of a year ago.

AMERICAN HOLLY (Ilex Opaca)

This is one of America's most beautiful evergreens. Its foliage varies very little from that of the English Holly, and its rich clusters of scarlet berries make a good substitute for flowers in the Winter shrubbery. It is hardy in almost any locality. To insure safety in transplanting, the leaves should be removed from the plant at that time.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN

Dansville, N. Y.—Richard W. Kennedy has made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors. The liabilities are between $6,000 and $7,000. The assignee is James H. Baker, of Dansville.

East Moorestown, N. J.—A fire in the shipping warehouse of the Pleasant Valley Nurseries, Arthur J. Collins proprietor, on April 6, did damage to the extent of $15,000. Two mules were burned to death, and barns, dwelling and large quantities of nursery stock destroyed. There was $10,000 insurance on the buildings.

Nursery Stock for Canada.—The Canadian Minister of Agriculture has given notice in the House of Commons, at Ottawa, of a bill to amend the San José scale act by providing for the admission of nursery stock from the United States under certain restrictions and proper fumigation at some point or points in Canada.

Government Inspection of Nursery Stock.—A memorial has been presented by a committee of the American Association of Nurserymen and several scientists to Congress, praying for the passage of Bill S. 2571, providing for uniform laws regarding the importation and inspection of nursery stock. The memorial describes existing conditions, and adds:

The chief danger to the nursery interest of the country is that the different states have passed diverse laws, many of them very drastic in character, practically prohibitory, so that an honest nurseryman is unable to send clean nursery stock into many of the states; while a dishonest man, or a careless one, may freely send infested stock to other states which have not yet protected themselves by state laws. These difficulties can only be reached by a law governing interstate commerce, such as is now proposed. Moreover, aside from the actual damage which the insect has done in nurseries, the fact becoming known that a nursery has become infested with the scale has, in many cases, operated so severely as to entirely destroy the reputation and credit of the firm. From what has just been said the necessity for a uniform national law becomes apparent. The different requirements of state laws, and the entire lack of any law in certain states, has produced a condition intolerable to the nurseryman and of great danger to the orchardist. For example, a man shipping trees into Maryland requires one form of certificate; shipping into Virginia he requires yet another form under present regulations; while into other states, as Ohio, no form of certificate is required, thus making it the dumping ground for infested stock from all districts. Moreover, in New York the law prohibits sending infested stock outside the state, but does not prohibit its entrance. Such incongruities as these in state laws indicate most strongly the necessity for a uniform national law.

The memorial is signed by C. L. Watrous, Des Moines, Iowa, president American Pomological Society; Silas Wilson, Atlantic, Iowa, ex-president American Association of Nurserymen; N. H. Albaugh, nurseryman, Phoneton, Ohio; Thos. B. Meehan, Philadelphia, Pa., of Thos. Meehan & Sons; Wm. B. Alwood, Professor of Horticulture and Entomology, Blacksburg, Va.; F. M. Webster, Entomologist Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio; Irving Rouse, chairman Executive Committee Eastern Nurserymen's Association, and M. J. Daniels, Horticulturist, California.

The subscribers ask that all interested parties write their respective Congressmen, seeking their support to the passage of the bill.

The Colorado Floral Society has elected the following officers: J. C. Paddock, president; Mrs. L. Gordon, secretary; Mrs. Frank Lomeister, treasurer; A. O. Thomas, Mrs. Frank Lomeister and Mrs. Hall, Executive Committee.

Among the Magazines.

The Ladies' Home Journal, for May will contain an interesting story on the tulip craze in Holland.

Among the features of Scribner's Magazine for April, the animal story by Ernest Seton-Thompson, illustrated by him, will attract the large audience which has been fascinated by "Wild Animals I Have Known." In this story is given the life and adventures of a curious little animal of the Southwest, known as the Kangaroo Rat. The magazine contains, in addition to this story, a host of good things.

We beg to acknowledge receipt, from the Propaganda of Nitrate of Soda, through Dr. John A. Myers, 12 John street, New York City, of several most interesting pamphlets, showing the efficacious nature of nitrate of soda as a fertilizer for various crops. Copies of the pamphlets can be obtained, free, from the party named above.

Alexander Klokner, florist, has been appointed superintendent of the Milwaukee (Wis.) parks, at a salary of $1,500 a year. He will begin his duties April 15.

Easter Indications.

All indications now point to a very large Easter business. Up to Thursday morning sales of plants were well in advance of last year. Crimson Rambler roses, in the medium sizes have, so far, sold very quickly. Azaleas in the $3 and $4 sizes have also been good sellers. Lilies are being disposed of by the department stores at 15c. per flower; the florists are asking 25c. The wholesale price of lilies has been 10c., 12c. and 13c. per flower; a few cases are reported where a lower figure was paid. Most of the lilies are in good condition; only a few lots are reported as too far advanced, and there is sufficient for all demands. Very few plants are left in the growers' hands, all having sold out well. The weather has been good for hauling flowering plants, and sales at wholesale have been very satisfactory, most of the growers being sold out.

Cut flower business was not brisk during the early days of the past week. There does not appear to be any scarcity now, only in white roses, and these have been in good demand all week. Carnations have also been largely called for, but present indications are that there will be plenty of flowers on Friday.

D Landreth & Sons have turned their large seed store, at Tenth and Market streets, into a florist's store for this week, and have a grand display of flowering plants. The large show windows give every opportunity for display, and on Thursday morning the firm were already doing a large business; in fact, they had to send duplicate orders for many things. Here were noticed some 6-inch pots of herbaceous phlox, well flowered, about 20 inches in height. These were grown by Albert Wollemate, and were in demand. The firm also had a fine lot of lilies, many plants having 7 to 9 flowers. Hyacinths in 6-inch pans, three bulbs to a pan, were also in favor and sold readily.

Westcott's Laurel Hill Nurseries have the best lot of hyacinths seen this year—large heads and all in good condition. They have all been brought into flower in cold frames, without any heat, and so will give satisfaction. Lilies are also good here, longiflorum being grown exclusively. Many old-time favorite flowers are seen on this place.—daisies in pans, both white and red; also pans of pansies, and batches of white and yellow marguerites. Spiræas are done well, and form good bushy plants. Hydrangeas are grown in small sizes, about three flowers, for their retail trade.

DAVID RUST.

KOKOMO, IND.—W. W. Coles is upholding his reputation with Kaiserin, but has about decided to plant new stock, as after a continuous cropping for eight years the rose shows signs of weakening. He grows his young stock of roses and carnations in pots, making stronger plants. A fine crop of Beauty was in for Easter.

DANVILLE, ILL.—John Willius has charge of the grounds at the Soldiers' Home, and promises to give some excellent landscape work, covering 300 acres, including ravines and 16 acres of lake, which will be planted with aquatics and the like. His own business is ably conducted by Mrs. Willius, who was putting the finishing touch upon a fine "gates ajar" at time of my visit. W. M.

Success With House Plants

BY LIZZIE PAGE HILLHOUSE.

A complete text-book and guide to the care, cultivation and propagation of all plants in the garden and the home.

The volume is written by a woman for women, in plain, concise language, easily understood, and the book has the special merit of giving directions which can be readily followed, the methods prescribed being of the simplest, and the material suggested to be used easily within reach of all.

To Retail Florists. The old thought, that it was dangerous for a customer to know much about the care of plants, has passed away, being superseded by the newer and more intelligent one, viz.: that the more successful a customer is with plants, the greater quantity will he or she buy.

We offer Special Inducements to all who wish to handle this book. It is a good seller. For particulars, address

(87) Plant for Identification.—C. C. Pettit.—Lithospermum angustifolium, Michx.

(88) Annuals for Beds and Borders.—V. R.—Among the best annuals for present and later sowing the following can be recommended: Sweet alyssum, antirrhinum, asters in variety, balsams, campanula, candytuft, clarkia, cornflower, gaillardia, godetia, helichrysum, honesty, lobelia, lupin, marigold, coreopsis, Marvel of Peru, mignonette, nasturtium, nemophila, petunia, Phlox Drummondii, poppy, salpiglossis, stocks, weet peas and zinnias.

(89) Soil for Violets.—I would like to know something about the soil for violets. I have an old pond, the dam of which bursted about two years ago, and there are about 2 feet of black dirt in the bottom. Now, if this was taken out and piled in a heap would it be good soil for violets?—E. A. P.

—Violets grow best in fresh, sweet loam with manure applied in rather limited quantity. The soil from the bottom of an old pond would be totally unfit for use until it had been exposed to the weather for a year at least.

(90) Asters.—I will have a house vacant at the end of this month. It is a sash house 10 feet wide, with two solid beds. I want to use it from 1st of August on for mignonette. Can I raise in the interval a crop of asters in said house, and will they be done flowering in mid-July? The variety is Giant Comet. The seedlings have their second pair of leaves and have been once transplanted. —READER.

—Keep the young aster plants growing right along until they can be planted on the benches. See that no check is given to them when the planting is done, and the crop can be got from them before the 1st of August. The sash will probably have to be taken off the house during the latter part of June and the following month.

(91) Mushrooms.—Can mushrooms be grown in a cool barn during the Summer months, and would it be a profitable venture? What I mean is: Is there a sale for them at a fair price during July, August, September and October? Can manure be gathered and held from April until October if kept in a dry place, and then be suitable for mushroom culture? —M. F. H.

—Mushrooms can easily be grown in a barn during the Summer months, but they would hardly be profitable during that period, as they spoil in a few hours in warm weather and cannot be handled satisfactorily. If the manure can be spread out thinly, so that no heating of the same takes place, it will keep a long time and make good material for mushroom beds. Should it once get heated, however, its usefulness for that purpose is ended. We think it can be kept till October, provided it is placed in an open shed and dried thoroughly without being heated. Outdoors the rains would start the heat in it, and it could not be kept that length of time.

Greenhouse Heating by Steam.

Editor Florists' Exchange.

In answer to question (43) asked by Subscriber, the economy of low pressure steam over higher pressure was shown. Only a part of the maximum economy in steam heating, however, was demonstrated. The maximum economy in steam heating depends upon the piping, i. e., directional, size and manner of making connections, as the party of the first part, and upon the construction of the boiler as party of the second part. In the piping lies the entire duty of the boiler; and in the boiler lies the duty of the florist, or fireman, with the additional duty required to get circulation (and this is quite an item of useless or wasted labor caused by improper piping). The turning on and shutting off of circulation properly belongs to "care of greenhouse," as does ventilation, watering, etc., but the extra labor of getting a line or lines started banks up against heating expenses, as it can be entirely wasted or unnecessary labor.

The following facts may help to show the economy of the first part, or the duty of the boiler: One pound of water evaporated (by the boiler) at 212 degrees from a temperature of 32 degrees requires about 1,146 heat units to do it; and will fill about 4,400 feet lineal of 1-inch piping (about 1,500 square feet of radiation), and has a latent heat of about 965 degrees. At 15 pounds pressure (250 degrees of heat) one pound of water evaporated by the boiler requires about 1,157 heat units, and has a latent heat of 937 degrees, and will fill about 2,236 feet lineal of 1-inch piping (or about 750 square feet of radiation). One pound of coal contains from 5,000 to 10,000 heat units—an equivalent to the evaporation of from 7 to 14 pounds of water at 212 degrees, or about the same amount at any pressure. If 1-inch piping is properly laid and connections mechanically made (not guess work), steam at 212 degrees, or gauge just showing pressure, will obtain a good circulation in 1,500 square feet of radiation to one pound of water evaporated; and at 15 pounds pressure (250 degrees), with or in same piping, a circulation will obtain of 750 square feet of radiation, or just half that of 212 degrees.

One-inch piping is about the smallest size of pipe (economically figuring) to use, either for steam or water heating; but ¾-inch pipe can be used as single lines (if you know how) returning, and, of course, obtains over an 1¼-inch or larger pipe in less cubic inches of steam or water necessary to fill the pipe; 1,500 square feet of radiation in 1-inch pipe or cast radiators requires about 190 gallons of water or steam (at any pressure) to fill it, and in larger pipe capacity the area increases in proportion to the radiation, as 1,500 of radiation in 2-inch pipe requires about 415 gallons of water or steam (at any pressure) to fill it—nearly three times over 1-inch pipe of same radiation.

The economy of the second part then of the boiler construction is beyond the control of the florist or fireman, except as regards the fact of firing (anybody can waste fuel); and the construction of a heating boiler is a matter of close mechanical calculation. There is probably not a single heating boiler (water or steam) in use to-day that ever approaches the maximum economy possible. All the power boilers, tubular, locomotive or upright, are far from being economical slow combustion boilers, and specially in using bituminous coal, and are simply coal eaters, as there is not a single line in their construction following on economical mechanical rule. And the other class of boiler lacks power on small quantities of coal, and burns fuel with poor results or effect, but with the present type of boilers and systems of piping used the maximum economy in either water or steam heating cannot be reached by low pressure steam or open tank water heating. It can be modified by the piping so as to relieve the boiler; but a coal eater does not change its skin.

A. T. HOYT.

We submitted the whole of the correspondence in this matter to Professor R. C. Carpenter, Department of Experimental Engineering, of Sibley College, Cornell University, and subjoin his views on the subject:

I have read with a good deal of interest the various principles set forth in the discussion relating to the use of high and low pressure steam. Some of the reasons stated rest on what is to me novel ground. For instance, I see little or no relation to the question in the amount of pipe that will be filled by a pound of steam at different pressures. The velocity of circulation seems entirely to have been ignored in treating of the subject from this standpoint, and this will have much to do with the question.

From a theoretical standpoint there is no reason why high-pressure steam is not equally as efficient as low pressure for heating purposes, it being noted that all the heat taken up by the steam is given out in warming the room. From this it follows that if the steam is hotter and denser a less volume is needed for warming the room.

Practically, however I believe that better results will be obtained with low pressure steam, as the apparatus is more easily handled, and accidents are less likely to occur. The size of pipes can be less as the steam pressure is higher, but in best practice pipes smaller than 1-inch diameter are not used; and I usually prefer to employ even larger sizes. Smaller pipe will work and often give good results, but they are more likely to become stopped and to cause trouble by water, however.

I would merely add that I know from actual test that low pressure boilers are more likely to be economical than high pressure ones, despite the opinion so ably presented. R. C. CARPENTER.

The Indiana Horticultural Society is offering premiums for the most artistically laid out and suitably planted rural school grounds.

The San José scale act has been repealed by the Dominion Government, to the extent of allowing importation of rose plants grown under glass from the United States. Strong representations were made by the trade in Canada, with the above result.

The St. Paul Dispatch of April 7 contains an illustrated article on the establishment of August Swanson. He has 16 greenhouses with 40,000 square feet of glass; one store in St. Paul, and another in Minneapolis.

A Chance For the Young Man.

That the series of competitions inaugurated by the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE, on behalf of the young men employees of the craft, is creating widespread interest and enthusiasm, is evidenced by the number of papers submitted, from widely separated localities.

In the contest treating upon the subject, "What I Learned During My First Two Years in the Florists' Business," we have much pleasure in announcing as the winner:

JAMES A. LAKE,
68 School street,
Concord, N. H.

Mr. Lake's paper, although showing that some part of his first two years had been spent in acquiring a knowledge of work that may or may not be considered as pertaining to the florist's trade proper, yet so thorough has been his grounding in the latter, and so closely allied is the cultivation of flowers to vegetables and fruits under glass, that whatever is learned in one is not lost in the pursuit of the other; and his paper showed such a complete grasp of the essentials for success in both, that the judges considered it deserving of first honors, which it has been accordingly awarded.

Our next subject of competition will be:

What benefits have I received and pointers obtained from my visits to other greenhouse establishments and the flower shows?

CONDITIONS.

(1) Each MS. submitted must be written by an employee, without assistance, and the authenticity of these facts attested by the employer.

(2) No employee now contributing, or who has at any time contributed to any florist trade journal, will be allowed to compete.

MSS. must not exceed one thousand words in length.

All MSS. submitted in this competition to become the property of the publishers of the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE.

The awarding of the prize will be based on the amount of the practical knowledge acquired by the writer as exemplified in his paper.

Competition will close May 7 next.

Address all communications,

EMPLOYEES' COMPETITION, FLORISTS' EXCHANGE,

Government Free Seeds.

The agricultural appropriation bill passed the House this week, substantially as reported. Its provisions include an additional allowance of $40,000 for free seed distribution, granted upon the petition of 225 members of the House. This means a total appropriation of $170,000. Sixty years ago only $1,000 were appropriated by Congress for the purchase of "rare, valuable, and improved seeds, not common to the country, to be distributed for experimental purposes among intelligent gardeners and farmers, with instructions to report their individual successes in the cultivation thereof."

Truly the appropriation has grown commensurate with the importance of the agricultural interests of the country, as these present themselves to the minds of those who have so truly the welfare of the farmer at heart—our generous Congressmen! And the end is not yet.

Relief from this imposition can never be expected so long as the American people return men to Congress who willfully vote for this useless sacrifice of public funds and seedsmen are found ready to carry out the wishes of those who so wantonly squander the people's money.

We beg to acknowledge receipt, from Secretary John Hall, of Rochester, N. Y., of a copy of the Proceedings of the 45th Annual Meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society, held January 24 and 25, 1900. The pamphlet is, as usual, replete with information useful to nurserymen and fruit growers.

A New York Society of Horticulture.

A call signed by Dr. Hexamer, President of the Farmers' Club of the American Institute, Dr. N. L. Britton, Director-in-Chief of the New York Botanical Garden, and James W. Withers, of American Gardening, has been issued, for a meeting to be held in the Museum Building of the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, on Saturday afternoon, April 21 next, at 2:30 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a "New York Society of Horticulture."

Since the demise of the New York Horticultural Society over a decade ago, the metropolis has been practically without any representative horticultural association that welcomed the amateur proper to its ranks. True, the American Institute, which has been struggling faithfully for years to create an interest by the New York public in matters horticultural, recently established a section wholly devoted thereto, and organized flower shows and provided lectures, with a view to stimulating enthusiasm in its work. These, however, can hardly be said to have been great successes, and the fact that the subscribers to the present call are all associated with that section of the Institute, would seem to stamp their previous praiseworthy efforts as failures, or at least no generally satisfactory essays, and indicate that a society formulated on some basis different to any now existing was necessary to the desired end.

The recent rose show has certainly done much to create a renewed interest in horticultural matters among the better class of the citizens of New York, and the promoters of the society now sought to be organized would seem to have selected an opportune time to obtain support to their scheme, before the enthusiasm has entirely subsided.

It is needless to remark that the furtherance of the object in view should receive the hearty co-operation of the trade. Whatever makes for the welfare of horticulture, tends to the individual benefit of every one engaged therein, and is therefore deserving of their assistance. There can be no question that our business in New York and vicinity is suffering from the lack of the advantages possessed by our sister cities of Boston and Philadelphia, in the matter of horticultural societies and suitable accommodation owned by such bodies, for the displays, from time to time, of our products. We have got in the midst of us no less a flower and plant-loving people than is the happy and fortunate possession of neighboring cities. Our wealthy classes are not one whit less public-spirited than those that exist elsewhere. It almost seems that the drawbacks under which we labor, along the lines mentioned, are largely the result of the trade's own inertness, and lack of that spirit of enterprise which is the one great essential to progress. The first city of the empire has been without its annual flower show for some years, mostly owing to the fact that horticulture has no home of its own in our great city, wherein its highest triumphs could be displayed. Yet that has not aroused sufficiently those who should be most vitally interested to the crying need of the hour, and we continue to drift from pillar to post.

It is to be sincerely hoped that the promoters of the "New York Society of Horticulture" will succeed in enlisting for their movement the sympathy and support of public-spirited men and women, backed by the horticultural interests of the greater city, whose enthusiasm shall rear somewhere within our borders, a structure that Horticulture can call her own, worthy of the ennobling and elevating influences on the great public that she exerts, and characteristic of that liberality and interest in the general weal of its citizens, virtues in which New York leads the world.

Pioneer American Nurserymen.

One of the best reviews of the early nursery business is that in the paper read by James Wood, president of the Eastern New York Horticultural Society, at the recent meeting of that association held in New York City. He said:

It is stated that as early as 1660 a number of Huguenots came to Flushing on Long Island, and that by 1687, following the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, the number had become considerable. They introduced the industry of horticulture, for which the town has ever since been famous. It is probable that their success in this industry attracted the attention of William Prince, and led him to establish there the first commercial nursery in America, which made Flushing the original center from which the extended cultivation of fruit in America may be said to have sprung. Prince's Nursery was established in 1737, and continued in the management of the family for over a century. From it the grafted trees for nearly all the original orchards of apples, pears, and cherries of some of the New England States, and all of New York and New Jersey, were obtained. It was called the Linnean Botanic Gardens. When the British took possession of Long Island during the Revolutionary War, Gen. How placed a guard at the nurseries to protect them from injury. The war so destroyed the demand for trees that Mr. Prince sold over 10,000 grafted cherry trees for hoop poles.

It would be interesting to compute, if it were possible, the production of those pioneer trees sent out from Flushing. Rhode Island Greening trees in great vigor and unstinted fruitfulness are still standing upon my own farm in Westchester County, where they were planted more than one hundred years ago. The Fall Pippins, Esopus, Spitzenburgs and Vandeveres, that were their early companions, have long since passed away. Some excellent varieties were sent out from Flushing that have not been generally grown, because they were not profitable for market. A striking example of this is the Golden Pippin, unsurpassed in quality and without an equal for flavor, when at its best, but because the fruit is frequently knotty and ill-formed, it has never been known, so far as I can learn, outside of Westchester County, and all that have been grown there were grown from grafts taken from Flushing stock in my ancestor's orchards.

But Prince's Nurseries did more than grow trees—they trained men. It was the school in which some gained the practical knowledge which qualified them to become very prominent and important in this line of business. Conspicuous among these were Patrick Barry, who, after intelligent employment at Prince's, took payment in nursery stock for a portion of the amount due him, and, uniting with Mr. Ellwanger, established in 1838 that unequaled nursery at Rochester, which has achieved such a world-wide reputation. There were others at Prince's Nurseries who became noted as nurserymen. Nurseries are the active agents by which improved fruits are almost exclusively disseminated. About 1795 the Prince Nurseries were divided, William Prince, the son of the founder, taking the "Linnean Botanic Nursery," and Benjamin Prince "The Old American Nursery." The Bloodgood Nurseries were established at Flushing in 1790. These have had several proprietors in succeeding years, and have had a peculiar reputation, because the pear trees planted about Boston were chiefly furnished from them.

There are no more conspicuous names in the history of American horticulture and pomology than those of Charles and Andrew Jackson Downing, of Newburg. They were the second and the fifth child, respectively, of Samuel Downing, who removed from Cambridge, Mass., to Newburg, near the beginning of this century, and began the nursery business there in 1810. He died in 1822, when these sons succeeded to the business. As the editor of the Horticulturist, Andrew became the recognized leader in American horticulture and pomology, and the father of American landscape gardening. His great ability and charming style as a writer and his enthusiasm for these arts created an interest in the public mind that resulted in the phenomenal development to which we have referred. In this respect his position is entirely unique. Charles gave more practical attention to the nursery business, and also, after his brother's death in 1858, edited editions of "Downing's Fruits and Fruit Trees of America," which first appeared in 1845.

The demand for fruit trees and horticultural plants resulting from the growth of the country and the interest aroused by such writers as A. J. Downing, Jesse Buel, Luther Tucker and J. J. Thomas, was met by numerous nurseries, some of them of large size, which soon sprang into existence. The Hooker Nurseries at Rochester were founded by a farmer proprietor in 1830, and that of Ellwanger & Barry and that of Parsons & Co., at Flushing, in 1838. A. Saul & Co. became the successors to the Downings at Newburg in 1847. T. C. Maxwell & Brothers, at Geneva, and A. Frost & Co., of Rochester, started in 1848. Other establishments, chiefly in the center and western portions of the state, rapidly followed.

American vs. German Red Clover Seed.

A great deal of interest has been aroused of late years by the intense hostility displayed in Europe against American clover seed. This hostility has been especially marked in some parts of Germany and in Austria. In the latter country indeed the State Seed Control Station refuses to give a guaranteed analysis of American clover seed, and every effort is made to prevent its use.

It has been alleged that the American clover is not as hardy as the European plant, and that being more hairy it is more subject to mildew.

Experimenters have claimed that the product of American seed did not equal in quantity that from the European variety. The smaller crop has been attributed in the first place to the inability of the American clover to withstand the Winters in Germany and Austria, and also to its lesser vigor. It has even been claimed that the American seed contained seeds of dangerous weeds, such as dodder; but this charge is so grossly unfair that it has never been pressed.

American seed is, however, much cheaper than European, and the farmers have continued to use it to a considerable extent. Our seed has had a consistent supporter in the person of Dr. F. Nobbe, who has stood almost alone in his defence of American clover seed. It is interesting therefore to learn that another German investigator, Dr. Kirchner, of Leipzig, has found that American clover seed is not to be despised. It is perhaps remarkable that he has had the courage to publish his results and to let them speak for themselves, because the agrarian element is so intensely hostile to any product of American agriculture. For this reason Dr. Kirchner's experiments, published in defiance of this sentiment, mean more than a dozen on the other side.

American. 1895	Kilos	European.	Kilos
1 Cutting May 31,	21,550	June 10,	21,615
2 Cutting July 15,	14,321	Aug. 7,	16,165
			37,780
3 Cutting Aug. 24,	3,110
	38,980

American. 1898	Kilos	Europesn.	Kilos
1 Cutting June 7,	24,600	June 10,	14,300
2 " July 15,	7,290	July 25,	15,180
3 " Sept. 3,	7,520	Sept. 17,	6,580
1899
2 " July 22,	13,200	July 24,	17,420
			36,420
3 Cutting Sept. 11,	11,200
	44,900

1st and 2d Cuttings 33,700 kg.

It will be noticed that the American clover was earlier and could be cut oftener than the European. It also produced a greater weight of green material.

It did not suffer markedly from Winter killing. On the other hand, the experiments of 1898-1899 show that the crop from American seed was much greater the second year than the first, while the yield from the German seed was practically the same in 1899 as in 1898. The chemical composition was nearly the same in both cases.

The American seed is sold at a much lower cost than the German, and is fully as good in regard to purity and germination. Hence it is no wonder that the German farmer continues to buy the American seed in spite of the outcry against it on the part of some German experiment stations.

	American.	German.
1897	$12.50	$12.50
1898	10.00	11.25
1899	10.00	15.00
1900	12.00	17.50
		($19.25 for the best)

BOOKLETS.

HARDY STOCK FOR PLEASURE GROUNDS.—Under this caption Mr. Hiram T. Jones, nurseryman, of Elizabeth, N. J., has issued a booklet, which, although really a retail catalogue, would never be suspected of being such, as, until the very last pages are reached, the book has every appearance of being an edition de luxe on the subject-matter treated. Of the thousands of retail catalogues and other advertising matter designed primarily to attract business we cannot recollect any one its superior, and very few its equal. The clever descriptive word-painting of the various trees, shrubs and other stocks mentioned makes most fascinating reading, while the manner in which the illustrations are inserted is at once novel—for a catalogue—and attractive. As we view it, a land owner, after perusing its chapters, must become so enthused as to immediately make out a substantial order. The type, paper, presswork and binding are all in artistic accord with the writer's conception of the value, dignity and harmony imparted to the home grounds by virtue of an appropriate setting. Great credit, too is due, the printers, the J. Horace McFarland Co., of Harrisburg, Pa., who designed, compiled, illustrated and got up the book. We feel confident Mr. Jones would gladly send the booklet to any fellow-tradesman, and wish many will ask for a copy. We congratulate Mr. Jones on his energy and pluck in getting up such a handsome work, and that it has already proved a decided success we know to be a fact, as that gentleman himself says: "It takes the place of the ordinary descriptive catalogue, and, while rather more expensive, I am pleased to state that the returns are better than for any previous work that I have ever sent out."

We have given this rather lengthy summary of the booklet in the hope that those seeking a well-to-do retail trade will be led into following on in the same lines. Refinement now, more than ever, has much to do with securing and maintaining trade.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

The Floral Exchange, Inc., register new rose "The Queen of Edgely, the pink American Beauty," originated at Edgely, Pa., Fall of 1896. Color light pink, similar to that of Bridesmaid; growth, habit, foliage, height, size and form identical with parent. The buds set more freely and the fragrance is somewhat sweeter.

WM. J. STEWART, Secretary.

The American Carnation Society.

CARNATIONS REGISTERED.

ESTELLE, by Richard Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, Ohio. Bright scarlet, never coming off color, fragrant, form excellent; stem strong and stiff, short at first after lifting, but reaching 12 to 16 inches by December. Size 3 to 3½ inches, in habit exactly the same as Portia; a continuous bloomer.

MRS. BIRD S. COLER, by Henry A. Molatsch, Brooklyn, N. Y. A healthy, strong grower; a continuous bloomer, has a very stiff stem, does not burst, is not subject to stem rot. Color about the same as Portia. Size 2½ to 3 inches. Height 30 inches.

ALBERT M. HERR, Secretary.

Chrysanthemums.

Another important matter: Are your plants to be grown indoors all Summer or outside? There are many who lack facilities for indoor culture. Many can spare a grapery in the Fall to flower the plants in, yet can't afford house room during the Summer months. Before the dreaded disease, commonly known as "rust," made its appearance, outside culture during the Summer months was possible; it is almost useless trying the outdoor system now. Indoors your plants are more under your control, the atmosphere can be kept dry or moist at will; and this is the most important factor in battling with the disease. If the plants be watered during the morning or forenoon, and the house kept dry by night, there will be little need to resort to Bordeaux mixture or any other fungicide. Apart from the question of disease, however, indoor culture is preferable, as giving the best results all through; the foliage is always superior, and I believe on the whole the plants are a less trouble. Any house that has been used for bedding plants, or Winter vegetables, and which will not be needed before the flowering season is over, makes a good place.

Different pests may prove troublesome during the Summer months, but a few tobacco stems thrown around every now and then will keep them in check.

Attention will have to be given very frequently during the Summer months to tying and disbudding; neglect in this respect is the cause of many failures.

The taking of the bud is perhaps the most momentous question of all, and so long as new varieties are being introduced it will remain an unsolved one. I don't think any hard and fast rule can be laid down regarding bud taking. Speaking generally, however, I should say that all varieties inclined to be thin should be taken on the crown bud, and varieties that are the more compact should be taken on the terminal bud. There are types that do well on either bud, and it is a matter of taste which you desire to select. The crown bud invariably gives larger blooms, but not always of so good form. Most of the Chinese varieties are best on the terminals, the flowers being more globular and incurving. In fact, many make a point of taking all incurved varieties on the terminal bud.

Concerning color most of the white and yellow varieties are very little influenced by either bud in this respect, but all pink varieties (Mrs. E. G. Hill perhaps excepted) give better color on the late bud. In fact, Viviand-Morel and several others come almost white if taken on the early bud, although the color is usually best on the terminal bud. Again, flowers taken on the crown bud are invariably bare of foliage at the neck, but the stem in most cases is stronger. Crown buds require a higher temperature than terminals, and a much longer time to develop. Flowers taken on the crown bud show a larger percentage of rough blooms. The taking of crown buds may commence about August 25, and for terminals about the second week of September. It is a great mistake to commence the taking of buds too early; rough blooms are invariably the result. Many think that by taking the buds early they will have early flowers; this also is a delusion. I have taken buds as early as August 20, and buds taken September 15 were in flower before them.

Feeding—This is looked upon by many, in fact by nearly all, as the one great necessity in procuring exhibition blooms. "What do you feed with?" is the all-absorbing question. It is important, of course it is, but it is usually overdone. Too rich a compost to begin with and early feeding are the cause of more sickly looking plants than poverty. If your soil contained the usual amount of constituents the plants ought to get along without any other assistance until the middle or end of July. Be sure the pots are full of roots first before you stagnate the soil with chemicals. Be on your guard, however; do not have the plants showing visible signs of weakness before you stimulate them. Plants can stand more feeding after the buds are taken, especially after terminals are taken. Apply any of the ordinary liquid manures, such as chicken or sheep manure, that has been steeped in a tank or barrel, or the washings from the cow or horse stable; dilute freely and graduate the dose; do not stick to one form all the time, alternate every week.

After the buds are taken use some nitrate of soda, about a 3-inch potful to 50 gallons of water; give this about once a week. Just before the flowers show color use liquid sulphate of ammonia—about the same quantity as advised for nitrate of soda.

When the flowers begin to show color feeding should be stopped, especially with all dark varieties, and Mrs. H. Weeks. Some are benefited by small applications of sulphate of ammonia until they are nearly full out.

I do not think that it is necessary for me to give a selection of varieties to be grown, cultivators can find such information in the wealth of catalogues that they receive gratis every year.

I should have liked to have said something regarding bench culture, also the culture and training of specimen plants also a few things regarding staging, but time fails me. The cultivation of the chrysanthemum is a most interesting, absorbing and delightful study. If my remarks be the means of stimulating any or renewing fresh interest then I will feel satisfied that my efforts have not been in vain.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—W. J. Hasselman has begun to rebuild and will be in shape for Fall business. The fire fiend went right through the center of the plant, completely cutting off the heating apparatus. All will be remodelled.

Anthony Wiegand & Son are in fine shape for Easter, and from present indications anticipate a banner business.

H. W. Rieman and Bertermann Bros. are making big preparations. A fine batch of Rieman's prize winning carnations and roses will be just right.

John Heidenrich anticipates a big demand. He has a heavy market trade. He grows perennials extensively and finds they are profitable plants for Summer cutting, when patrons want a big armful of cut flowers for little money.

COLUMBUS, O.—Albert Knopp, of the Franklin Park Floral Co., is very sanguine on the Easter outlook. Up to the present not a flower has gone to waste. Maybe it was because stock was even better than usual.

Underwood Bros. intend building after the Spring rush. Business has never been better funeral work especially. Plant trade is steady and satisfactory.

Maurice Evans & Son have a grand crop of lilies and roses, which from present indications will be snapped up at Easter.

CLEVELAND, O.—The flower market is ablaze with bloom. One of the brightest stands is that of Aug. Schmitt, who has a pretty lot of flowering plants and cut flowers supplied from his houses at Glenville.

H. A. Hart has his houses crowded with an enviable stock of lilies, hydrangeas and pot grown roses—stocky plants, clean and just right for Easter.

A. Graham & Son are well to the front with a full line of stock in excellent shape—the result of much care and continual watching of late.

Gordon Gray and F. W. Zicchmann carry heavy stocks for the stores, so there will be no lack of good material this Easter.

Isaac Kennedy, who recently took charge of the J. M. Gasser Greenhouses at Rocky River, arrived from the Quaker City too late to make an Easter showing. His fame as a rose grower and crack bowler preceded him. The boys have had the pleasure of seeing his curves on the alleys and vote him all right. Neither will there be any flies on the roses, or black spot either, if Isaac can help it.

CINCINNATI, O.—J. A. Peterson has a lavender sport from the double violet Swanley White that promises to create as big a sensation as did the single kind Princess of Wales grown by him the past two years. The new Butterfly Cyclamen papilio is a charming species, and was the center of attraction during the visit of the craft at the recent house warming.

ner and other hybrid roses just right for Easter—bushy stock, well budded, in 5 and 6-inch pots. They carry this stock in four batches, running into June, so as not to overstock the market. Not much danger of doing such a thing in Chicago or in our big Eastern cities.

Good Things at Richmond, Ind.

I recently paid a visit to the rose at E. G. Hill & Co.'s. Among the numerous seedlings Sunrise is the finest of the collection—most appropriately named, the opposite to Sunset, whose glow could be seen in "Golden Gate." This latter rose does finely here, throwing shoots and buds similar to those of Kaiserin, and full of color. Paul's new Pink Rambler, Psyche, is a pretty rose and will be very popular. One of the best French introductions is a hybrid tea—a splendid grower, every strong shoot produces a bud. The bloom is the size of American Beauty, and color that of Marie Baumann. This is the most promising rose here up to date. Quite a novelty is seen in a hybrid Kaiserin × Wichuraiana, but whether of any value will be decided later. Young roses are in excellent shape and going out at a lively gait.

Among carnations the yellow variety Ophir and a grand scarlet should, according to the present standard, score 101 points, being one point better than the best. Olympia, J. Whitcomb Riley, Leslie Paul and Ethel Crocker are at their best for Easter. Among the batch of trial seedlings are three yellows from Sievers, that are very promising. From the numerous yellows it seems possible one or two really fine things may be sent out soon.

In seedling geraniums are a few extra good ones. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Lord Roberts, Oom Paul, President Steyn and President Dewey, are of the Mirande type, striped and blotched, names being substituted in place of numbers in trial beds to save confusion. There is a big run on geraniums and cannas, these promising to be as popular this season as ever.

Additional houses will be built this Spring. Mr. Hill has not yet decided on what plan. If very long and high a trolley may be introduced, to save time and labor in working them.

OUR PRIZE COMPETITION.

What I Learned During My First Two Years in the Florist's Business.

Prize Paper by Jas. A. Lake, Concord, N. H.

What I learned during my first two years was perhaps different from what the average American boy learns, but the present sketch may be useful as affording an idea of how a boy on the other side of the water is taken in hand and trained to make a good workman:

I first went to work, at about the age of fifteen, for a large company in the Channel Islands, that besides growing flowers cultivated for the London markets large quantities of fruits and vegetables, such as grapes, melons, peaches, strawberries, tomatoes, beans, peas, potatoes, cucumbers, etc., all under glass. The first day I was put with one of the gardeners to help fasten up wires on which to train the tomato plants; these, as well as potatoes, beans, peas, strawberries, chrysanthemums, etc., being grown, not in benches, but in the ground on a level, or a little lower than the walks, and were termed "ground crops." I was then taught to always keep the walks clean and tidy, also the packing shed, of which there was one to every house; to wash and pack away the pots, according to their various sizes.

Then I learned how to use the hose without knocking everything to pieces, and to water the ground without wetting the foliage of the plants too much. I was also shown how to ventilate the houses according to the wind, and from the bottom if foggy or damp. I also had to help in the fumigating in the evening for the destruction of insects.

Then I learned the right way to prune and tie up the plants, also to pick the fruit with the stems on (without using a knife), to paper the baskets for the packers to pack them; then, when packed, I had to put on more paper and place the baskets ready to be shipped to London and other cities. After I had learned this thoroughly I was then taught the way to pack the baskets.

About March or April, when the Winter crops came out of the ground, I learned how a house was prepared for growing two Summer crops at the same time: First, the house was trenched right through at a depth of from 4 to 6 feet, then the dressing was dug in; sometimes, to save labor, it was put in while trenching. Then beans were sown in rows, and as soon as they were showing above ground the tomato plants were planted by the side of each row.

Also in the early Spring I began to learn (haven't finished yet) the way to lay out and cut out beds for bedding out plants, planting out of shrubberies, making of vine borders, etc. Then came the planting, hoeing and weeding of the chrysanthemums outside, which were to be lifted in the Fall, to take the place of the tomatoes inside. After the chrysanthemums were planted inside came the staking, tying up, disbudding, feeding, and cutting and packing the flowers for shipment.

There was also the preparing of the ground in the other houses for Winter crops, as well as the wheeling out of the old soil from the benches, and the filling of them with new. Also in the Fall and early Winter I had to help prepare the different stacks of soil, for the different crops of vegetables and flowers, and the mixing of stable manure with seaweed, bone dust, etc., for dressing. So passed my first year.

During my second year I was given an opportunity to be more among the flowers, and being with a man who was as willing to teach as I was to learn (and possibly more so) I soon learned how to prick off and pot, bedding plants, etc.; also the preparing of the soil for different hot house and greenhouse plants, the kinds and quantities of different ingredients to use. Then I learned the way to syringe the different plants for cut flowers without giving too much water at the roots, as well as the tying and pruning of them. I also learned how to make cuttings, to label and date everything put into the propagating bed, and to keep it always tidy and in order. When the others were busy in the vineries, or when we were not very busy, I had to go and help with the melons—tying down, pruning, netting and inoculating; or on the vines, tying in the shoots after nipping them off to one bunch of grapes on each, taking out altogether those which had none, thinning the grapes in some houses which were just coming on and cutting and packing in others, where they were ripe. Then when the crop was all cut came the taking down of the canes, the cutting off of all the shoots to within one eye, the peeling and painting of the canes to destroy insects, and the fastening up of the canes again, except in houses where a "ground crop" was to be grown, when the vines were pulled outside through arches or holes in the wall, and laid along the border until it was desired to force them again.

I learned a little of the growing of bulbs for the market, also about the forcing of them for Winter and Spring blooms, as well as a very little of the culture of palms and ferns.

During this year I also had to go with the fireman on his rounds to the boilers (of which there were a great variety, but different to any I have seen in America); and so learned the way to run the fires and to clean and clinker them.

It will be seen by this sketch that I learned more of other duties than I did of actual florist work in my first two years; but as boys then with most of these companies had to make an agreement that they would stay for five years, they (the boys) were generally given some practice on the hardier things before being put to work among the flowers; and as I claim to be a landscape and kitchen gardener, as well as a florist, I do not regret the experience.

BRIEFS FOR BUSY FLORISTS.

ROSES—With the coming of Spring weather mildew is apt to be very troublesome, unless great care be exercised both in the ventilating and firing. Give all the air possible on bright days, but avoid having a current rushing through the house when the wind is cold by opening only the ventilators on one side.

YOUNG CARNATION PLANTS should be pinched back if necessary, and if they are not yet in frames, or in some sheltered place outdoors, they should go there at once, so as to become hardened off gradually before being planted in the field. The land where they are to be planted should be worked over as soon as dry enough; even though the manure was plowed in last Fall, another plowing will greatly benefit it. Should the soil be at all lumpy use the harrow to thoroughly break it up. Plant out as soon as conditions will permit, so that the young plants can get a good start before the warm weather arrives. Early planting and early lifting in the Fall generally give the best results. Some shade should be given to the houses now, where flowers are being cut from—just enough to break the full force of the sun.

CYTISUS AND ACACIAS can be put at the end of a cool house after through flowering, where they may remain several weeks without injury. Young stock should be potted along, using a coarse, well-enriched soil. Cut any straggling shoots back into shape and water very sparingly until new growth commences. A cool house is the best place for the plants, though they should have full sunlight.

AZALEAS that are to be kept over till another year should receive some attention as soon as the flowers begin to fade. If the plants are of last Fall's importation, they are probably in very small pots, according to their size, and should be now repotted. Use a light, fibrous loam, with a good proportion of either leaf mould or peat intermixed. Do not give the plants very large shifts—one 1½ or 2-inch larger pot is all that is necessary. Pot as firm as possible, using a rammer to pack the soil firmly all around the ball. If the plants are at all unshapely cut them in where it is needed, and remove all flowers before seed pods form. After potting water thoroughly to settle the soil, after which care must be taken not to over-water, as but little will be required until growth starts. A light syringing, however, should be given daily.

occasion some disappointment to those ordering a stock from growers either in this country or from abroad, as the plant most commonly grown is not plumosus, but plumosus nanus. The differences between the two are great. We will say that A. plumosus grows 35 feet high; if nanus grows 25 feet, then surely it is entitled to the name indicating its comparatively dwarf habit. In A. p. nanus the sprays are much smaller than in A. plumosus. A. p. nanus is suitable for growing as a pot plant, while A. plumosus is not. The latter makes no undergrowth to speak of, while in nanus this is one of its distinctive features. A. plumosus does not produce underground stems, while nanus does so frequently. Strings of plumosus are naked sometimes for several feet nearest the bed; in nanus they are clothed to the ground. Under exactly the same conditions A. plumosus will grow a good many feet higher than A. p. nanus.

In making room for bedding material many things will succeed just as well in a frame as in a cool greenhouse. Among them are Phlox Drummondii, antirrhinums, pentstemons, asters in boxes, and all herbaceous perennials sufficiently far advanced from the seedling stage. For slightly more tender subjects shallow-made hotbeds may be brought into requisition. G. W. O.

Exhibitions.

The preliminary list of premiums, offered by the Horticultural Society of Chicago, to be awarded at the annual Fall exhibition, November 6-10 inclusive, has been issued. Prizes are offered for 131 classes, including cups and medals. The schedule states that a suitable sum of money will be set aside, to be given in premiums for the exhibition of "interesting novelties" pertaining to plant life that may prove attractive to the public. This may include "well-grown specimens of some of the most commonly known flowers."

Germany is to have a show at Frankfort-on-Main, June 23, 24 and 25 next, devoted solely to "floral art." The exhibition will cover the entire area of the retail florists' industry, such as the decorations of salons and apartments, the flowers and greenery necessary in carrying out different descriptions of decoration, the baskets, china, glass and other objects used in the work being of German origin. When shall we have a retailers' exhibition in America?

Club News.

S. A. F. matters again occupied the attention of the members Monday evening. A goodly attendance was present, with President O'Mara in the chair. For the benefit of the Sporting Committee it was announced that Messrs. A. H. Hews & Co., Cambridge, Mass., would allow a selection of any piece of pottery named in the firm's catalogue as a bowling trophy. This generous offer was received with applause.

Messrs. Henry Hentz, Jr., Henry Hurrell, L. J. Kreshover, A. H. Langjahr, J. C. Vaughan, Chas. E. Schwake and C. B. Knickman were elected to membership.

It was decided that the prize of $100, to be given to the society winning the largest number of premiums at the forthcoming horticultural exhibition, should take the form of a cash premium.

A meeting of the Ways and Means Committee was intimated for Monday evening, April 23.

A committee on reinstatement was appointed to consider the cases of those members who had dropped out, with a view to their rejoining the club.

The Printing and Advertising Committee reported gratifying success as regards the securing of advertisements for the Souvenir Book now in preparation. Its advantages as a permanent advertising medium are being readily grasped by the wideawake men in the trade. Treasurer Weathered will supply all information as to rates, etc.

Manager John P. Cleary is having a circular prepared on which will be furnished a diagram of the exhibition hall for the trade exhibit, also charges for space, etc. He is much elated over the number of entries already received. Intending exhibitors should make early applications for space.

The Market.

This is the one week in the year when it may be said that plants hold full sway in the market, and that cut flowers are for the time being pushed to one side. Of course, the plant trade is at all times a large factor in florist circles, and the week preceding Easter is always the banner week for them; but this year, to such an extent has this branch grown we feel safe in saying that the cut flower trade was never so quiet during a corresponding week, nor the plant business ever so good.

The lateness of Easter this year has been a great benefit to the growers of Easter lilies. With the poor percentage of good bulbs among the Harrisii the flowers of that variety are very scarce, compared to what they would have been if all the bulbs planted had proved good. It is believed, however, that fully 50 per cent. of Bermuda bulbs have turned out unsatisfactory. It has been easy to have the longiflorum on time, and at this writing (Thursday) it looks as though these flowers would be very plentiful. Heavy shipments have been received from neighboring states, and the very best can be bought at $1.50 per dozen, either cut or in the pots.

As we said before the cut flower trade has been very quiet and but little change has been noted in prices. Some pickled stock has already appeared, and we may say right here that there is no surer way of killing the business in cut flowers for holidays than to keep the blooms a few days and send them to market looking tired and weary. There is no likelihood of there being any shortage in flowers, though carnations are being eagerly bought at the Cut Flower Exchange, 34th street, every morning by dealers. This would indicate a possible short supply of these, but all other stock is in abundance.

To give an idea of what flowers may be had in this city, and the probable prices which will be asked for them, we enumerate the following: In roses, Beauty, 50c. for the top down to 10c. for shorts; Brunner, about the same; Gen. Jacq., Rothschild, and President Carnot, from 25c. down; Bride and Bridesmaid, from $3 to $20 per 100, according to quality; Liberty, 40c. each; carnations, ordinary, $4 to $5 per 100; fancies and novelties, $6 to $15 per 100; lily of the valley, $3 to $4; hyacinths, $3 to $4; narcissus and tulips, all varieties, $4; lilies, $10 and $12.50 per 100; callas the same price; violets, 50c. to $1; sweet peas, $1.50 to $2.50; snapdragon, 50c. and 75c. per dozen; lilac the same figure; freesias, 10c. per dozen. Smilax will be rather scarce, and the best strings will realize 25c. each; cowslips, $2.50 per 100; daisies, $2.

Among the Retailers.

A record-breaking Easter is expected, and storekeepers have stocked up with plants as they never did before. There will be little attention given to cut flowers until late Saturday evening, as the plant trade has become the much more important at this date. Some beautiful window displays are being made, and we hope next week to favor our readers with descriptions of a few of the most prominent ones.

C. Thorley has an extra store engaged for the occasion, and lilies in yellow-painted pots with a narrow yellow ribbon tied on the stems is one of the new features to be seen.

J. H. Small & Sons have their store filled with choice material, some especially fine acacias being among the prettiest.

J. Fleischman had a vase of the Pink American Beauty rose on exhibition one day this week. This rose is finding many admirers among the public, and Mr. Fleischman expects to handle the whole output this year. The rose is named the Queen of Edgely.

Fritz Dressel has a choice display of flowering plants in the Siegel Cooper store. Bloomingdale Bros., W. Burnham, manager, also have made elaborate preparations.

Mrs. Warrendorf, retail florist of Madison avenue, startled the craft last Saturday by putting an automobile into service. This is the first use of the florist's electric delivery wagon in this city, though we understand several prominent retailers have been investigating the horseless carriage for some time, and we should not be surprised to see several in use in the near future.

Jottings.

On Wednesday afternoon the American Institute held an Easter flower show in their rooms in the Berkeley Lyceum Building. Although over $300 in prizes were offered the number of exhibits was small, the fact of the show being held so near Easter no doubt being responsible for this.

At 3 p. m. a meeting was held, and Samuel Henshaw, Dr. Britton and C. L. Allen spoke on Easter flowers and horticultural topics in general, Dr. Britton stating that he felt safe in saying that the Bronx Botanical Society's educational work was developing more direct results in the cultivation of plants than in the study of botany.

Among the exhibits were a half dozen vases of carnations from G. M. Hay, Stamford, Conn.; a bunch of violets from G. T. Schunemann, and a collection of flowering plants from H. A. Siebrecht & Son, including rhododendrons and pot roses.

At the club meeting on Monday night the program supplied by the entertainment committee was much too short.

One prominent grower of Easter stock had 37,000 pots of lilies all ready on time.

Julius Roehrs has some very fine herbaceous calceolarias in for Easter.

Many new stores have sprung up in different parts of the city and will disappear just as suddenly after the Easter rush is over.

Cleary & Co. held a two days' sale of Japanese plants this week.

Wm. Elliott & Sons held sales, as usual, on Tuesday and Friday.

We hear of solicitors for a "Florists and Gardeners' Mutual Benefit Association," that are calling upon the trade (the florist's supply men particularly), soliciting advertisements for a journal which they state is to appear some time in June. They also say that a picnic of members will be held at that time. So far as we know there is no such society, and intending advertisers will do well to investigate thoroughly any such scheme put before them.

Word has been received from George Heitmüller, formerly of Flatbush, and now at his home in Koenigsbrück, near Dresden, Saxony, that owing to a painful accident sustained through a rusty wire having pierced his hand, his return to this country will be delayed for some time.

Visitors this week were: C. Fleming, Bridgeport, Conn.; John N. Champion, New Haven, Conn.; J. D. Shaw, Holyoke, Mass., and Peter Devoy, Poughkeepsie, New York.

Chicago.

Common Council Flower Show.

This is an off year, hence the splurge among the politicians was not so pronounced, in the way of flowers, as last year; but occurring on Monday night of Easter week the demand proved a great factor in reducing stock. Beauty, especially short-stemmed flowers for made-up work and longer for clusters of roses, had the call. The conspicuous pieces were a 7-foot floral Indian in war equipment, Japanese urn filled with roses, an American flag with legend, "Billy, no butterfly on you; tried and true, that's you;" a harp of roses and green, a big bank of flowers with the election majority in figures, a horseshoe, a floral squash, a rose shield, a Mason's trowel, an elephant marked G. O. P., floral ships, shields, a floral shovel, besides many baskets, clusters of roses, etc.

The Easter Outlook.

Plenty of sun and some warm days are responsible for the increased cut, particularly of roses. Complaints are already heard of these blooms being over kept, and carnations suspiciously sleepy. All flowers will be in fair supply, save carnations, which are still short of the demand. The weather is favorable to lilies, and these will be in good supply, although probably all will easily be disposed of. Tulips are in good condition, and lots of them; also narcissus, the southern Illinois stock of which is just coming in. Some good Romans are yet to be seen, but not so many Dutch hyacinths as in other years. Violets are an uncertain quantity; but may come in later.

All well-flowered pot plants will sell well. A few Crimson Ramblers are seen, but none are fancy grown. A considerable quantity of Beauty have been potted up, but good hybrids are very scarce. A few of the old Hermosa are still around. There are some pelargoniums, and bulbous pot plants are fairly plentiful. A few heaths are also in evidence.

Horticultural Society's Schedule for 1900.

The preliminary list of premiums for the Fall show, to be held November 6 to 10 inclusive, is now out. Cash premiums amounting to some $2,650 are offered. There are some changes from the lists of other years. For example, the international chrysanthemum competition has been discontinued. The most important additions are in floral displays—finest display by any retail florist, plants, flowers, floral arrangements and the usual accessories admissible; judging to be done each day, and the premiums to be awarded to those exhibits scoring the highest total of points—first prize, $100; second, $70. Floral arrangements open to all; table decorations—first, a sterling silver service, valued at $125; second, cut glass florist's vases, valued at $90; third, cash $60; fourth, cash $40. Floral displays—finest display by any grower, cut flowers and cut foliage admissible; quality, variety and quantity to be considered; first, $40; second, $25.

These floral arrangements and floral displays are to encourage this class of exhibits, heretofore they have been entered mainly not for competition. Copies of the premium list may be had by addressing the secretary, W. N. Rudd, 185 Dearborn street.

Club Meeting.

The regular club meeting on the 6th was rather thinly attended, owing to the members being busy. Charles H. Fisk was elected a member. A. McAdam and others spoke on the lack of fine plants in this market for Easter, nothing better being obtainable than the varieties and styles that had been grown for years. Even azaleas this year were none too plentiful. The opinion was reiterated that there is a good opening for this kind of florists' work in this city.

Among Growers.

A run out to Emil Buettner, at Park Ridge, showed, as usual, a grand lot of flowers for Easter. He has 5,000 longiflorum lilies in fine shape, most of them in just right. A couple of hundred pot plants, grown especially for Wienhoeber, were very good, with from six to ten flowers on a plant. In roses Beauty have done grandly all Winter; there will, however, be no big cut, as was the case last year. Bride and Bridesmaid will be well in. Carnation Flora Hill is a sheet of white. Triumph and Daybreak are off crop, but later, until July, will be grand again. Jubilee, although so fine when it is good, will have to go, Crane and America taking its place. Melba is one of the best sellers, even if it has a weak stem. Wellesley is no good. Bradt does fine. The Marquis will be well tried next year, also Morning Glory. White Cloud does well; Mary Wood does not produce enough flowers to be quite satisfactory.

Mr. Buettner will build two more houses, each 150 feet, for carnations for next year. A batch of 10,000 tulips, ready for Easter, was a grand sight. The sorts mostly grown are: Cottage Maid, La Reine, now white; Murillo, Tournesol and Yellow Prince. He grew this year 65,000 and has done well with them; also 60,000 valley from best pips. But he does not claim they are money makers, although his stock is always good. Mr. Buettner uses sheep manure, with some chemicals, exclusively as a base for his manure water, and considers it more efficacious and far less offensive than when the liquid is made from cow manure.

Around Town.

Lincoln Park is to have a rose garden.

Ess.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

The retail stores in this city have made great preparations for Easter, and a large business is expected, especially in plants. The leading department stores also are in the plant business extensively, and immense quantities of lilies have been imported from Philadelphia, to help out the home grown stock.

J. V. Phillips has opened an annex, a few doors from his store, and has it filled with a choice line of stock. J. Weir has both his stores filled to overflowing, as also has James Mallon's Sons. C. Applegate, Putnam avenue, had his store fitted up with extra staging, and all filled with tastily trimmed plants early in the week. Keenan Bros., Myrtle avenue, have both their store and greenhouses nicely arranged with flowering plants, as also has W. C. Krick, on Broadway.

This Easter has brought out no novelties in the way of plants, the kinds offered comprising lilies, spiræas, hydrangeas, boronias, bottle brush, acacia, cytisus, violets, pansies, rhododendrons, roses, hyacinths and other bulbous stock.

The wholesale men—A. Langjahr and Hicks & Crawbuck—each are handling plenty of flowers, and supply the major portion of the retail trade.

OBITUARY.

A. Edward Risser.

Albert Edward Risser, of Lima, O., died at his home April 3, death resulting from apoplexy. The deceased was the second son of the late Henry Risser, who was one of Allen County's most prosperous pioneer Germans. He succeeded his father in charge of the Risser gardens and greenhouses, at the family home on the Marion Road, and was filling the responsible position with credit when stricken with the fatal disease. He was born in Lima and reached the age of 29 years. He was married in February, 1899, and his young wife survives him.

Henry Young.

Henry Young, of Lynn, Mass., died at his home, April 5, at the age of 75 years. He was born in Chatham, but had resided in Lynn many years. He was a member of Bay State Lodge, I. O. O. F., Myrtle Rebekah Lodge and of Mount Carmel Lodge, F. and A. M. He leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters.

Trade Rather Quiet—Easter Supply Short.

Business in the retail way has been rather quiet the past week, with the exception of some big store openings and a few lucky large funeral orders. Still, there has been no waste of stock worth talking about. Roses are now quite plentiful, at 4c. to 6c., which price is not bad for this season of the year. Carnations are on the scarce side; though receipts are quite liberal the demand keeps them cleaned up. They are selling at from 2c. to 4c. Violets are still abundant. Keuhn is receiving some choice tulips that bring 6c., the general run fetching about 3c. Some good Beauty are in, that sell at $2 to $4 per dozen. Valley and other bulbous stock is plentiful, at 3c. Very few Harrisii are in the market; price, 12½c. Cut blooms of the latter will probably be in fair supply, while pot plants are certain to be very scarce. The inquiry for them at present is strong. Some who have a retail trade and no lilies are offering almost any price for them—as high as 25c. per bloom and bud, with none on the market as far as the writer knows.

We are still inclined to think the supply at Easter will be short, both in cut stock and plants, for at present there is no surplus, and with the Easter call the supply would be quite insufficient.

Notes.

A big department store is out with a flaring advertisement of 5,000 plants for Easter week, at wholesale prices. This is the same concern that has had several of these sales, and it seems as if it proposes to keep them up. The firm offers plants worth $4 for $1.98.

The weather, which up to the 10th had been Spring like, suddenly changed into rain, sleet and snow—quite unusual here at this time of the year. The thermometer, however, is not low, so we do not expect any bad results. A freeze would do great damage now, as a large lot of garden truck is out, and peaches are about to bloom.

Joe. Rolker passed through the city last week. C. C. S.

Cincinnati.

Trade Notes.

Business is reported good. Carnations have been unusually scarce, and prices have held up well, 2c. to 3c. being the general price. Roses have been in better supply, and the demand has been good, 4c. to 7c. taking the most of them. Bulbous stock has been a little scarce the past week. Cincinnati will be well supplied in that line for Easter, and it will be first-class stock also.

Easter Prospects.

The prospect for a large Easter business has never been better; orders are coming in very fast. As usual, in carnations we find the hitch. They will be off crop. Not only is this the case here, but it seems to be the general report. There will be a better supply of red and pink than of white. It is bad for all of us that this popular flower is off crop at the present time, because there is no period when it is more in demand. In roses there is much better news, and we expect to fill all orders with first-class stock.

As usual, there will be a large supply of bulbous stock, with the exception of Harrisii, of which there are none too many around; and also Von Sion. What there will be of the last-named flower are fine, and will sell readily at 4c.

Weekly Payments by Commission Men.

I notice in the trade papers that Kennicott Bros. Co., of Chicago, have adopted the plan of paying growers weekly, in place of monthly, as is mostly done in Chicago by the commission men. The weekly plan is a good one, not only to the commission man but also to the grower. The advantages are obvious; the grower does not have to wait for 30 days, but gets his money every Monday morning; and there are a good many growers who think enough of this one advantage to ship their goods to a house employing this method. The commission man finds that there is not so much liability to mistake in the weekly plan, accounts are not so large, and it is much easier to pay a small amount than a large one. I am glad to say that Cincinnati commission men have always carried out this method, and find that it works most satisfactorily to all concerned. I wish to congratulate the Chicago gentlemen on their good judgment.

Market News.

The usual quiet before the holiday rush prevailed the past week, but was not felt as much as formerly, on account of the amount of funeral work that has been going on. The supply of flowers has been light, but so has the demand, except for stock suitable for funeral work. It looks, at present writing (Wednesday), as if a few of the growers were at the old-time game of "holding back."

Beauty roses are now plentiful, with a light demand, and they range in price from $6 to $25 a 100, which probably be the best figure for the remainder of the week. Brunner, too, are in good supply, and about the same prices will control their sale as those quoted on American Beauty. Jacqueminot are a little more plentiful, but still do very well at figures ranging from $8 to $20 a 100. Bride, Bridesmaid and Meteor are plentiful, and realize from $3 to $12.50, extras going to $16 a 100.

Carnations continue scarce, but it would be no surprise if they were in good supply by Saturday. The continued scarcity has had the desired effect on prices, which have gradually soared this week. Finest grades of Scott, white, Daybreak, red, etc., all of which, except white and Daybreak, brought $3 a 100 on Monday, were up to $3.50 per 100 on Wednesday, with prospects of going higher. White and Daybreak of finest quality were bringing $4 per 100.

Bulbous stock is very plentiful and will continue so the remainder of the week. Lilies are now in good supply, with no very heavy demand, and fetch $1.50 per dozen flowers. Valley is plentiful, at usual prices—$2 to $4 per 100. Mignonette, too, is in good supply, at prices ranging from $1.50 to $4 per 100.

Violets are now running much smaller and of a poorer color. Princess of Wales is about played out with all the growers in this vicinity.

Wm. W. Tailby had a white seedling carnation at the market on Wednesday—a large, full flower, measuring slightly over 4 inches in diameter; fairly fragrant and with a good stem, but poor calyx.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

A vegetable exhibition was held at Horticultural Hall on Saturday. A small exhibit of fine orchid blooms was made by James E. Rothwell, and Mrs. E. M. Gill had a collection of seasonable flowers.

At a meeting of the society five new members were elected. Clarence H. Clark, president of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, Pa., and Albert Viger, president of the National Society of Horticulture of France, Paris, were elected honorary members, and Col. G. B. Brackett, Pomologist to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, and Prof. Carl Hansen, Copenhagen, Denmark, were elected corresponding members.

The Flower Committee awarded a silver medal to David Monteith, of Dedham, for his seedling carnation, which Mr. Monteith had named Beulah, in honor of his daughter. It is a seedling from Daybreak × Scott, retaining almost intact the Scott color, but being a larger, fuller flower, fragrant, and a strong grower.

Jottings.

William F. Malloy, for many years salesman for E. M. Wood & Co., Natick, Mass., is at Galvin's Conservatories, Easter week.

Sam'l. Lipman, for years in business about Boston, is at Norton Bros.' Hotel Berkeley store for Easter week. Mr. Lipman has just returned from Hot Springs, whither he had gone for his health, which is now much improved. F. J. N.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The Dutchess County Horticultural Society held a very interesting meeting Wednesday, April 4. It was found that already $370 for special prizes in connection with the coming flower show had been secured. Several new members were elected, including honorary members. The schedule for the autumn show was submitted and approved, and ordered printed; and the dates fixed for the exhibition are November 7, 8 and 9.

Pittsburg.

Market Conditions.

Trade did not change much the past week, being rather a little dull, excepting the day before Palm Sunday, which was a fairly lively one. Stock was rather plentiful; even lilies appeared to be more abundant than ever. Prices are yet unchanged, but are now being advanced.

Last Saturday was the first nice day for the plantsmen to handle stock outdoors, and to date it was the only day, as the thermometer, April 10, again dropped as low as 18 degrees, the weather all day being raw.

Easter prospects look very rosy; prices will hardly advance very much, and it seems there will be enough stock for the call. Lilies are in great demand, and are quoted at about 18c. for Easter; at retail will bring about $4 per dozen. Roses will not be scarce, from $2.50 to $4 is being asked for retail orders; good Beauty, about 75c., wholesale; carnations, from $2 upward. Other stock remains about the same as usual.

The firm of A. M. & J. B. Murdoch was dissolved on April 1. James B. Murdoch continues the business at 510 Smithfield street, taking the stock and assets of the firm. A. M. Murdoch is carrying on the florist business at the Fifth avenue store.

Oceanic, N. J.

A very well attended meeting of the Monmouth County Horticultural Society was held recently in Red Men's Hall, President Kettel in the chair. Fred. Nielson was nominated and Mrs. V. R. Legier was elected to membership. Dr. W. T. Wittmore, DeWitt Williams and N. Butterbach were appointed to have the society incorporated at once. The treasurer was instructed to take some stock in the State Mutual Building and Loan Association. Dr. Wittmore delivered one of his speeches. And here it may be said that this society is very fortunate in having as members such men as Dr. Wittmore, Rev. Dr. Kneip, Prof. Walling, De Witt Williams, S. S. Barkuloo and many others. The president read a splendid paper on adiantum culture, which was very instructive.

The premium schedules for the grand horticultural exhibition in connection with the S. A. F. Convention in August next were distributed to the members.

Easter Preparations.

The weather has been unseasonably bleak of late, with outdoor growths behind the average in development. It portends warmer, however, and which condition only seems needed to insure a good Easter business—a record breaker here, undoubtedly. The later store openings helped trade somewhat the first days of this week, with a lull now on.

A hasty glance at some of the leading dealers' places not noticed last week showed Palmer & Son in active preparations. Their Easter stock will be almost exclusively of their own production. Roses promise to be abundant, with violets too scarce and weak of quality to be pleasing. Their well-known high grade carnations will be in in but moderate quantity, but will bring high prices.

Lilium Harrisii are nicely timed and of enticing appearance—cool growa. With superbly done azaleas and Brunner and Laing roses in pots, an attractive showing will be made. A tri-arch supporting vases of flowers and plants, and a 5-foot standing galax cross garland decorated, will show effective as a window display. This firm will supply the novel feature of automobile delivery of Easter stock.

S. A. Anderson shows very healthy-looking Easter lilies; also some pretty ericas. He inclines this year to give more attention than before to plant trade, comparatively. Several pairs of extra large Rambler roses are here seen. These, and some rhododendrons of a pleasing and rather novel lavender tint, we are informed, were grown by the Lakeview Rose Garden, of Jamestown. A nice little novelty here seen are silvered jardinieres for holding 2½ and 4-inch pots, the which combine with small fern plants to good effect. His window display includes a 4-foot slanted galax cross, festooned with Harrisii lilies.

Adams has a superb Van der Cruyssen azalea as a window center piece. He is prepared for and expects a nice business. He issued a handsome card souvenir.

W. F. Kasting, the wholesaler, has occupied a near-by store with plant stocks; a good variety, including Geo. E. Fancourt's hydrangeas (and without which our Buffalo Easter would seem a bit unfinished) has been handled. Here, it is reported, that carnations are most scarce. Will it be again a history-repeated case of indiscreet holding back and an oversupply later in the week? We trust not. Smilax has met its scarce period, and little strings command good prices.

VIDI.

Trade News.

Business is very good for the season, and though stock is generally plentiful it is mostly used up at fair prices. The demand for Easter stock is very satisfactory. Lilies have come along fast during the past week, and are offered more freely than they were ten days ago. Azaleas are scarce, as are also general pot plants. Roses, double violets, tulips, hyacinths, valley and mignonette are abundant, but carnations are scarce. All of our stores are showing fine stock, and Easter trade promises to be an extra good one.

News Items.

The new president of the Industrial Exhibition, Dr. Andrew Smith, gave a dinner to the members on Monday, the 2d. The tables were decorated with plants from the city greenhouses, and looked very fine; the center of the table was filled with orchids, among which was a piece of white Cattleya Triana from Mr. Chambers; the best white variety I have ever seen. Mr. Chambers has done much to popularize orchids in this city. John H. Dunlop, who had just returned from New York covered with honors, was one of the guests, and was heartily congratulated on his success, which we all know was well deserved. We all feel very proud that our little town was so well represented at the great rose show, and hope there may be many such exhibitions in the future. Personally, I believe they do a great deal of good, both to the business and to the men that attend them.

GENEVIEVE LORD

The Peerless New Pink Carnation.

IN all of our long experience we have never had a Carnation produce as many first-class, high-grade blooms to the square foot as Genevieve Lord. It blooms early and the year round. Its color is just right; "beautiful," "lovely," "exquisite," "perfectly charming," are some of the adjectives used by some of our lady customers in describing it. With all its good productiveness, size is a leading feature, large enough to put it away up front. Its grand stem is perhaps its crowning feature. What is a flower without a stem? Genevieve Lord stands up straight twelve months in the year. When you think of all this, and a non-bursting calyx thrown in for good measure, there is little left to be desired. We are pleased to announce that we can fill orders promptly after April 10th, but do not know how long we can promise this, as stock is going rapidly. To clinch matters and drive a good bargain, order at once.

Price, doz., $2.00; 100, $10.00; 1000, $75.00.

Can also furnish all of the big new ones at introducers' prices, as well as the best standard varieties.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS A complete list of the best new and standard. ☞Catalogue free to all applicants.

The Grand New Double Petunia
PINK QUEEN
The finest ever introduced, stocky grower, flowers monstrous in size, very double, finely fringed, and having a strong sweet fragrance. Color, a taking shade of light pink, being a solid shade, like the Rose Mme. Caroline Testout, a great advance over all other varieties. As fine in its way as Gloire de Lorraine among Begonias Will surely be in every florist's stock. Sells quickly at double the price of old sorts. A splendid stock ready to send out.
Get in on the ground floor, or you will be sorry. There will be money in this for you the second season.
Strong, 3½ inch pot plants, 35c. each; $1.00 per doz.

Easter Trade Prospects.

Trade prospects for Easter are about an average, both as to plants and cut flowers. There are a few instances in which the demand is larger than the supply; but with the exception of carnations, which are extremely scarce, there will be little trouble to get sufficient to fill all orders.

In plants, which are getting more popular each recurring Easter, of course lilies take first place. The supply is just about the average; the quality has a wide range and seems wholly to depend on the freedom of the specimen from disease. A variety that is rapidly coming into favor here is the black-stemmed Japanese L. Takesima, a medium grower, but rather more shy of flowering than Harrisii. As far as known here it is perfectly free from disease. One peculinrity which makes it especially valuable for small growers or private gardeners is, that with fairly good treatment the bulbs will increase in size, number and floriferousness each year. Lilium grandiflolium albo-marginata will be far more largely grown in the future.

Azalens are in large supply, are of uniform high quality and seem destined to play quite an importnnt part in the Easter trade. The colored varieties are in a big majority. Among the largest holders of these, Campbell and Marten & Sons may be mentioned. Spiræn, valley, etc., are in just about the average quantity, and are of uniform good quality. There is no question but that the two big lots of stock that have been so regretably ruined the past Winter are greatly missed.

In cut flowers roses will be in fairly good supply, and of good quality. The present very bright weather coming so suddenly after such a loug dull spell has had a deterrent effect on local grown stock.

In carnations the Western wholesnle rate of $12 per 100 charged for scarlet is simply prohibitive; other lines are also scarce and are quoted very high.

Double daffodils have been in good demand all Winter, and will be in very large supply at Easter; as will also Poeticus oruatus. Tulips are not moving very freely yet, but a large quantity of the highest quality can be seen, Marten & Sons especially haviug an extra fine lot of Vermillion Brilliant. Hyacinths are but very little seen this Winter. P. McKenna & Sons are sending in a lot of extra Crimson Rambler roses, which find a ready snle.

Chrysanthemum Show.

At the regular meeting of the club Monday eveuing the report of the Executive Committee. having reference to the chrysanthemum show, was concurred in; and the exhibitiou will be held in the Windsor Hall, on November 6, 7, aud 8. The prize lists, which were distributed that evening, embrace 68 sections. Cash prizes to the amount of $440 are offered.

A most interestiug paper on celery culture was read by W. Hall, and judging by the discussion following it was highly appreciated.

J. Pidduck, one of our most energetic members, was elected to the position on the Executive Committee rendered vacant by the regretted resignation of William Wilshire.

Roses can Enter as Greenhouse Plants.

In response to inquiries made of the Dominion Government officials at Ottawa, by Joseph Bennett, of this city, he has just received word that the embargo on roses has beeu raised, and that in future they will be allowed to enter Canada as greenhouse plants. No particulars are given, but the roses mentioned are supposed to be the varieties that are grown in greenhouses for cut flower purposes, as it was the exclusion of the new Liberty rose that prompted the inquiries. NEW CARNATIONS

Now Ready.

G. H. CRANE — THE BEST SCARLET CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED.

We have the finest and best selected stock of this Carnation in the country. We have 25,000 selected cuttings now ready, and can ship promptly on receipt of order.

Price, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL MACEO — THE BEST CRIMSON CARNATION.

Pure, Rich, Clear, Effective Color, the Best Keeper of all Crimsons. The Most Profuse Bloomer of all. Produces 25 per cent. More Flowers than any other Carnation we have ever grown. Sells Out Clean in Quantity. Is Liked by Everybody.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL GOMEZ

Some growers who have not grown Maceo think this is the best of the two varieties. Our experience shows Maceo to be the most profitable of the two. Gomez has a longer stem, is lighter in color and sells at 20 per cent. higher price than Maceo.

If you are in doubt as to which to plant, buy an equal quantity of each variety. That will enable you to determine which is best suited for your requirements.

15,000 Cuttings ready, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Ethel Crocker A pure red-pink shade of Mrs. Jas. Dean, but darker, healthiest habit of all; fine stock now ready. $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Morning Glory (Dorner). The Daybreak Colored Scott, the best salmon pink on the market at present; a bright, refreshing shade; very free bloomer; always in flower; ready now. $8.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Olympia Largest variegated Carnation, only rival to Mrs. G. M. Bradt; strong plants, from soil and a few from pots, at $12.00 per 100.

Mrs. G. M. Bradt One of the largest and most sought after Carnations grown, producing blooms 3 to 4 in. in diameter; best seller of its class; strong stock, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Genevieve Lord Fine, strong plants, from soil or pots, $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

The Florida Seed Law.—In proceedings recently instituted to test the constitutionality of the act passed by the Legislature of 1899, requiring that every package of seed sold in Florida should be labeled with a guaranty showing where and by whom such seeds were grown, a decision by Judge Blount declares that the seed law is in conflict with the constitution of the United States, which provides that Congress alone has power to regulate commerce between the states, and the legislative act attempts to do that, and is therefore unconstitutional and inoperative.

The Farmer's Interest in Good Seed.—This is the title of Bulletin No. 111, of the Department of Agriculture, Division of Botany, a pamphlet written by Professor A. J. Pieters, in charge of pure seed investigations. The object of the bulletin is mainly to point out the necessity of testing seeds by farmers, and how this can be accomplished—either at home, or through the Department of Agriculture. The results of various tests made are furnished, and some wholesome advice to purchasers of seeds supplied. In regard to the subject of "The Non-Warranty Clause and Co-operative Buying," Mr. Pieters remarks as follows:

"It will, of course, be difficult to induce the members of the seed trade to abandon the time-honored non-warranty clause, which exempts the dealer from all responsibility as to the character of the seeds sold. Whatever may be said as to the necessity of this clause in the sale of vegetable seeds, when grass and forage plant seeds are sold in quantity, the purchaser has the right to know about the quality. The practical question is how to get the seedsmen to give a percentage statement in the absence of special laws requiring it. It is probable that the general demand of farmers, if determinedly and persistently made, will meet with success. The seedsman cannot afford to ignore the just demands of his patrons, especially if the refusal means the loss of valuable orders. The pressure will be greater if all the seed used in a community is purchased through co-operation in one order. This method is now followed with success, when it is desired to get lower prices than can be given on small orders, and might equally well be adopted when the object is to get seeds of known quality. It must not be overlooked, however, that tested seeds of high quality will cost more than the common grades. Even if the quality is the same, the work of testing involves some expense, and a purchaser should be willing to pay a shade more for seed when he is assured of the quality. Of course, unscrupulous dealers could still sell seeds under false pretenses, but it would be more difficult to shirk the responsibility; and a determination not to patronize a dealer who is persistenly guilty of misrepresentation would soon make his position untenable."

European Notes.

With a spell of more genial weather matters look a little more promising for our annual crops, but many of the biennials are now past recovery, particularly turnips and rutabagas. The destruction of biennial flower seed plants has been equally great. Pansies, stocks, and wallflowers have perished in wholesale fashion.

In Italy the experience has been very similar to that of northern Europe. During March rain and hail, with rather uncommon cold, prostrated the growers with influenza, and, to some extent, damaged the cauliflowers and onions, together with some hardy flower seeds. Some early sowings of tomatoes, egg plants, and a few flower seeds that were not sufficiently protected were also injured, but in general most of the Spring sowings are doing well. All the different varieties of centaureas could be planted last week. Myosotis dissitiflora, pansies and kindred plants are already showing flower.

The reports from the south of France are not quite so cheering to purchasers of French-grown bulbs. The unfavorable climatic conditions reported four weeks since were prolonged to such an extent as to seriously interfere with the development of the bulbs, particularly of Roman hyacinths. It is too late now for any great improvement to take place, and a shortage of first size bulbs is inevitable, if there be only an average demand.

Lilium candidum are also doing very badly, and the acreage planted is short. Already growers have obtained a rise of 50 per cent. in the price of healthy stock, and even at this figure they refuse to bind themselves to deliver any fixed quantity. Freesias, narcissi and anemones are much later in blooming, but in other respects the only fault now apparent is a lack of development, due to the cold and dry time.

Cyclopedia of American Horticulture

THIS great work comprises directions for the cultivation of horticultural crops and original descriptions of all the species of Fruits, Vegetables, Flowers, and ornamental plants known to be in the market in the United States and Canada.

BY L. H. BAILEY, OF CORNELL UNIVERSITY, ASSISTED BY WILHELM MILLER AND MANY EXPERT CULTIVATORS AND BOTANISTS.

THOUGH distinctly an American work, not only plants indigenous to the North American continent are mentioned, but also all the species known to be in the horticultural trade in North America, of whatever origin. It is really a survey of the cultivated plants of the world.

The chief characteristics of this great work are comprised in our describing its source, scope, and general features. It is AUTHORITATIVE since its contributors are the best specialists in America, and there will be at least 5000 signed contributions from the best-known horticulturists, cultivators, and botanists in this country and in Europe. It is also most COMPREHENSIVE in that it presents for the first time in carefully arranged and perfectly accessible form the best knowledge of the best specialists upon greenhouse and garden practice, fruit growing, vegetable culture, forestry and the like. It is moreover fresh, entirely ORIGINAL; not a rehash of old material, old cuts, etc. The articles are specially prepared and illustrated for this work alone; while the trained botanist discusses the botanical features of the important commercial plants, practical cultivators submit observations on their culture, marketing, and the like, so that the reader has before him the very best practice in the most favorable localities for the perfection of any fruit, vegetable, or economic plant. The arrangement is very systematic, clear and convenient for ready reference.

THE CYCLOPEDIA is to be completed in four handsome quarto volumes, embracing about 2000 pages, with more than that number of original illustrations. It is carefully printed upon specially made paper of a permanent character, and the work will be completed this year.

This book is sold only by subscription, and orders will be accepted for the full set only. For terms of subscription and all further information, address

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN

Rochester, N. Y.—The Western New York Nursery Company has incorporated, with J. F. Dale as president.

A Pioneer Nurseryman.—On Monday, April 9, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Tuttle, of Baraboo, Wis., celebrated their sixty-second wedding anniversary. Mr. Tuttle started in the nursery business in 1848, and is still actively engaged in it. He is 85 and his wife 83 years of age. Notwithstanding his advanced age he is still very active and walks almost daily to Baraboo, a distance of nearly two miles, for his mail.

SCRANTON, PA.—The most elaborate decoration of the season was executed at the clubhouse on the 17th, by George R. Clark, in which the rose Crimson Rambler was used to splendid effect. At the far end of the ball room rose an immense bank of this rose backed with stately palms, behind which was stationed the orchestra. About the room canary birds were placed, the cages partially hidden by asparagus, through which miniature electric lights were strung. Japanese fern balls in full growth, suspended here and there with lanterns, created a unique effect. Mr. Clark reports a grand Easter business, with no abundance of orders for the future. W. M.

A Brilliant Easter.

The story of Easter trade for 1900 can now be told, and so far as this city is concerned it has been a brilliant one all around. Prices were well maintained during the week, and stock well cleared off; in fact, toward the end of the week there was quite a scramble for lilies, with offers of from $1.50 to $2 per dozen from those who had failed to obtain sufficient supplies. Up to Friday the days were sunless, with snowstorms and anything but Spring weather. This resulted in quite a number of growers failing to get in flower all they hoped for, besides seriously affecting the cut of roses and carnations. C. W. Washburn says it made $1,000 difference to them for the week. But, taken as a whole, big supplies of almost everything were sent in, and all went in handsome shape. Hardly a scrap was left over Saturday night, even of bulbous stock. Deamud says he sold 10,000 tulips a day for the last three days.

Early in the week violets seemed very draggy, but later anything worthy the name of a violet went at from 75c. up to, for a few extras, $1.25.

The supply of carnations, as was expected, continued away below demand, even the street men asking 50c. per dozen for standards. During shipping days fancies touched $6, $2 to $4 being about a good average—and a good price for carnations the middle of April. Quantities of short Beauty went on the street, but other stock was disposed of through usual channels.

As a rule, the commission men, and those selling their own growths, kept to quoted prices, which this year were sent out early; and as Easter came late values were scarcely so high as formerly. Nor will Easter trade stand fancy prices.

McKellar & Winterson, who dealt very heavily in plants, showed by their books a trade for the last three days just about double that of last year.

As to the retailers all those we have seen report business excellent. A very large quanity of plants was sold.

Easter observance in the churches seems to have been more general than usual.

It is naturally to be expected that trade for a spell will be quiet and prices somewhat lower. Long-stemmed and medium Beauty range from $2 to $4 per dozen; tea roses, very fancy, bring $8; extras, $4 to $6 per 100. Carnations, standards, $1.50 to $2; fancies, $3 to $4; lilies, $10.

Weekly Payments the Rule.

Some little misunderstanding seems to be abroad since the announcement of Kennicott Bros. Co. to the effect that hereafter they will pay for all consignments of flowers sent to them weekly instead of monthly. A remark in the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE of last week, by your Cincinnati correspondent, would lead one to believe that all the other dealers here pay monthly, and recommending that they change. To get at the facts we interviewed the following, and present the result; premising, however, that from various causes there are a few growers that actually prefer a monthly settlement: A. L. Randall has paid weekly for three years past, and prefers it; E. H. Hunt settles monthly, except by agreement with some shippers who desire weekly payments. W. E. Lynch has paid weekly ever since he has been in the business, and says years ago, when he was with the late E. H. Hunt, he was the first to try weekly settlements. F. F. Benthey & Co.'s checks go out every Tuesday. E. C. Amling has settled weekly since starting in business, and says: "If my shippers wanted them they could have daily payments." J. B. Deamud has been paying weekly for two years past, except in the case of two or three customers whom he cannot get to agree to the method. McKellar & Winterson have paid weekly ever since they have been in the business. Ed. Winterson says Thos. J. Corbrey was the one who first tried weekly settlements when he was in the wholesale business, and to carry out the idea demanded settlements from retail buyers every two weeks, which, at the time, caused some kicking.

Around Town.

Several one-time retail florists of the city have been taking civil service examinations with a view to securing positions for taking care of the small parks and squares of the city.

The residents of Oak Park, a Chicago suburb, are organizing the Oak Park Beautifying Association. The object is to aid in beautifying the streets and grounds of the village.

Oscar Kreitling has rented a fine new retail store, at 392 12th street, near his old quarters. Oscar does a very successful business.

C. W. Erner, for five years past with E. H. Hunt, has resigned his position and will go to his old home, at Terre Haute, Ind., at least until Fall.

A. L. Randall has gone to West Baden for a ten days' rest.

Easter Echoes.

Dark and cloudy weather the early part of the week shortened the cut of roses and carnations many thousands; but forcing stock was plentiful. Tulips sold best, with lily of the valley a close second. Paper White narcissus sold well, but the stock was very much of the pickled order, and had to be disposed of at any old price. Harrisii lilies, as usual, did not supply the demand. Saturday morning opened with Old Sol smiling, and he continued to smile all day. The growers in the market reaped a harvest. The sight of this market on a Saturday before Easter is one never to be forgotten. Millions of cut flowers and plants are annually disposed of, and at good prices. Eight to ten thousand dollars were spent in this market Saturday for flowers and plants.

The stores were like beehives all day and night, and when the smoke clears away, and the proprietors commence looking over their sales, they will probably find the Easter trade of 1900 far in advance of other years.

J. A. Peterson was running two stores, and he certainly was a busy man. His new store is now situated on Race street, near Fourth, close to the St. Nicholas Hotel. In June his Fourth street store will be moved to this locality.

The commission houses will not average more than in 1899, owing to the scarcity of roses and carnations.

Thieves Reap a Harvest, Too.

While the growers were unusually busy in the Jahez Elliott Flower Market, Saturday afternoon and evening, pickpockets were also busy robbing the crowds. Mrs. Cunningham was relieved of $16. Mrs. Coates, of Coates & Garges, had some change taken, as had Mrs. J. F. Conger. These people are standholders. Wm. Murphy found a pocketbook that had been rifled, as did Supt. Walker. As soon as the thefts were reported to the superintendent he telephoned the police and four detectives were hurried to the market, but the crowd was so dense that it was impossible to catch the thieves. This is the first time this market has ever been troubled by the light-fingered gentry. Probably more growers were robbed, but the above are all I have heard of up to time of writing.

E. G. GILLETT.

Detroit.

Easter Trade.

Disagreeable, cold and cloudy weather until Saturday made this Easter one rather to the advantage of the wholesaler, for the retail man had to place his orders to secure his stock and customers put off buying until Saturday, thus making the overworked retailer do five days work in two; but on the whole it has been a good Easter for both growers and retailers, as stock of some kinds was short, notably lilies. But the florists had the entire trade, for the corner-grocery man found stock too high to suit him. Carnations were scarce and high. Plants sold well and there was a noticeable call for trimmed plants in baskets, one of our leading retailers employing a skilled trimmer for that purpose alone.

Jottings.

Ill luck seems to pursue Asman & Dunn. Last week their delivery wagon was demolished and the horse killed by an electric car.

The secretary of the Florists' Club, Robert Flowerday, is expected home from England some time next week, when we hope to begin working up a crowd for New York in August. From present indications we think we shall muster about 18 or 20.

Rackham and Beard Bros. are both building this season.

Easter Trade Shows Increased Proportions

The result of our inquiries shows a past Easter business of generally increased proportions over previous years, and indicating an improved prosperity among flower buyers. Less standing out or hesitancy in the matter of prices was quite noticeable. As a rule, the fairly good and rightly timed stock of almost all kinds found sales, and the unbalanced assortments were of but moderate extent. The retail men saw fit to engage in the plant line deeper than at any time before. S. A. Anderson's words, to the effect that "the cut flower growers have reached the limit of demand for their growths, except in improved qualities," are no doubt shared in by others.

Roses seemed ample for the demand. Carnations came in more plentifully than had been anticipated, with Daybreak a bit worn in color, or showing dark weather growth. Violets were of all qualities, but in the main good, and plentiful enough. L. Harrisii blooms were short of the demand, if anything.

Varying retail prices were noticeable at the Main street stores. In roses the staples in Bridesmaid, Bride and Meteor ranged all the way from $2 to $5 per dozen, $3 being probably a good average. Beauty, long stemmed, averaged $9, but the demand at that was quite limited. A few, we learn, brought $15. Brunner, with some, fetched $5 to $7.50 per dozen for the best. Carnations went at from $1.50 per dozen down, customers being ready buyers at $1 for good grades. Violets realized from $2 to $3, and Harrisii brought 25c. per bloom; bulb stock, 75c. to $1 per dozen.

On the Chippewa Market prices were several grades lower, with qualities not so exacting. Harrisii plants in pots hardly reached; in fact sold short. A general price of 25c. per bloom and opening bud was asked and gotten. Azaleas seemed slightly in over-supply, else the sizes or prices were not proportioned right. Genistas sold decidedly slow, and strange to ns the Acacia armata, even finely done ones, went with scant favor. The weather, though pleasant overhead, was raw and chilly to a degree not so encouraging to plant handling, and barely allowed delivery without protection. Sunday came out milder, and truly pleasant; and a good cut flower trade resulted on that day.

J. H. Rebstock ran two annexes in near-by vacant stores, which eked out plant handling to good advantage. Rambler roses were made a leader in good quantity, balanced in varieties. A large flower trade was naturally done at the store proper. Palmers found the high-priced azaleas going the best. Their own growth of bulbous stock was ample and finished up all right in Sunday's sales. Adams is nicely pleased with a trade larger than in recent years. Carnations were scarce and brought $1 to $1.50 per dozen. S. A. Anderson noted a call for novelties—people wanting something "different" and exclusive. High-priced plants that brought $4 to $6, and the low ones, under $1, went better than medium-priced grades. He reports a good trade this week. Chas. D. Zimmerman's trade was rather beyond expectations. Four delivery wagons were kept on the jump on Saturday. Harrisii lilies were well-timed and sold clean. A good lot of cut flowers found buyers, with carnations inclined to be scarce.

At Scott's Cold Spring headquarters trade has largely run to personal call and roses for gifts. Some decorating of churches is still done, however, but mostly very informal of character—in Harrisii lily plants and blooms and palms. Mr. Scott noted an unsupplied call for a 50c. flowering plant, and thinks several hyacinths, or else tulips in 5-inch pots, might be good sellers in such type. His large lot of azaleas and Harrisii were completely cleaned up. Genistas went slow. In demand tulips in flats were not up to some previous records.

A few well done mignonette in pots answers the call, and 7-inch pot plants go at $1 to a limited few buyers, but the popular classes want them not. Some 6-inch pans of pansies, that were decidedly attractive, went quickly at 75c. His strawberry crop in pots did not turn out a financial success. They do not both grow and fruit "definite enough."

On the Chippewa Market J. Wiese reports an active plant trade. Hydrangeas sold well; azaleas hung a bit; lilies were short of supply. Baumer Bros. had a large showing of cinerarias, going at 20c. to 40c. for 4 to 6-inch pots. F. P. Baum lead in a good variety of bulbous stock and geraniums, both of which went nicely. A. J. Reichert did a fair trade. John G. Pickelman showed some of the best quality longiflorum, but a few days late to sell well. Schwerdt & Bemer, of Cheektowaga, were represented with their usual good quality of soft-wooded plants, as was also S. B. Smiley, of Lancaster, with good selling geraniums. W. A. Newbiggiag, of Black Rock, reports a good call for lilies and azaleas. Cinerarias were a bit plentiful. Cut flowers went fair on Sunday, and good total sales resulted.

At Kasting's wholesale store business continued unusually active, and a large stock was handled. Spite of predictions otherwise, carnations came in fairly; some Daybreak off color though. Violets sold well. Roses were plentiful and Harrisii just reached around ia supply. Bulbous blooms were not so abundant, hence none were left over; daffodils, in fact, being scarce.

Easter Trade Beyond Expectations.

It can be said that Easter trade was beyond all expectations, even though the weather was not what it might have been, it being too cold and cloudy. Cut flowers and plants sold well and at good prices. There were more plants disposed of than ever before, and the quality was of the best. Prices of cut flowers ruled about the same as for the last few Easter holidays, on some things being a little higher; but complaints about exorbitant figures were fewer than ever before. Roses at wholesale ranged from 10c. to 15c., and sold retail at $3 per dozen. Beauty wholesaled at 75c. for good stock, and brought at retail from $12 to $24 per dozen, according to quality. Ulrich Brunner were in good demand, at $5 to $10 per dozen.

Carnations were extensively asked for, and in spite of the great quantities that were handled, very few were to be had early Saturday evening. The quality was better than usual, stock being all fresh. Prices, at wholesale, were from 3½c. to 5c., and at retail from 75c. to $1.50 per dozen. The most of the stock sold at $1 and very readily. Bulbous flowers were scarcer than ever was known; tulips and daffodils were in good demand, at $1 per dozen and up at retail, about $5 per 100 wholesale. Cut hyacinths were not abundant, and valley was scarcer than usual. Violets sold well, in bunches, at from 25c. to $1.50. Sweet peas were also in good demand, at 75c. per bunch of 25 blooms. Harrisii lilies, or rather longiflorums, were plentiful, being about the only stock of which any was left unsold—but very little of it. Prices at wholesale ranged from 12c. to 20c., and at retail from $2 to $4 per dozen. The average price was $3. Callas realized the same values.

Plants sold at good prices; azaleas, at from $1.50 and up; hydrangeas as high as $5 and better. Genistas, ericas, rhododendrons, lilies, Dutch hyacinths and spiraeas were the principal plants, and were pretty well cleaned out.

Trade in the city stores was ahead of last year; all had their hands full until Sunday afternoon.

In the Pittsburg Market business could have been better in the morning, but the afternoon made up partly. There was, however, a little stock left unsold.

In the Allegheny Market trade was phenomenal, the stands being crowded until late at night. Everything was cleaned out, and more could have been disposed of. It was by far the best Easter trade ever experienced in the Allegheny Market; sales were way ahead of last year's, and prices also were better. The extent of the cut flower trade in this market is a surprise to all those of the trade who have visited it, especially on Saturday. The very best stock obtainable is handled, and prices rule, with but few exceptions, as high as those in the city stores. There is no city of its size in the whole country that can boast of anything near to it. Stands are fitted up that cost thousands of dollars, but the rental is very moderate; and the business done by some of these stands is equal to that of many of the stores.

The Pittsburg storemen had their windows in better trim than ever—very tastily arranged with fine plants and blooms. A. W. Smith, of Sixth street, had a fine display—the largest in town, and many visited it. The windows of T. Ulam & Co., Breitenstein & Flemm, L. I. Neff and the Murdochs were very attractive.

Business from now on promises much; many society affairs and prominent weddings are announced. The opera this week caused a splendid demand for choice blooms.

The Easter flower show in the Pittsburg and Allegheny Park Conservatories is now at its best and worthy of a visit by all florists. Last Sunday the crowd at these places was enormous—one continual jam until dark.

A Philadelphia Refrain.

We hail the last of Lenten days,
And Easter now entices
The florist many plants to raise,
Together with the prices.
—RECORD.

Mary—Isn't a florist's a heavenly kind of business?
John—Yes; but there is a good deal of earth about it.—Brooklyn Life.

PLANTS and FLOWERS.

STOCKS—Chas. Barson, of Sing Sing, N. Y., sends us in some sprays of his selected strain of Cut-and-Come-Again stocks. They are very long and well studded with good-sized florets. He informs us he has been selecting the seed during the last five years, and from the samples sent he has certainly succeeded in gaining an excellent strain of this grand old variety.

OUR PRIZE COMPETITION.

We desire to remind intending competitors that the "PRIZE PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPETITION," begins May 1. The Conditions and Prizes were published in full in our issue of March 31, page 341, but for the convenience of those who intend going into the contest, as well as others desirous of producing effective work for their forthcoming catalogues, we have reprinted Mr. Hallock's essay in full, together with the Conditions attaching to the contest, and this leaflet will be sent free to all applicants.

The publishers feel that an aroused interest should be taken by the trade generally in photography, more especially as it relates to trade productions. Photographs of specimens, etc., grown on a tradesman's own grounds, and printed in his own catalogue, are far more weighty and carry more influence with his customers than the stock illustrations now seen in the majority of trade catalogues; and the price at which these photographs can be turned into plates, ready for the printer, is now so moderate that every catalogue-maker can afford to insert at least a few in his own book, understood always that they are sufficiently well done.

Illustrations take with the public now more than ever. The proof is evident in every successful publication you meet; it is also evident in the catalogues of successful florists, nurserymen and seedsmen.

It is because of these facts the publishers of the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE have instituted the present series of competitions; there is no reason at all why the makers of small and medium-sized catalogues cannot introduce therein the facsimiles of their own choicest productions. The slightly added cost to those who undertake this will be readily and quickly made up by added sales at paying figures.

And the new century will not have taken on many years before it will be as common a practice with our trade to use fine colored illustrations as it is now to use good half-tones.

Therefore, gentlemen, in view of all the developments present and to come, its educational value, and the good results to be obtained from taking advantage thereof, the publishers hope to see their offers availed of and a spirited competition ensue.

The subject for the third essay, in "A Chance for the Young Man," was announced in our issue of April 14, page 406. It is a topic on which many are well grounded, and a keen struggle for first place should be the outcome. Competitors are reminded that their MSS. should be mailed not later than Monday, May 7. Open to all previous competitors in this series.

The same gratifying report anent the Easter trade, as has been promulgated for several years past, can be made regarding the business done in 1900, viz., that it exceeded all previous records, being in some instances from 40 to 50 per cent. better. Owing to the inclement weather prevailing for some days preceding, the bulk of the trade was crowded into the Saturday before Easter Sunday, entailing rapid and hard work on the craft.

The reports which we furnish in this week's issue give a pretty fair indication of the public's predilection in the matter of Easter plants and flowers, so far as that exists in the various points heard from. These reports generally convey the idea that flowering plants lead in public estimation, the lily being the most popular; and while in some cases the supply of this latter stock was short, the demand was pretty generally met. In Tennessee some of the florists "missed it," this regrettable fact being attributed to the receipt of Bermuda grown longiflorum instead of Harrisii bulbs. Azaleas were also very popular, the medium-sized plants having the largest call. There has been a most satisfactory demand for Crimson Rambler roses, and our Boston correspondent remarks that the call for these plants is likely to increase, provided they can be grown and sold at a figure cheaper than obtained on the present occasion. Spiræas were used more extensively in church decoration than formerly, and the extent of this work into which lilies also enter largely, shows a marked increased over previous years.

But why particularize further? Suffice it to say that nearly every kind of stock offered at Easter found a ready and satisfactory sale, prices being equal to, and, in some instances, better than those of last year. Montreal alone sends us an unfavorable report, and that due to the exodus of the flower-buying public from that city.

The scarcity of carnations, generally, is, however, worthy of mention, as well as the high quality of the goods offered this year.

One agreeable feature connected with the flower trade the present Easter has been the immense prominence given it by the daily press of the country. In the papers of every city of any importance, columns have been devoted to this subject, all of a very readable nature, and with but little exaggeration. This cannot but have a most direct influence on business. It has also been observed that in some places the florists have advertised more extensively in the daily papers, this having been thought necessary to counteract the effect of the large ads. of the department stores, in which it has been considered, to some extent, efficacious. This is probably the best method that could be adopted in such a case; in fact, it seems to us that the florist should take every advantage of the assistance rendered by the newspapers, particularly at times when these molders of public opinion are making a special endeavor to turn the thoughts of their readers to his products.

We congratulate the trade on its general present prosperity, and are pleased to chronicle such a gratifying reward for the months of patient care and earnest hard work on the part of the florist.

Cyclopedia of American Horticulture.

Editor Florists' Exchange.

The FLORISTS' EXCHANGE of March 17, in commenting on Professor L. H. Bailey's Cyclopedia of American Horticulture, candidly allows the value and superiority of the work in a great many respects; still, the writer of the criticising article in question thinks he has encountered some errors. Among other things he doubts the truth of the statement that Ceratostigma plumbaginoides, commonly known in gardens as Plumbago Larpentæ, is a hardy, herbaceous Fall-flowering plant. To my knowledge the hardiness of this plumbago has never been questioned anywhere except in the extreme North, and surely it is a Fall bloomer, for its flowering time is always from September to frost. Nearly all dealers in hardy plants catalogue it, and I fail to see any error in Professor Bailey's description.

As to the criticism of other items I am unable to judge, for I am no botanist, but, for example, why not make Adiantum Farleyense a species, solely because it has no means of reproducing itself? There are many plants which do not reproduce themselves from seed—the banana, the horseradish, are examples.

Rochester, N. Y. J. B. KELLER.

The question of the hardiness of ceratostigma, as is well known, was settled many years ago. European nurserymen and gardeners used to treat it as a stove perennial after its introduction near the middle of the present century. In the Cyclopedia the mistake occurs in setting it down as producing the flowers late in the Fall. This is a good instance of European descriptions of plants and their habits being unreliable for guidance in the United States, and shows the great need of correct descriptions taken from direct observations of how plants thrive in our climate. English books give October as the blooming period of this plant, but that is true only in some parts of Great Britain. In the northern parts ceratostigma has a struggle to open one or two flowers in that month, and many cultivators have never succeeded in blooming it there, owing to the season not being long enough (small wonder the older gardeners grew it indoors). In the United States the climatic conditions are, of course, varying; but in the Middle and South Atlantic States the plant is a mass of lovely blue shortly after midsummer—fully three months ahead of the period given in the Cyclopedia.

The reason why Adiantum Farleyense is not regarded as a species is that, as far as can be judged, without the organs of reproduction (and no well authenticated case is known of these having been detected) it is a form of A. tenerum. Mr. Keller is by no means happy in his analogous citations of seedless plants being regarded as species. Bananas and horseradish have the organs of reproduction developed, and their status as species or varieties is determinable. They have been cultivated probably for thousands of years, not to produce seeds, but for their fruits and roots. This peculiarity in seedless fruits, as is well known, is simply the result of preconceived efforts in this direction. But the horseradish seeds abundantly in France in waste places; and as for bananas, abundant evidence of the fruiting, not only of the species, but also of cultivated varieties, will be found in Memoirs of the Torrey Botanical Club, 1., 150-153.

OBITUARY.

Thomas Field.

Thomas Field, the junior member of the firm of Field Brothers, Washington, D. C., died Thursday, April 12, aged 50 years. Mr. Field was born in England and worked for a time in the nurseries of the Messrs. Veitch, London. Coming to this country about 25 years ago he was employed as foreman by the Dingee & Conard Company, West Grove, Pa. Subsequently, with his brother George, the business of rose growing was started, first at Eckington, and during the last few years on Brightwood avenue. Mr. Field was a quiet, unassuming man, much liked by everyone who knew him. He was unmarried.

E. J. Paddock.

E. J. Paddock, a prominent grower of Cleveland, O., died Monday evening, April 16, after a week's illness, of pneumonia.

One of the daily papers of New York City has been showing its readers the immense profits retailers make on the sales of cut flowers. The wholesale prices, apparently, taken from a Western trade paper, were given, together with the prices realized over the retail counter. In describing the popular flowers of the day the Lawson carnation is said to have all the hues from scarlet to white, and the rage among young ladies is to propagate the plants in heated apartments. The "asparagus flower" also has become very popular, according to this same authority. Unfortunately, the price of it is not quoted.

The ixia is the fashionable London boutonniere just now. It is a South African flower, indigenous to the veldt, where it blossoms by the wholesale. It is said that English greenhouse men have imported ixias by the thousands. At the last London drawing-room most of the debutantes' bouquets were of ixias.

Color Printing.

Messrs. Vredenberg & Co., of Rochester, N. Y., who have for several years given special attention to color printing for florists and nurserymen, have forwarded us samples of three color plates recently completed, namely, American Beauty rose, Crimson Rambler and Dracæna Sanderiana.

A Record-Breaking Easter.

Easter business here has again broken all former records. The supply of flowers was large, and the demand, the whole of last week, very good. On Saturday morning business was at first a little slack, but in the afternoon it started with a rush and kept right on until 12 o'clock midnight. Lilies were, as usual, the favorite pot plants, and some fine Harrisii and longiflorum were offered. Azaleas were not plentiful, but, generally, there was enough for the trade. Lilacs sold well. Cinerarias also went well, when good plants were offered. Spiræas, especially S. plumosa alba, were favorites. Pots of valley, mignonette, good Dutch hyacinths and Rambler and Hermosa roses sold well.

In cut flowers roses were the leaders, Beauty selling very well. John H. Dunlop had some grand roses and received good prices for them. Tidy had an attractive show. He had some extra fine sweet peas and a number of cattleyas. Hill had his window filled with orchids and roses. Jay & Son made a grand display with bulbous stock. W. Tidy also had a fine show of bulbous stock and flowering plants. Fred. Brown made a handsome display of lilies. Simmons had some fine azaleas, and Clinkenboomer also had nice azaleas and other flowering plants.

The show at St. Lawrence Market was a grand one on Saturday morning, but there was a cutting wind and plenty of black dust flying, so the stock soon began to look tired, and trade that started in well in the early morning ended early in the day badly. Considerable stock was left on hand. While the stores were doing business and selling tulips at from 50c. to $1 per dozen, I saw sold on the market 50 tulips, 50 violets, a bunch of valley and some green for 25c.; but the latter stock was so dirty that even that was a good price for it.

While the prices of nearly all cut stock were very steady and good all day, violets were the exception. Really good ones sold readily at wholesale, at from 75c. to $1.25 per 100; but some very fair stock was offered before noon at 30c., and found no buyers. Carnations were scarce and much in demand.

Easter Trade Below Average.

This year's Easter trade was, if anything, below the average in the total number of sales. Prices were about the same as in former years, with the exception of those on carnations, which were higher.

The two principal causes for the lightness of business this Easter were the wretched weather conditions prevailing on the Friday and Saturday and the exodus to spend Easter Sunday in New York. Florists are suffering severely from the latter cause, which is each year assuming larger proportions. On the two days preceding the present Easter Sunday over 2,000 people left Montreal for New York in sleeping cars alone, and needless to say these were largely composed of the florists' best customers.

The roads just breaking up after the long Winter made delivery of plants, lilies especially, extremely difficult; and many cases of damaged plants are reported. A mixture of snow and rain falling heavily all day also helped to make things generally uncomfortable.

In popularity plants, as usual, took first place, with lilies leading; these were in rather short supply, and everyone seemed to have sold out. The first demand was for plants that could be sold for $1 to $2 each; larger specimens sold slowly. Azaleas came next in popular fancy, and these were of very good quality, which no doubt largely accounts for the immense quantities sold. Whites and the light colors were in the greatest demand. Here again the smaller plants sold first. Spiræa, as usual, found ready sale and supplied the great demand for a large plant at a small price. Heaths in 5-inch pots sold readily, as also did plants of Crimson Rambler roses, in the same size. Small plants of bougainvillea also sold. Hydrangeas were very popular in the single headed and small sizes. A few good plants of acacia met with a ready sale. A lot of hybrid roses were seen, but these mostly disappeared in the few days preceding the rush. Fine valley and white violets in pots were extremely popular, and many more could have been sold.

In cut flowers carnations seemed to be the most popular, but perhaps this was because they were in very short supply, and what were obtainable were of the very highest quality. Among the many extra fine varieties Cerise Queen, Jubilee and America take a very high place. In roses Beauty were in quantities sufficient for all purposes, and sold slowly. The standard teas sold readily and were all easily disposed of. Lilies as cut flowers were very little used. Violets were in fair demand and supply, as was also mignonette. Valley was all sold. In bulbous stock Poeticus took first place, closely followed by the double Von Sion. Tulips were in fair demand, both cut and in pots.

Prices for first-class stock were: Beauty, $1 each; teas, first, $3 per dozen; carnations, $1 to $1.75 per dozen; valley, 50c. a dozen; violets, 50c. a bunch; mignonette, 50c. to $1 per dozen; daffodils and tulips, 50c. to $1. per dozen.

Trade the last days since Easter has been slow. B.

A Very Good Easter.

Easter is over once more, and as far as the writer can learn has been a very good one, better in general than last year, and would have been still more satisfactory had there been more stock to do business with. Roses particularly were in short supply—not more than half of what was needed. The same can be said of Harrisii. Carnations came in in great quantities, but other popular flowers being short made them sell to help out. Prices were not advanced to any extent, keeping about as per those of Chicago. There were no Beauty in this market; best price for other roses was 8c. to 10c. Carnations brought 4c. and 5c., and a few fancies 6c. Bulb stock sold well at 3c. to 4c., some extra fine tulips bringing 6c. Harrisii sold out early, but values were not advanced.

The weather on Saturday was all that could be desired for handling plants, being warm and fair, but the two or three preceding days made it look gloomy enough, being cold and raiay. Plants sold well, lilies especially, but the quality in many cases was not extra. Many of them were more or less affected with disease, and they seemed to have no substance, a slight exposure to the air making them look badly. But they all sold, and a great many more could have been disposed of were they on hand. Pot roses were about the next best sellers, while hydrangeas and spiræas did not go as well as expected. Of hyacinths there was a good supply that was sold out close. Azaleas went well, as did Crimson Rambler roses, there being some well-grown plants of these on sale.

Wm. Schray reports nearly double the sales of last year, everything he had went; lilies first, with not enough of them. George Waldbart's trade called for large, fine plants, such as rhododendrons, big azaleas and lilies, with small azaleas, hyacinths and the like not so much called for, though he sold everything, and could have sold one-third more. His business was about double that of last year. Fred. Weber was unfortunately confined to his room with a severe cold and malaria during the rush, and being provided with an extra heavy supply of stock did not feel the shortage as badly as others. Business with him is reported as excellent.

Nursery Stock to Canada.

An order in Council has just been passed by the Canadian Parliament, providing that "from April 10 to May 1 importations of any trees, shrubs, plants, vines, grafts, cuttings or buds, commonly called nursery stock, will be allowed from any country or state to which the San Jose scale act applies. All importations thereof must be entered at one of the customs ports of St. John, N. B., St. John's, Que., Niagara Falls and Windsor, Ont., and Winnipeg, Manitoba, only, where they will be thoroughly fumigated with hydrocyanic acid gas by a competent government official, in accordance with the most approved methods."

Madison, N. J.

The Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society will hold a flower show in the assembly rooms, November 7 and 8 next.

FIRES.

GREEN, O.—The greenhouse of Amos Yerrick was destroyed by fire Wednesday, April 11. Many hundreds of tomato and cabbage plants were lost.

ERIE, PA.—Herbert Tong is down with the grip. He had a good stock of plants on hand for Easter.

Lilacs in Europe.

Lilac in all the shop windows, from October to Easter, lilacs abound in Europe in good, bad and indifferent quality, to suit every purse for all occasions. They have been the leading flowers all through the season. In London, Paris, Berlin, Brussels, Nice—wherever society rules, a plenteous supply of these flowers is to be found, and lots of admirers. Forced in the up-to-date way, the improved varieties of lilacs are admirable. They keep well, lend themselves to all combinations, and are fine and effective individually. The tones of their color are so soft that they are never overdone; their airy form and peculiar pearly white tints sometimes washed with pale lilac, pink or blue, improve the most tender hues which are used in combination with them. I have never seen them destroy harmony in any way.

White lilac with La France roses is the richest jour d' eau bouquet the Paris florist has as yet put up (and this has been the smart thing for two decades). Cattleyas never showed their fine petals better than in a bunch of faintly bluish lilac. I saw Scott carnations just aglow amid the same; but there is no need to specialize. Among the lilacs you can find a match for anything you have to use with it, except in artificial flower mosaics.

One reason why lilac is so popular here may be the scarcity of good roses and carnations, but I think the principal and best reason is based on its merits as cut flowers and its easy culture; therefore it is bound to stay awhile yet.

A five-minute talk will teach you all about the art of forcing. There is nothing so sure of success and nothing more simple; and here is the great advantage—the forcing can be systematized in such a way that anyone who can fire, syringe and read the thermometer can do it. So as not to scare those who are not interested in the preparatory culture I shall give a short explanation of the forcing methods first, and a few notes of interest, perhaps, to nurserymen afterward.

If you want to do lilacs in the right way you need three forcing departments. Count for every fourth flower you want to force about one square foot of floor space. You can get four crops out of each department by bringing in the first lot (to bloom at Christmas) during the last week of November. Fill the second department from about the 3d to the 5th of December for New Year's bloom, and follow with the third department the 20th of December. The plants will come in after the lull that generally follows the New Year sales; afterward you may bring in the sets 10 days apart, and will have a succession of bloom as long as you please.

In the old year it will take a little over three weeks to bring them into bloom, but after January they will come a little faster in 18 days, and toward Easter even in 15 days. But they keep well for a couple of weeks, and if well hardened off they are so much better and handier for use. Thus it is always safe to be a few days ahead of time.

The forcing house is to be divided into three departments, and must be from 6 to 12 feet high, so as to accommodate the bushes in an upright position. Build a saddle roof house with board walls and roof; the walls a foot high and the roof pitched enough to give about 12 feet of height in center. Midway along the sides of the roof arrange skylights and provide movable shutters, to shut out light and cold. The heating has to be well studied and must be arranged so that each of the three departments can be regulated independently, at from 50 to 85 degrees F. Put a water tap into each department. If you don't want to build a special house then any shed or covered greenhouse, which comes near the above requirements, may do. For January and later 65 degrees of heat will suffice. To simplify the matter I will divide the seasons of forcing into three periods: First, early forcing of plants out of open ground; second, early forcing pot plants; third, Easter forcing.

EARLY FORCING OF PLANTS OUT OF THE OPEN GROUND.

For Christmas and January bloom get, about November 1, good Syringa vulgaris Marlyensis; it is generally called Marly Rouge,, and as such the European nurserymen sell it. If your nurseryman is not an expert on lilac be sure to get bushes of at least six years' growth, with good, plump, round top buds; these only produce flowers. Cut out all weak, non-flowering wood, and break out all the buds (eyes), except the two top pairs of each branch. Pot the plants on the ground in a shed, which keeps out the frost, and let the root ball get dry. It should have been cut to about one-half the size of what would be a fair ball for transplanting. As I mentioned above the Christmas lilacs should go into heat during the end of the last week of November. Plant them as close together as possible in the ground of the first department of your lilac house; give them a good soaking and shut the house tight and dark. Start the heat at 80 to 85 degrees, and keep it steady for 14, 15 to 16 days. During all the time syringe three to four times a day, every time thoroughly moistening the plants, pipes and walls. As soon as the single flowers begin to swell reduce the heat to 40 to 60 degrees, also syringing a little. Take off the shutters, but exclude sunshine. When the flowers are fully open cut them daily and put them into a cool, light room of 45 degrees for four to five days to harden them off. They will then keep 14 days, and can be well shipped and handled.

For New Year's the second crop should be started, as I have mentioned, about the 3d to 5th of December. Give them a starting temperature of 75 to 80 degrees, and when the individual flowers begin to swell reduce to 65 to 55 degrees. Otherwise treat in the same manner as suggested above.

The later crop may be started with a temperature successively lowered 5 to 10 degrees, and about February and later with about 60 degrees.

If Marly Rouge lilac cannot be had take Syringa vulgaris grandiflora, or, as it is generally called; Charles X; or else the pretty naturally white Marie Legraye. Charles X will set flower buds as a young plant, but they should have five years at least, unless specially grown for forcing. Its flower buds are very thick and round, while those of Marie Legraye are more elongated. Both should be treated like the Marly Rouge; and all three will come nearly pure white by this way of forcing.

EARLY FORCING OF POT PLANTS.

If the white flowers for cutting are the desideratum, there is no advantage in taking pot plants, but Charles X as pot plants will furnish prettily colored flowers, and the double varieties may be forced in pots.

For prettily colored single lilac choose Charles X pot grown. To be worth this qualification the plants should be solidly root bound and, of course, they must be well set with buds. If you want to cut the flowers take off all useless wood, and all the buds except the two top pairs of each branch; but if you want pretty pot plants for sale you may leave such weaker branches as help to fill a gap, and also leave all the buds on the plants. Of course, a few sprays of asparagus or Sprengeri can effectively be added later to decorate the plant. The treatment is nearly identical to the above, except that they should, during the whole later half of the forcing time, be exposed to strong light (no strong sun). As the plants are much smaller, only 4 to 5 feet, or even less in height, they do not need, of course, such a high forcing house. I have seen a very economical way of forcing them in Hamburg, and shall give a description of it here:

In a lean-to house (north exposure would answer well, or if south side it should be whitewashed, or otherwise shaded from strong sun) with a stage, steps about 5 to 6 feet from the glass. The space under the stage was roofed over with boards nailed tight together from below against the joists which supported the stage. At both ends this part of the house was shut off with a little gable wall; each had a door. Thus it formed a box wholly partitioned off from the rest, the light part of the house. As part of the pipes ran through this boxed in space, a difference of 15 to 18 degrees was obtained; still the light part had 62 to 65 degrees; the dark portion would have about 80 degrees. The pot plants, in sets proportioned in number to the likely demand for the flowers, were started in the dark underneath the stage at 81 degrees, and after two weeks, when the flower trusses were well developed, the pots were stood on top of the stage in the full light, in a temperature of 62 degrees. As soon as they were fully in bloom they were removed to a cold, light house of about 45 degrees. After three to four days hardening off they were used for shipping, etc. Much space is gained in this way, especially as during the dark forcing the plants may be put on benches built one on top of the other, and need not stand upright. It is necessary though, in this latter case, to thoroughly soak the roots before they are taken in. Syringing, of course, has to be done as advised above.

Double lilac in pots may be forced exactly like the Charles X in pots, though they are not all safe before January. They are the most exquisite of all. Besides the variety of form and color which they offer, they have the great advantage of keeping three, four, even five weeks in bloom (in a cool place, of course). They are splendid plants for a dwelling house. The flowers when fading do not drop from the plants as do the single ones. From a treatise by F. Harens, Hamburg, which is published in book form by L. Möller, Erfurt, I select the following finest varieties, all of which that expert forcer has tested and approved as good for forcing. No doubt many more will prove satisfactory, but as yet good material is a little scarce and expensive. The order indicates the succession in which to force them. To begin not earlier than for Christmas take Leon Simon, very light pink; President Grevy, violet blue; Mme. Casimir Perrier, white; Virginite, salmon pink; Mme. Lemoine, finest white, and Doyen Keteller, light rose.

All of these are raised by that master hybridizer—Leomine, Nancy.

Darwin Tulips for Forcing.

The May-flowering Darwin tulips have hitherto not been tried for forcing to any extent. The Quinquennial Bulb Show, held at Haarlem, from March 16 to 20, has shown the excellent results which may be obtained by forcing these brilliant late tulips, and the glorious display they are capable of producing. A group of about 50 varieties was shown in low pots or pans, each containing 10 to 12 bulbs of the same variety. [See p. 409, issue April 14.] The development of all the blooms in each pot was remarkably regular, and they were almost exactly as large and bold as in the open ground, at the usual flowering period. The bulbs were forced in the usual way, almost every pot was faultless, and it proved quite easy to get them in bloom before the opening of the show, on March 15. It would have been possible to get them ready many days earlier if wanted. The Darwin tulips are now being generally appreciated for their dazzling colors and bold grouping effect in May, but it may interest the readers of this paper that these late tulips may successfully be forced to bloom as early as the first part of March.—E. H. KRELAGE & SON, in Gardeners' Chronicle.

There will no doubt be many plants that through some cause or other were left unsold at Easter time and are too valuable to be thrown away. Such plants as acacias, cytisus, ericas, rhododendrons and azaleas, together with ferns and roses, are all worth saving; and the florist who has greenhouses of his own will, with very little trouble, be able to keep till another year any of the above-mentioned subjects, and find them increased in value.

ACACIAS AND CYTISUS are cool greenhouse plants, and should always be treated as such. They remain in flower a long time when grown cool, and if unduly forced the bloom is correspondingly short-lived. After they are through flowering let them rest for two or three weeks, giving them just enough water to keep them from suffering; then cut them back closely, without touching the old wood, excepting where it is necessary to keep the plant in nice form, and repot them, using a rich soil in which the manure is thoroughly decomposed. As this is the only potting they will need during the coming year care should be taken that the soil used is free from all vegetable matter, so that it will keep from turning sour as long as possible. Draining the pots is also an important item, and with these as with all other plants that are only potted once a year, plenty of drainage is necessary and had better be overdone rather than not enough supplied. After the potting and cutting back has been done, and all danger from frost is over, the best place for the plants is outdoors. Stand them either on boards or gravel, to avoid the pots being clogged up at the bottom, and as the plants commence to grow increase the supply of water. An occasional good syringing with the hose will keep them clean, and aside from seeing that they are watered regularly and cutting in any irregular growths that are made, no further care is required until the Fall, when they should then be taken into the greenhouse and kept moderately cool, where they will flower again within a few days of the same period in which they bloomed the year previous. Should they be wanted to flower earlier it is better to give them a few degrees higher temperature from the time they are brought inside rather than try to force them hard for a few weeks just prior to the time they are wanted.

AZALEAS—These should have all the dead flowers carefully picked off, and when entirely through blooming should be shifted into larger pots. Potted sods and leaf soil in equal parts, with a little sand added, make a good compost to use, yet if the leaf mould is not obtainable one-eighth part of well-rotted manure may be used with the soil. The potting should be done as firmly as possible, using a flat stick to pack the soil well down all around the ball. The best location for azaleas throughout the Summer months is outdoors, plunged in the ground up to the rim of the pot. Do not put them away in a corner where the hose pipe will not reach them, and where the water has to be carried by hand, else some Sunday they might be neglected and suffer thereby. Place them in the most convenient spot possible, where they will be under the eye at all times; then they will be sure to receive all the water and syringing they need, which, through the warm weather, will often be twice a day at the least.

RHODODENDRONS—If any of these plants are left over the best possible way to treat them is to plant them outdoors in well enriched soil. They may be put quite close together, though not crowded so as to touch each other, at the time of planting. Water should be applied freely during dry weather, and in the Fall, when the cool weather approaches, those that are well set with buds may be lifted and potted, then placed in a cool house, where they may remain until time to bring them into bloom. Such plants as have not become well set with flower buds can be left outdoors through the Winter, but they must have some protection given them. A good mulching of litter, and either straw or hemlock boughs filled in between the plants, will afford good protection for them. This must not be done, however, until Winter has fairly set in, for to cover the rhododendrons up and then have a warm spell of weather afterward would be injurious to them. At the approach of Spring all the protecting material should be cleared away and the plants left as they are during the coming season, when it will be found that all will be filled with buds and may be lifted and forced during the coming Winter and Spring.

HEATHS—These are probably the least understood of any of our present day flowering plants. They are becoming more popular every year, however, and to be without them is simply to be without the very choicest of blooming subjects. With the varieties at command plants in flower can be had all the way from Christmas on till Summer time, and any that are left over can be easily kept till another year, and at the same time be worth double the value. After they are through flowering they should be cut back to within about an inch of the old wood, and watered very sparingly until new growth commences. When it is seen that growth is starting, repot them, using coarse fibrous loam and peat in equal quantities, with a good addition of coarse sand. Pot as firmly as possible, using a stick to ram the soil down around the ball. Plenty of drainage must be afforded them, and care must be taken to have the neck of the plant slightly higher than the soil at the edge of the pot, to prevent water settling around the neck, as that condition would soon result disastrously to the plant. After heaths are potted, either a very cool house or a cold frame is the most suitable place for them. The frame is to be preferred, as when Summer comes the sash can be removed altogether and he put on at will should a rainy spell of weather occur. Should they grow vigorously it is essential that another shift into larger pots be given them during the Summer, as they must not be allowed to become pot-bound to any great extent.

ROSES—The easiest way to treat these is to plant them out at once, and, without pruning, let them stay until next Winter, when they may be lifted and repotted. Rambler roses, however, can be had in better shape, we believe, by keeping them in the pots all the time, though it is more work to so treat them. Stand them outdoors and do not stint the water supply until they cease growing entirely; then it should be gradually withheld to better facilitate the ripening of the wood. Before taking them in for the Winter repot and use the best soil obtainable, with plenty of well-rotted manure added. Cut out the weak canes and tie the others into the form desired.

(92) Compost for Violets.—C. A. P.—An excellent soil for violets can be made by cutting the turf or sods from an old pasture. Cut them 4 or 5 inches thick, and pile them in some convenient place, adding one-fifth well-rotted manure and one bushel of lime to the cart load. If the sods cannot be obtained, the top soil of a well-cultivated field is the next best thing.

(93) Carrying Over Asparagus.—I would like to know, through your valuable paper, the best way to carry over Asparagus plumosus nanus and A. Sprengeri from one season to another; and if it is best to rest them in the Summer or divide the plants when they get large?

—To carry over asparagus from year to year division of the stools is not necessary. A solid bed is the best place in which to grow the plants, and they should have a partial rest during July and August or, before that time, if the strings were cut down earlier.

(94) Trouble with Geraniums.—I have some red geraniums which make a freaky growth of curled and twisted leaves, and produce no flowers. They are of the so-called double General Grant kind, and as my other varieties don't show any defects at all I am at a loss how to account for this trouble. I grow about a dozen varieties, all O. K., and all have been treated at the same time and in the same house. Have the plants in question deteriorated, and can the trouble be stopped by rouging?—A. V. L.

—The geraniums referred to are, perhaps, of some played-out variety, for although freaks in the formation of the foliage will occur in any variety the one named has always proved very satisfactory, and is known as a very free bloomer. If the plants are old ones, and have been stood in a shady corner all Winter, they should be cut down and repotted. If they are of this Spring's propagation, and every plant shows the same trouble, we would throw the whole batch away and get some better stock. The geranium, like every other plant, needs selection of cuttings to keep them from deteriorating.

(95) Composition of Soil.—Would sand benefit a heavy clay loam for growing roses and carnations? The soil retains the water a long time. It was cut from an old meadow, with a heavy sod. What quantity of manure should be used for roses and carnations? Should the manure be thoroughly decomposed?—T. A.

—If the loam is too heavy to drain properly, sand should be used by all means; though less would be needed for the roses than for the carnations, as roses are partial to a moderately heavy soil. Manure is of the most value always when thoroughly decomposed, but if we were preparing the soil heap several months before it was to be used, and the soil was as heavy as that mentioned, we would not object to using half-rotten stable manure, as the straw would help to lighten it. For the roses one-fourth of such manure should be used, and for carnations one-sixth.

(96) Coleus Damping Off.—Is the top temperature from 80 to 85 and bottom temperature from 60 to 65 degrees the cause of coleus damping off?—READER.

—We presume this inquiry has reference to the propagating bed, and the amount of water supplied to the coleus in such a heat to keep them from wilting is no doubt the direct cause of the damping-off. The top temperature should be less, rather than more, than that of the bottom heat, though coleus will thrive well at almost any temperature above 50 degrees if the watering is done intelligently.

(97) Treatment of Seeds of Pandanus Utilis.—Will you kindly tell me how the seed of Pandanus utilis should be treated before planting. Should they be soaked in warm water or put in as they are? How long does it take for them to germinate? I had fine Musa ensete seed come up this Winter that were planted last May.—CHAS. GREEN, Ala.

—To grow the Pandanus utilis from seed use shallow flats or boxes; place one or two inches of leaf soil in the bottom, spread the seed over this, then cover lightly with the same kind of soil, and on top of this put a thin layer of sphagnum moss. Water just enough to moisten through; place the flat on a bench where it will receive a gentle bottom heat, and keep the seeds just moist at all times, taking particular care that they never once become dry. The length of time necessary to germinate depends upon the amount of heat given and the quality of the seed. In an ordinary greenhouse temperature, with good seed, 90 days will be long enough to start them growing. No soaking of the seed in warm water is necessary.

A Good Easter Business.

The prediction of a big Easter business, and the purchasing of a large quantity of cut flowers and blooming plants was not a mistaken one, for trade with us was fully 25 per cent. better than last year's, and nearly everyone sold out. The rain on Thursday and Friday had a depressing effect, so mostly all the business was crowded in on Saturday, which made it harder for the people behind the counters. Some buyers could not get waited upon in a hurry, and would leave one place to go to another, only to find the same condition existing. Towards 8 o'clock T. J. Johnston closed his store against all further business for that evening, and all hands set to to put up orders. Stock of all kinds was exceptionally good—much better than last year. Violets sold like hot cakes all day Saturday and Sunday forenoon. There was no advance in the wholesale price, as flowers were in abundance, consequently the retailers made a little extra profit. In sympathy with the prices, however, asked for other flowers, carnations, for nstance, the florists hadn't the nerve to ask the ante-Easter price, as these flowers sold readily at an advance.

On top of the Easter business everybody seemed to have funeral work to do. The grip, which has been very prevalent here, is the cause of the large death rate. The members of the craft previously reported on the sick list have recovered.

Prices ruled higher this year. Carnations were scarce and sold, wholesale, at $4 to $6; lilies, 12c. to 15c. each; roses, $6 to 16; Beauty, 25c. to 50c. Tulips and narcissus in pots sold well.

Harrisii and longiflorum lilies were the best selling plants; azaleas, lilacs and rhododendrons, in the order named, were the next best sellers in that line. There was seen at T. J. Johnston's the only Acacia parndoxa in the city and for the first time; they sold well. Geo. C. Kelley had the finest show in his greenhouses seen in this section. Everything was sold out.

There was more advertising done in the city paper this year than ever before. The only thing I attribute this to was to keep the masses away from the department stores, which recently added a flower counter. Of course, it did some business, but I question if it affected the florists much. A. M.

A Profitable Easter.

The largest and most profitable business we ever did, is the report heard from all, both growers and retailers, regarding the Easter business. Everyone appears to be well satisfied with results. With the majority of stores both cash and charged sales were far ahead of those of previous years. Many stores had lots of plants left unsold, but even then they were ahead; and of the stock left over very little was lost, as business has been good this week, allowing stores to use up the surplus.

In reviewing the general business it is gratifying to note that the demand for high-priced plants was very good; in fact, some stores could have used more. Cheap stock, such as hyacinths, tulips and spiræas, formed the bulk of stock left over. In some cases there were too many azaleas; it is certain too many of these were grown, as plants that cost 35c. to 40c., potted, were sold at retail at 50c.; and many plants were offered at $3 retail that other years went for $4 to $5. There were many lilies unsold; but it is difficult to say that there were too many of these. It would be better, perhaps, to state there were too many poor flowers, also plants; in consequence, buyers turned to other stock. Many lots of lilies were too far advanced, and were soft when sent in. Then there were many poor plants—short and unhealthy—with flowers looking half starved, unable to develop fully. Good lilies found ready sale; made-up pans containing three plants sold very quickly, and where a price was put on plants sales were quicker. Some would say 25c. per flower and then count the flowers; when the price was given outright sales were better.

Crimson Rambler roses at from $4 to $10, retail price, found ready sale, but above that figure went slower. The demand for the very large plants which wholesaled at $15 to $25 was very poor; evidently their day is gone.

Hydrangeas sold very well, the call was greatest for large plants in 8 to 10-inch pots.

Rhododendrons also found ready sale, except in very large plants. Tulips and hyacinths sold best in small pans—6-inch to 9-inch. Spiræas in large pans, 10 or 12 clumps to a pan, did not go well in this city.

Cut flower trade was very good; everything salable was well used up. In roses medium length Beauty and white varieties were rather scarce. Robert Scott & Son sent in 2,000 Liberty, which were quickly used up. Carnations also sold out well, except those received late Saturday, which were, in most cases, too light and sold a few days later. Violets of fresh stock went well. There was a large quantity of Southern stock around which went to the street men, as also did the Southern daffodils. It can be safely said that in most stores the orders for cut flowers were in advance of those of past years, as the force of employees was kept going many hours longer this year. The weather was all that could be desired, and deliveries were made with more promptness.

Certainly no city showed such a floral display as did Philadelphia; no matter in what part of the city you went you met people carrying flowering plants, and both in the home of the artisan and the millionaire were seen displays of these. Florists in the vicinity of the cemeteries did a flourishing business, and were kept busy until dark on Easter Sunday. Church decorations were also carried out on a much larger scale this year, and in many cases better prices were obtained than in past years.

This week has been a week of weddings, nearly every store having some on hand. Pennock Bros. had three on Tuesday and eight on Wednesday, five of these being large decorations, so that nearly everyone with flowering plants left from Easter has at least been able to get the cost out of them for either decoration or cut flowers for design work.

Easter of 1900 was a good one for all. Next year Easter will fall on April 7.

Easter Trade.

Now that the hustle and bustle of this, "the harvest time of the grower," is over, we can look back with much satisfaction upon all things concerning the business in general. In the first place, although we have had a cold Spring thus far, Easter was late enough to allow of all kinds of flowering plants to be brought in without much extra forcing, and there is probably no Easter on record when plants have given such universal satisfaction as they have done this time. Storekeepers bought very heavily in advance, and are free to admit that never before were they so well suited with the quality delivered to them.

At the Clinton Market.

Over on the West Side, at the corner of Canal street, the business of the day may be said to begin. Saturday morning broke cold and clear, and the scene around the old market was lively indeed, both inside and out, for it must be understood that a great many growers prefer the outside to the inside of this antiquated dilapidated building, to dispose of their products. We counted 38 salesmen with their wagons standing around the little triangular park that faces the market, while inside the building we were informed about 36 stands were occupied. If one wants to see this market at its busiest we would recommend him to be there not later than 4 a. m., for here there is little dallying or haggling over values, and before 6 o'clock the rush is over and the growers are making tracks for home again. The principal buyers are the peddlers and the small storekeepers of the city, and the fact of the peddler having to get his wares into the residential districts early makes it possible for the growers to get rid of their stock in short order, and seeing that the time they spend in the old market is so limited, and that the location has become the rendezvous of all the plant peddlers in the city, we cannot but feel that the Market Florists' Association is justified in clinging to the old market, but the city authorities ought to make the place more comfortable.

In referring to the demand for plants, we may say that everthing sold well and brought satisfactory prices. A great variety was offered, and with the possible exception of hyacinths the quality was generally above the average. Geraniums in 4-inch pots with one truss of flowers brought $1 per dozen; pelargoniums in 5-inch pots fetched $2.50, while some finer stock in 6-inch pots realized 50c. each. Spiraeas, caraations, callas and lilies all brought $2.50 per dozen. Rambler roses realized from $1.50 to $6 each, according to size; hybrid roses, from 25c. to 50c. each; these were in 5 and 6-inch pots. Azaleas brought from $1 up. Acacias were mostly small and fetched $3.50 per dozen. Hydrangeas went at from $6 to $8 per dozen; rhododendrons, $1 each; heliotropes, anthemis, White Ten-Week stock and hyacinths, $1 per dozen. The market is open every morning. No retail sales are allowed, and President Lehaig, Secretary Leach and such staunch supporters as H. C. Steinhoff, John Nicol, John Birnie, George Brown and a host of others deserve great credit for the manner in which they have consolidated and made it possible for buyers and sellers to come together at one particular location—a feat that the cut flower people have yet been unable to accomplish.

In the Cut Flower Exchange.

By 6 o'clock in the morning business in cut flowers commences, and we find at the Cut Flower Exchange, in East 34th street, a regular pandemonium of noise and scurry. The place was chock full, and the dealers elated over the prospects of selling out at good prices, as the presence of so many buyers indicated. The weather looked promising for a fine day, and to would-be buyers this had a great significance. There was a fairly good supply of everything, but by 7 o'clock a comparative quietness prevailed, and all the salable stock was gone. Lilies brought for the best $10 per 100, and carnations $4 and upwards. Tulips, daffodils and single narcissus also realized $4. Callas fetched $1.50 per dozen straight. Smilax was not over plentiful, selling out quickly. Many commission men were among the buyers—or perhaps they were only gathering pointers as to the probable supply and demand of flowers for the day. There they were, however, and we have no doubt that a good many large lots were bought to be again resold in the commission district later in the day.

Around the Wholesale District.

In the wholesale district, 28th, 29th and 30th streets, and at the Cut Flower Co.'s place, 23d street, business did not open with any particular rush. No uneasiness was felt, however, as it was well known that retailers were all well loaded with plants, and that cut flowers would not be seriously thought of until toward midnight. Moreover, 28th street seemed more like a plant mart than anything else, judging from outward appearances. Loads of plants were displayed on the walks and in the windows, and if plants are to be the popular thing for Easter, why the commission men will handle them just as well as cut flowers. Roses were in quite heavy crop, especially Beauty. Violets also were very heavy, but the same cannot be said of carnations. Saturday night and Sunday morning business in cut flowers took on a lively turn, and by Sunday noon all good stock, with the exception of special and fancy Bride, had been cleared out. Special Beauty had been sold at various prices; some flowers had realized 65c., but more had gone at 50c.; and where they had been cut at all tight a less figure than that had to be taken. Bridesmaid fetched 20c. in some instances for specials, though the majority ruled at from $12 to $15 per 100. The short grade sold at from $3 to $4. Bride did not go so well as Bridesmaid, and some of the top grades of the latter were left over. The shorter flowers could be used for making up, however, and went off about as well as the pink variety. Meteor did not do any better than at ordinary times, the presence of Jacq. in the market no doubt being responsible in a great measure for this. Long-stemmed Jacqs. brought $3 per dozen, the shorter stock clearing out at proportionate figures. Brunner sold well, some of extra length bringing as high as $6 per dozen.

Carnations of fair standard quality sold easily at $4 and $6 per 100, fancies bringing $8, and novelties as high as $2 per dozen. Tulips, daffodils and single narcissus remained steady at $4 per 100. Lily of the valley went fairly well, the top grade realizing $3.

The quantity of violets received was something enormous, and considering the quality the prices realized ought to be very satisfactory. Specials brought $1; ordinary, 50c. and 60c.; those of poorer quality went to the street vendors in great quantities, at about 40c. per 100.

Taking it all in all the wholesale business this Easter has been satisfactory to all concerned, so far as we have been able to learn. The shipping trade was good on the few days previous, and from our own observations we do not think there have been so many pickled flowers in the market this year as was the case in previous years, though, of course, there were some. Lilies seemed to be rather too plentiful on Saturday forenoon, but they went off all right, and while many sold at $10 there was also pleaty that realized $12.

Aside from the regular run of flowers we noticed a few bunches of larkspur, some light-colored gladiolus and a few fine blooms of the rose Captain Christy.

In green goods bronze leucothoe sprays and leaves of the berberis were special features with H. Bunyard, and enormous quantities were sold to the trade by him.

Among the Retailers.

The show windows of the retailers never looked more beautiful than they did last Friday. Ribbon was not used so extravagantly as on former occasions and the displays were thus rendered more charming. J. H. Small & Sons used some finely colored crotons among large pans and baskets of superb hyacinths in one of their windows, backed by lilies and acacias, making one of the prettiest sights observable. In the center of the store stood what was undoubtedly the finest specimen kentia in the city. The walls were banked to the ceiling with the very cream of choice plants—the whole making a most beautiful display.

In George Stumpp's large store plants were arranged in groups, and the windows were most tastefully filled. Large stock predominated, and some very valuable specimens were to be seen. One window was filled exclusively with large Rambler roses, excepting just the center space, which was occupied by a splendid specimen acacia. The touch of yellow in the sea of red was a beautiful blend.

Hodgson & Son's three large windows were extremely fine; one was filled entirely with lilies, one with azaleas and hyacinths, the other with acacias in brass jardinieres. The last named had a very rich, golden appearance and was very striking.

Alex. McConnell had, as usual, a beautiful assortment of the best stock obtainable, and the windows and space in front of the store were filled to overflowing with choice specimens. A near-by store had to be used as an anaex, to such large proportions has his plant trade grown.

Wadley & Smythe had an elegant line of large specimens, among which were some fine bougainvilleas and tall Rambler roses.

The Gallatin Co. showed very fine plants in azaleas, on which ribbon had been used quite lavishly.

The Rosary had a magnificent specimen rhododendron in their window, and the sides of the store were banked with choice plants.

Fleischman's specialty was birch bark pot covers and baskets, and his display of plants was very effective. Artificial accessories were not employed, and the plants on view were of the very choicest.

Although plants were bought very heavily by the storekeepers in advance, it became apparent on Saturday morning that they had made no mistake in so doing. Many near-by growers were telephoned to for additional supplies early Sunday morning. That tells the condition of the plant business better than any words. Of course, some plants are left over, but not enough to speak of.

The cut flower trade was better than was anticipated; the church decorations were as elaborate as ever, and among the retailers in general the opinion is that business was never better.

After Easter.

There has been but little business in the cut flower line since Sunday. The weather has been very disagreeable, Tuesday and Wednesday both being very wet days. With the number of society events scheduled for this week it was hardly expected that business would fall quite so flat; nevertheless there was scarcely any demand on Monday, and the day previous had been so uncommonly warm and fine that roses began to pour in in unexpected quantities. The demand has been so light that they accumulated rapidly, and the prices were cut accordingly—stock that had been held over one day being disposed of at whatever figure could be obtained, straight slips going as low as $15 and $18 per 1,000. There is quite a lot of mildewed roses now on the market, and the dealer who is unfortunate enough to have this class of stock on hand is in a most unenviable position. Nobody wants it, yet satisfactory returns are expected to be made.

Violets continue to be very plentiful, and while a few of the specials are bought by storemen at reasonable figures the majority has to reach the public through the hands of the peddlers. On wet days this outlet is stopped altogether, and when a pleasant day does come, as it did on Thursday, dealers can only unload by offering the flowers at bargains to the street men. On the day mentioned immense quantities were thus disposed of at $2 and $3 per 1,000.

Carnations are going rather slowly and at reduced prices, still there is no apparent glut as yet. Prices on callas and lilies have gone down from where they were last week; good stock of both can be had at $6. Orchids are to be had only in limited quantities, and meet with fair demand. Good valley goes at $2.50. Daffodils and tulips are much reduced in supply, and the price has been cut in half since Easter Sunday. Limited quantities of delphinium and blue cornflower are in, and bring from $1 to $1.50 per bunch of one dozen. Good smilax remains somewhat scarce, and the best strings realize 25c. Asparagus and maidenhair fern move fairly well, but smilax is in the lead among the green materials.

At a recent society wedding Alex. McConnell put up some of the finest decorations of the season. In the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, a large canopy, composed of Bride roses and lily of the valley, the latter forming the margin and being a solid mass 2 feet in width, was made in the center of the room. From the canopy, and extending to each of the corners of the room, white gauze ribbon was gracefully hung. The side walls were completely lined with American Beauty roses. In the hall room at Delmonico's, where the reception was held, a bower of palms and Beauty roses and a horseshoe 6 feet high overhung the bridal pair, while the guests were being received. Twenty-four guest tables were used for the dinner, and each one was adorned with Beauty roses and asparagus. The bridal table was trimmed with the same kind of flowers as were used in the canopy—Bride and valley—and in the center was a 4-foot high basket, which was composed also of similar flowers. The bridal table, canopy and bouquet were all in white, all other decorations being red and green.

Brevities.

Mrs. Williams, well known in the business as Lena Koch, died on Thursday, the 12th inst., and was buried on Monday, the 16th. The deceased was 43 years of age and had kept a flower stand at the corner of Fulton street and Broadway from the time she was 13 years old, till a short time ago.

In Frederic Loeser's large department store in Brooklyn a cut flower business was opened this week under the management of C. Prettel.

Tuesday being a wet day seemed to benefit the auction rooms greatly; large crowds were observed in both places, and stock sold freely, realizing satisfactory prices.

Saaders' annual Spring sale of orchids was held in Cleary & Co.'s on Thursday, and a choice lot of stock was disposed of. Among those attending the sale were W. Mathews, Utica, N. Y.; J. Rochrs, Carlton Hill; Dr. Kitchener, Orange, N. J.; A. Herrington, and W. Duckham, Madison, N. J.

Baltimore.

Easter Trade.

With fair weather and good stock in great abundance, trade had every advantage to make it good. The tale to be told this season is, persons that had never bought a plant bought one this year. It was a great pleasure to see men carrying home pots of tulips, hyacinths and lilies on Saturday night.

The department store is a feature in the business to-day, and in future Easters it must receive a consideration Naturally, these stores advertise their stock at prices much lower than those of the florist. They sell lots of stock. But all helps.

Violets were the leaders this Easter; those who had them made good hard cash, for they sold well. Lilies were in demand, and were not over-plentiful; they brought from 12c. to 15c., wholesale.

Carnations were popular and largely called for; the same with roses.

Pot plants went well; azaleas were extra fine, while bulbous stock was comparatively poor.

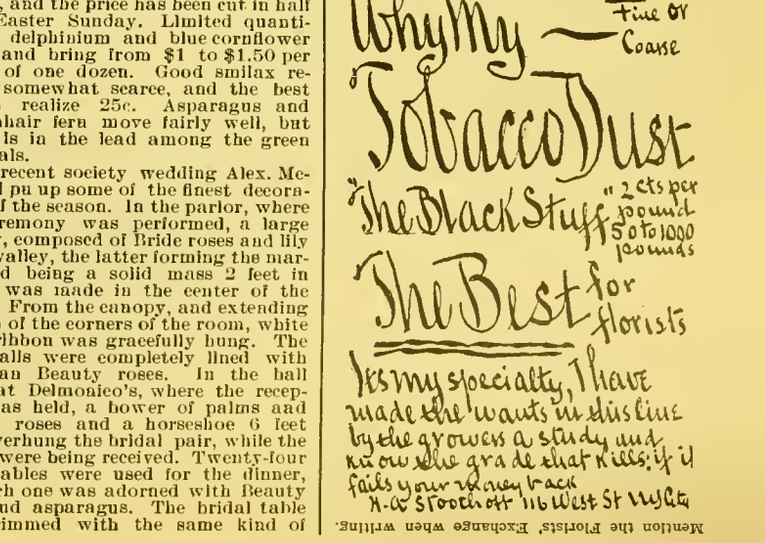
EDWIN A. SEIDEWITZ.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—There was a first-class demand for carnations, roses taking second place. Azaleas sold especially well. Cinerarias, potted roses, hyacinths, tulips and daffodils in pots were also largely called for. Prices were about as last year. One florist here bought 500 carnations from a jobber and threw away about 300 of them. Such experiences hurt cut flower trade. The call for Easter lilies was smaller, the trade understanding them to be diseased seemed to take it for granted that there were none to be had.—M.



EASTER TRADE REPORTS.

FOXBORO, MASS.—Easter trade was fully as good as last year's. The best selling plants were lilies, primulas and geraniums in bloom; and the greatest call was for flowers of lilies, carnations and violets. No novelties were offered as far as I know.—A. F. B.

LEOMINSTER, MASS.—Trade was 20 per cent. better than last year's, lilies taking the lead at 20c. per bloom or bud, followed by azaleas, white and colored; narcissus Vion Sion in pans, tulips and hyacinths. There was quite a call for carnations and not enough to supply all demands. Violets sold well, but I had a few left over. Palms and ferns were very little called for.—J. F.

HOLYOKE, MASS.—Business is reported larger than last year, with a scarcity in roses and carnations. Violets were popular, and the sales of this flower exceeded those of past years. Bulbs and other potted flowering plants sold well. Carnation marketed at 75c. Trade was quiet until late Saturday, and then the rush came and the stores were cleaned out at closing.—L. S. S.

MANCHESTER, VT.—Easter trade here was mostly in cut flowers—lilies and carnations being in greatest demand. Of the former we had just enough to fill orders, but carnations were very short, and we could have sold many more. Prices were the highest I have ever known here. Saturday morning was very cold with snow squalls and high winds.—GEO. SMITH.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—Our Easter trade was good. Up to Saturday noon plants sold best, lilies and Crimson Rambler roses taking the lead. Daffodils, tulips and hyacinths in pots went well. Saturday evening and Sunday morning we might have sold many more roses and carnations than we had. We tried to buy them before Easter, but the price was too high for our customers.—E. D. S.

BANGOR, ME.—Easter sales were tremendous here; in fact, they surpassed in a surprising degree those of past years. Our florists are well satisfied. There was an extra large sale of longiflorum, Harrisii being very scant and somewhat diseased. Azaleas went well and in good quantities. Carl Beers made a specialty of violets, he having picked the past few days some 16,000 blooms and sold some 1,200 violets in pots, prices being very good. A large number of Crimson Ramblers was sold. The demand for cut flowers was brisk. Carnations and yellow and white tulips brought good prices.

ELMIRA, N. Y.—Easter is an old, old story, and illustrates the French proverb: "Every day is alike, but every day is not the same day." The story of Easter, 1900, was a combination of diseased lilies and unfavorable weather for the most part. But trade was satisfactory on the whole, and sales 25 per cent. ahead of last Easter. First-class cut flowers sold as well as the best blooming plants, and there is little on hand for Easter Monday. Quality of home-grown stock was excellent. Out-of-town "salted and pickled stock" was offered in job lots, to help pay express charges.—G. P. R.

ITHACA, N. Y.—The Easter trade here was the largest ever known, the only complaint I have heard being that the supply was not nearly equal to the demand in violets, roses and carnations. There was a heavy call for azaleas, acacias, tulips and daffodils. Hyacinths went slowly, still not many were left over. As for cut flowers everything was sold clean out. The weather in the first part of the week was dull and cold, which retarded flowering stock quite a little; but the last three days were brighter and warmer, and brought out large crowds of buyers. Prices ruled well and very few complaints were heard.—H. Y.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Easter trade was a little better, compared with that of last year. The best selling stocks in cut flowers were lilies, roses, carnations and violets; in plants, the Crimson Rambler roses, lilies, double violets and good rose plants of different varieties. Prices were about the same as last year, excepting for the best grade of carnations, which sold very easily at an advanced figure. Some carnations shipped to us was poor stock indeed.

Will Bertermann is still in Ashville, N. C., for the benefit of his health. We trust that he will be back soon much improved.—B. F. Co.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Easter trade here proved most satisfactory; almost everything in the shape of a flower was sold, and in the case of carnations the supply fell far short of the demand. Stock generally was much better than last year, this being especially noticeable in the case of lilies, both Harrisii and longiflorum. For pot plants the demand was also good, but this can be said only of plants in flower. Azaleas appeared to be the favorite, and, unfortunately, the supply was short. Prices, with the exception of carnations, were the same as last year, and on carnations there was an advance of 50 per cent. Gibson Bros., who had considerable church work to do, found most useful their extra well-grown stock of L. longiflorum and Hydrangea Thos. Hogg. This firm is more than satisfied with their share of the trade.—MAC.

AUGUSTA, GA.—Easter trade this year was a great deal larger than in any previous year, and, as a consequence, we were rather short of flowers. Harrisii lilies have been a great drawback. I don't know what is the reason, but only 10 per cent. of the stock bloomed, though it was attended to with the same care as formerly. The sale of plants was the largest I have ever seen at this time. Azaleas in full bloom sold splendidly; in fact, every potted plant in flower found a purchaser, prices ranging from $1.50 to $3. Cut flowers were in demand after the supply of potted plants was exhausted, and I believe if the lilies had been all in bloom would have sold very few cut flowers. Prices for lilies, 25c. per bud; Bridesmaid and Bride roses, $2 per dozen; Beauty, $5 per dozen; carnations, no fancy, 75c. a dozen; valley, 50c. a dozen.—A. G.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The Easter trade in this city was characterized by large supplies and quick buying—nothing good remaining unsold. Prices realized were about the average Easter values, giving an ample margin for profit. Among plants azaleas and lilies were sold out clean, as also were good hydrangeas, both pink and blue. Sales of all Holland bulbs in pans were also lively. Novelties, unless of very striking merit, were not in much demand. The buyer here wishes as much show as possible for his money. Of lilies, ericas and genistas only a very moderate quantity can be disposed of. Two firms adopted business cards with cultural directions for the plant sold printed upon one side, and the card attached to the plant when delivered. In cut flowers roses, carnations and violets, as ever, lead all others. The lesson to be gleaned is the same as other Easter seasons of the past—good stock in good order is sure of a ready market, but prices must not be made prohibitive. —W.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Never before have the florists of Rochester had so great and profitable a business at Eastertide as this year. The most noticeable change was the enormous demand for pot plants. American Beauty roses, with long stem, at $1 a piece; pink roses and violets were the only cut flowers that received much attention. Some of the comparatively new things were mountain laurel in pots, white lilac, Crimson Rambler roses and dwarf and giant rhododendrons. Of these the last named seemed to be the most popular. Violets were less popular, pink being the prevailing color, both for church decorations and private use. Several florists with whom I talked said the wonderful increase in demand for pot plants had far exceeded their expectations, and they are already thinking about enlarging their greenhouse capacity, to meet the still greater future demand indicated by the present rush of orders. Prices were from 15 to 25 per cent. better than last year. —C. P. W.

LAWRENCE, MASS.—Easter trade this year was somewhat ahead of last, lilies and carnations taking the lead, with roses next. The latter brought about the usual prices, while carnations realized from 60c. to $1 per dozen, according to how each florist was supplied. Lilies fetched better prices than in 1899. Flowering plants in variety sold fairly well; nothing special was presented. A few Crimson Rambler in pots were called for at fairly good figures. Dutch hyacinths were a partial failure, the spikes being very inferior to those of former years. They seem to get worse all the time, this being the cause of small sales in bulbous stock.—L.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—Easter trade was about 25 per cent. better than last year. Plants sold well, lilies taking the lead; but they were scarce. Our lilies were about four to five days late. Azaleas sold well, also spiræas, potted roses, Dutch hyacinths and pansies. In cut flowers, next to lilies, carnations, Beauty and tea roses sold best. There was also a large demand for violets, but the warm spell ten days ago did them up.—C. L. B.

The Easter demand was larger than last year's. Lilies, Beauty roses, carnations, valley and violets, in the order named, were in good demand. However, this was the first Easter that the supply was equal to the demand with us. Also we did more cash business. Lilies brought $4; Beauty, $5; carnations, $2; roses, $2; valley, 75c.; daffodils, 75c.; Romans, 75c.; narcissi, 75c. per dozen; violets, $1 per 100. All our Knoxville florists got left on lilies; these flowers were short stemmed. Our bulb men sent us Bermuda longiflorum in place of Harrisii, so we did not get more than half of them ready in time. I suppose they thought Easter being late this year they could get Harrisii prices for longiflorum bulbs. However, we have done well anyway, and feel good.—C. W. C.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Easter trade here turned out to be most excellent, although during the early part of the week the weather was most unsatisfactory—snow storms accompanied with a biting wind causing a rather gloomy outlook. This made a shorter cut of roses, etc., than was expected at one time, but the end of the week the weather changed and the florists got a hustle on; and the two together made one of the best Easters on record. The churches decorated more extensively than usual, and the outside shipping far ahead of any previous season. Carnations were the only thing real short, roses, violets and Easter lilies being quite plentiful. Many hundreds of the latter were shipped out to Chicago and the surrounding towns here. Prices ruled a little higher for carnations and lilies—50c. to 75c. per dozen, and 15c. to 20c. each; roses, $1 to $3 per dozen; hyacinths, daffodils, etc., 40c. to 75c. per dozen. Violets were plentiful at 20c. Pot plants were in abundance, of the usual Easter kinds, and sold freely at the average prices. Everyone appears to have had a good trade, and the outlook for the Spring bedding business is also regarded as most promising.—S. B.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Excepting a breeze, which was rather lively at times, the weather on Saturday and Easter Sunday was perfect. Generally speaking the florists had a sufficiency of everything, perhaps excepting roses and carnations. Violets never had a sale equal to this Easter. Bulbous stock sold late and palms went slow. Flowering plants of all kinds, from geraniums up, sold well. The individual reports of the florists are: Fisher & Son, better business than last year. Violets with violet cords were very popular. Lots of lively colored geraniums were disposed of. Couldn't get roses or carnations enough. Littlefield's first Easter at his new store was highly satisfactory. He sold out in some lines before noon. Violets were in great demand; sold 8,000 in three hours. Roses and carnations were short. Crimson Rambler roses and azaleas went well. Sargeot sold out clean; had about stock enough and more than in past years. Beauty brought $6 per dozen and sold clean. Flowering plants went well. Potted violets and yellow English primroses were good selling novelties. Madans sold out clean, with shortage in roses and carnations, and was handicapped with funeral work. Lange sold 10,000 Easter lilies, with other things in proportion. A fine line of flowering plants were disposed of. Roses brought from $2 to $4; carnations, 75c. to $1.50; violets, 35c. per bunch; lilies, 25c. per bud and blossom. Bulbous stock also brought good prices.—L. S. S.

Springfield, Mass.

Easter Notes.

The week preceding Easter was very advantageous to trade—good weather to hold back plants, and just at the last moment good weather for handling plants without wrapping. The result was an unusually good business. Plants and flowers were abundant, except carnations; and all were disposed of. Much of the business was rushed into the last two days, but generally very easily handled and quite satisfactory. The churches were well supplied, and some of them beautifully decorated, but during the week previous to Easter Sunday but very few flowers and potted plants were used in decorating the dry goods and other stores, not but what an attempt was made to decorate, but artificial plants and flowers were utilized almost entirely. This is to be regretted; if such occasions are worthy of observance, the genuine living creations of nature are none to good.

Prices ranged about the same as in former years. Cut flowers had about the usual demand; potted plants found a much better sale. Lilies led, closely followed by azaleas, bulbous flowers in pans, potted violets and the smaller plants. Some good hydrangeas were shown by Mark Aitken, also lilacs, tulips in flats and fine azaleas. Large bushel baskets filled with Ramblers were a beautiful sight, and "a bushel of roses" in reality. Mr. Aitken reports the largest business of any Easter yet.

Miller made a good showing of seasonable flowers and plants. His heath was beautiful; spiræas, azaleas and adiantum in pans were also very fine. He reports this Easter ahead of last year.

Schlatter & Son did a rushing business at their store, and also at the greenhouse. Bulbous flowers in pots and pans were a feature with them, as well as Harrisii, which they grew in large quantities. The finest rhododendrons in this market were shown by this firm.

Fairfield made a special display at his store during Easter week, showing all the seasonable plants, including heaths, lilac, Rambler roses, azaleas and well grown lilies. His business was very satisfactory.

J. W. Adams & Co., nurserymen, report orders coming in with a rush, now that Spring has really arrived.

Easter Report.

Easter week the weather was abominable; but business was simply grand. The early part of the week freezing, a fine day on Wednesday enabled those having stores to move the plants to them from the greenhouses. Thursday, Friday and Saturday we had all kinds of weather, mostly drizzling rain, and on Saturday morning a storm of sleet.

Lilies, etc., for the churches, were rushed out early, as we could not tell but what a heavy snow storm might be on by night. However, it kept off. The stock of plants was very large and of the best quality. Everyone seemed to sell out, with the exception of a little bulbous stock and a few spiræas. The leading plant in Ottawa is easily the azalea, then lilies and hybrids, especially Beauty. Pot hyacinths seem to have had their day.

Scrim rented two extra stores side by side, one for show and selling plants, the other for a reserve of plants and for packing; and it worked like a charm. His window display was an immense azalea, 6 feet high and the same in width —a mass of flowers.

The center of this store, filled with 200 azaleas of different colors and perfect in bloom, was a sight. His stock of azaleas, some 350, all went. He had a fine lot of Beauty and Mrs. J. Laing roses, which sold freely. Mr. Scrim reports the increase in business at 40 per cent.

Graham Bros. also had a fine show of azaleas, lilies and bulbous stock. Business with them was rushing, the only stock left being bulbous flowers.

Wright, of Aylmer, who had a fine stock of lilies, sold a large quantity for Montreal, and cleared out all those that he left at stores through the city.

Trade at the market was not so good as it would have been with more congenial weather. The churches decorated much more elaborately than in former years, and cleared off the stock of spiræas.

The cut flower trade was also an advance on previous years, everything being sold out early. Carnations were not plentiful. Roses were good and abundant; but were sold out long before closing time. Scrim had quite a bonanza in violets, selling some 6,000. All tulips and daffodils went.

To sum up the Easter trade the most liberal estimates of sales was greatly exceeded.

In looking over the greenhouses the amount of potting to get bedding stock into shape is alarming, owing to the late Easter.

The trade generally will be pleased to hear that owing to the efforts of C. Scrim and Dr. Fletcher, of the experimental farm, Liberty roses and others will be allowed to enter Canada.

GENEVIEVE LORD

The Peerless New Pink Carnation.

In all of our long experience we have never had a Carnation produce as many first-class, high-grade blooms to the square foot as Genevieve Lord. It blooms early and the year round. Its color is just right; "beautiful," "lovely," "exquisite," "perfectly charming," are some of the adjectives used by some of our lady customers in describing it. With all its good productiveness, size is a leading feature, large enough to put it away up front. Its grand stem is perhaps its crowning feature. What is a flower without a stem? Genevieve Lord stands up straight twelve months in the year. When you think of all this, and a non-bursting calyx thrown in for good measure, there is little left to be desired. We are pleased to announce that we can fill orders promptly after April 10th, but do not know how long we can promise this, as stock is going rapidly. To clinch matters and drive a good bargain, order at once.

Price, doz., $2.00; 100, $10 00; 1000, $75.00.

Can also furnish all of the big new ones at introducers' prices, as well as the best standard varieties.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS A complete list of the best now and standard. ☞Catalogue free to all applicants.

Easter Trade Shows an Increase.

An increase in the Easter business is the general report this year. During the week stock was held back pretty well, causing a decided shortage; but as the demand was not heavy until Friday the scarcity was not much felt. The plant growers were kept very busy all week, and most of them had a great deal of extra help on hand. The weather was mild and well suited to the delivery of plants for the most part of the week, but Thursday and Friday a drizzling rain fell all day, making it very disagreeable.

Prices on plants were maintained about as usual. Good lily plants fetched $12.50 a 100 flowers, while a few extra finely grown ones brought $15 a 100. Azaleas were in very good supply and sold well at good figures. Rhododendrons were scarce, but the demand for them was not very brisk. Acacias and genistas also sold very well in the various sizes. Crimson Rambler roses were quite extensively grown this season, and though more than ever were disposed of by the growers a few were left on their hands. These plants were held at $35 a dozen for good, strong subjects in 7-inch pots, while larger ones, in 8-inch pots, brought $50 to $60; but in larger lots slightly lower figures ruled. A few h. p. roses were on the market and sold well.

Growers of bulbous stock found an unprecedented demand for their goods, and large quantities were disposed of. Daffodils, tulips and hyacinths in pans brought $6 and $7 a dozen.

In the wholesale district, too, the rush started the early part of the week, when an extra force was put on in all the stores. The first three or four days were devoted almost entirely to the shipments of potted plants, which were gotten pretty well out of the way by Thursday evening, thus leaving the balance of the week for the handling of cut flowers; and it was not any too much time, large quantities of stock being disposed of. The market was pretty slim up to Friday morning, but the demand was correspondingly light. The growers would have everybody believe that everything was going to be very scarce, but Saturday saw almost all kinds of stock in ample supply, the only really apparent scarcity being in cut lily blooms and first-class violets.

Roses were in good supply, but met a fairly good demand, and prices were about where they had been for some time preceding Easter. American Beauty, of fine grade, made $25 a 100, a few extra specials going above that. Smaller grades sold at from $8 and $12.50 to $16 a 100; these latter were more plentiful and in good demand. Ulrich Brunner and Jacqueminot realized about the same figures as Beauty for corresponding grades, though a limited supply of extra fine stock of each rose made $35 a 100. Bride and Bridesmaid were in good supply, but not so much sought after this season. The general quality was very good. Prices on these roses ran from $16 a 100 for best, down to $6 for short-stemmed flowers.

Carnations, as usual, were away up owing to the promised "scarcity," which did not show itself to any marked degree. Orders were taken beforehand for carnations of finest grades, of best ordinary sorts, to be delivered on Saturday at $5 per 100; but there were quite a few good ones at the Flower Market on that morning which did not fetch that figure. Prices ran, for fancies, from this price to $8 for choicest select blooms, but, of course, there was only a limited supply of them.

Bulbous stock was very plentiful, and quantities were disposed of at the usual prices.

The supply of violets was good, but Easter being so late this year the quality was hardly up to the standard of Easter stock. Really fine violets were scarce and more could have been disposed of if obtainable. Valley was very plentiful, at usual prices, as were mignonette, asparagus, smilax, adiantum, etc.

The retailers all report a very good Easter trade, with a fine demand for plants as against a falling off in the cut flower trade. The increase in the price of carnations year after year at Easter is responsible for this condition more than anything else, as there are quantities of flowering plants that can be sold at prices ranging from $1 to $2, which give more satisfaction than carnations, when the latter have to be held at from $1 to $1.50 and even $2 a dozen. If this state of things continues it is apparent that the carnation will in future figure but very little as an Easter flower.

The window displays were very showy not a few windows being filled entirely with Crimson Rambler roses. The public takes very kindly to this handsome Easter plant, and prices were of a very high standard, the plants selling at from $5 to $12 each at the stores; and undoubtedly many more of them will be used in the future when they can be grown to be sold cheaper. H. p. roses, in pots, also sold very well at good prices.

Lilies were well cleaned up in nearly all the stores, retailing at 20c. and 25c. per flower and bud.

Bulbous stock in pans and pots, as usual, sold very well, retailing at $1 and $1.25 a pan. Spiræa did not go very fast this year. Then there were quantities of such plants as primulas, cinerarias, marguerites, violets, carnation plants, genistas, etc., all of which did very well.

At present writing (Wednesday) there is little new to be said about the market, except that carnations are becoming cheaper, being in good supply, with a holiday Thursday, on which there is never much business done here. Carnations of best quality, which last week were bringing $5 per 100, sold to-day for $2.50 and $3, smaller grades ranging down to $1. F. J. N.

G. H. CRANE

THE BEST SCARLET CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED.

We have the finest and best selected stock of this Carnation in the country. We have 25,000 selected cuttings now ready, and can ship promptly on receipt of order.

Price, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL MACEO

THE BEST CRIMSON CARNATION.

Pure, Rich, Clear, Effective Color, the Best Keeper of all Crimsons. The Most Profuse Bloomer of all. Produces 25 per cent. More Flowers than any other Carnation we have ever grown. Sells Out Clean in Quantity. Is Liked by Everybody.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL GOMEZ

Some growers who have not grown Maceo think this is the best of the two varieties. Our experience shows Maceo to be the most profitable of the two. Gomez has a longer stem, is lighter in color and sells at 20 per cent. higher price than Maceo.

If you are in doubt as to which to plant, buy an equal quantity of each variety. That will enable you to determine which is best suited for your requirements.

15,000 Cuttings ready, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Ethel Crocker A pure red-pink shade of Mrs. Jas. Dean, but darker, healthiest habit of all; fine stock now ready. $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Morning Glory (Dorner). The Daybreak Colored Scott, the best salmon pink on the market at present; a bright, refreshing shade; very free bloomer; always in flower; ready now. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Olympia Largest variegated Carnation, only rival to Mrs. G. M. Bradt; strong plants, from soil and a few from pots, at $12.00 per 100.

Mrs. G. M. Bradt One of the largest and most sought after Carnations grown, producing blooms 3 to 4 in. in diameter; best seller of its class; strong stock, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Seeds, Cuttings and Bulbs in Mails for the Cape Colony, South Africa.

The Post Office Department at Washington, D. C., issued March 5, 1900, the following information regarding seeds, etc., sent to South Africa:

The Postal Administration of the British Colony of the Cape of Good Hope (Cape Colony, South Africa,) has advised this department that packages containing seeds, cuttings or bulbs, which are mailed in other countries as "samples of merchandise," and dispatched as such to the Cape Colony, will not be recognized in that Colony as "samples," when the contents are ascertained to have a salable value and to have been sent in execution of an order; and that such packages will be delivered only upon the payment by addressees of double the amount of the deficient postage calculated at the rate applicable to letters addressed for delivery in the Cape Colony and mailed in the country from which the packages were received.

Packages containing seeds, cuttings or bulbs mailed as bona-fide trade samples—not for sale or in execution of orders—and which conform to the regulations prescribed for "samples" in international mails, will be recognized as such and delivered to addresses without charge for postage at the letter rate.

AMERICAN HOLLY (Ilex Opaca)

This is one of America's most beautiful evergreens. Its foliage varies very little from that of the English Holly, and its rich clusters of scarlet berries make a good substitute for flowers in the Winter shrubbery. It is hardy in almost any locality. To insure safety in transplanting, the leaves should be removed from the plant at that time.

NURSERY DEPARTMENT.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN

Humboldt, Tenn.—The Tennessee Nursery Co. recently met with a loss of $2,500 by fire.

The State Board of Horticulture of Montana has decided to bring a test suit to determine what authority it has, if any, to collect fees for inspection from the owners of fruit and fruit trees.

Newark, N. Y.—The Jackson & Perkins Co. were the successful bidders for three out of ten separate lists, each comprising some particular line of trees, shrubs, plants or bulbs required by the Pan-American Exposition. The three lists for which the orders were awarded to the firm consisted of climbing vines, trailing vines for covering ground and hedge plants.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

WARREN, PA.—W. M. Lott has fully recovered from his recent sickness, and reports a big file of Easter orders.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y.—W. A. Wettlin reports a most successful Easter; the demand for plants was greatly in excess of any preceding year. He has a busy time ahead.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—Lake View Rose Gardens report a shortage of carnations, but a heavy crop of roses. Mr. Roney showed me some Beauty and Meteor that for color better could not be desired.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—Mrs. M. L. Barnes reports a good Easter; she disposed of everything salable and ran out of stock. W. H. Graham and Anton Spofford had all they could do to handle the crowd.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—"Carnations were the scarcest around Easter—just when we needed them most. Roses and bulbous stock were in fine shape and sold well. Longiflorum lilies were a trifle late; what we had went well"—Evenden Bros.

ELMIRA, N. Y.—Grove P. Rawson says it was a blue, or rather violet, Easter, the demand for violets being outequaled by the supply, which overtaxed all hands.

Mr. Durand notes an increase in the demand for blooming plants.

Hoffman Bros. report a rusher, and with ideal weather all went well.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Jacob Schultz had a grand lot of Bougainvillea Sanderiana for Easter, also hydrangeas and American Beauty, pot grown.

J. E. Marret had a well-grown general stock.

Wm. Walker is seriously thinking of removing his plant farther out of the city, his present location being too valuable for the business. He has a fine property, stocked with rare specimens of Ilex communis.

CORNING, N. Y.—A. H. Woeppel tried the plan of watering lilies with tepid water with success, bringing in a crop just in time. The plants were changed about frequently and watered twice daily. The foliage and flower were perfect. He will force Japan longiflorum for next Easter, for although the date is earlier he feels sure that, with care, they can be brought in easily. Many who were just a little bit behind should make a note of this manipulation. Mr. Woeppel had a fine lot of carnations and roses to supply the biggest Easter business on record.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—J. B. Keller's Sons report a fine Easter; they had a grand stock and big sales, enough left over to supply the succeeding busy week of weddings and receptions.

Fred. Schlegel says they never had a better time, and though it was hard work they would not like to see Easter abolished, as would a certain member of the craft who considers Easter should be evolved into something else, at which I am surprised, for I observed he was well pleased with the returns. What would he suggest to take the place of Easter?

Salter Bros. had their hands full to keep their two stores going. The season is backward; last year at this time many perennials were in flower at the Keller garden; this season vegetation is just starting. The outlook for extensive planting in the herbaceous line especially is very promising. Messrs. Keller will build a cold house, 150x25 feet, the only prospective building I heard of for this year.

BUFFALO, N. Y. —Chris. F. Christensen, our old friend who for so many years took the lead in growing flowering plants on Delaware avenue, has purchased a fine tract of land at Eggertsville, a short distance from the city limits, and is erecting as a starter six houses, each 125x20 feet, almost equal span, for cut flowers chiefly. The new carnations and Liberty rose will have a good showing here.

Mrs. D. Shawlands will vacate the place she has occupied for many years at the Main street entrance to Forest Lawn Cemetery immediately after the Spring trade is over. She has secured a splendid location, almost directly opposite the new entrance, for which $40,000 has been appropriated. Her houses will conform to the general surroundings.

William Scott found time, between Pan-American business and informing inquirers how to perform Multum in Parvo, to tell me that this year Easter business totalled larger at his Cold Spring place than any other year when running a separate store.

Will Palmer, of W. J. Palmer & Son, had not gotten over the rush when I called, wedding and receptions following the Easter festival have kept everyone busy. Stock was plentiful and good, an increasing demand for flowering plants being noted.

Nursery Stock for Canada.

Following is the full text of the amendment to the San José Scale Act, for the purpose of admitting nursery stock into Canada:

"His Excellency in virtue of the provisions of section 5 of chapter 23 of 61 Vic., entitled 'An Act to Protect Canada from the Insect Pest known as the San José Scale,' and the Act amending the same, intituled 'An Act to amend the San José Scale Act,' and by and with the advice of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, is pleased to order that exemption shall be and is hereby authorized from the operations of the above-mentioned Act, for a period from the date thereof to May 1, 1900, of any trees, shrubs, plants, vines, grafts, cuttings or buds, commonly called nursery stock, from any country or state to which the San José Scale Act applies, and all importations thereof shall be and the same are hereby permitted to be entered at the Customs Ports of St. John, N. B.; St. Johns, Quebec; Niagara Falls and Windsor, Ontario, and Winnipeg, Manitoba, only, where they will be thoroughly fumigated with hydrocyanic acid gas by a competent Government official in accordance with the most approved methods. All shipments made in accordance with the above will be entirely at the risk of the shippers or consignees, the Government assuming no risk whatever. The packages must be addressed so as to enter Canada at one of the above named ports of entry, and the route by which they will be shipped must be clearly stated upon each package.

"As it is well known that well-matured and throughly dormant nursery stock may be safely treated, but that there is danger of serious injury to the trees if fumigated in the Autumn before the buds are thoroughly dormant, or in the Spring after the buds have begun to unfold, all stock which when received is immature or too far advanced for safe treatment will be refused entry and held at the risk of the shipper.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council."

Roses imported in leaf and in a growing condition, which have been propagated under glass, are now admitted at any port in Canada. No time is fixed for the expiry of this permission.

LEGAL NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—In an action recently brought by Richard Welch, florist, against the Brookline Gaslight Company, to recover damages for injury alleged to have been caused to plants and flowers in plaintiff's greenhouse by reason of an alleged leak of gas from the defendant's pipes on November 27, 1898, a verdict for $800 has been rendered for Mr. Welch.

Newport, R. I.—The Gardeners' bowling team met defeat Monday, April 9, from a team selected from the Newport Artillery. The match took place on the Armory alleys, and was witnessed by a large number of spectators. The result was not in doubt from the first, the Artillery leading by a good margin on each string, and by 330 points in a total score of 2,002 to 1,650. Two of the Artillery team made over 400, and two others were within 2 and 5 points respectively of that figure. The best score of the Gardeners' was beaten by all but one of the Artillery team. The individual and team scores are as follows:

Umpires—Lieutenant F. P. King and Private J. C. Mailey; judges, Privates F. L. Holt and S. D. Harvey; scorers, Privates H. C. Sherman and H. M. Sherman.

Although defeated the Gardeners are not discouraged, and have challenged the Artillery team to a match on their alleys on the 19th. On the Artillery alleys the conditions were found very different from those the Gardeners were accustomed to, being longer and wider, besides only two balls are used on each roll. But the score, 1,650, is much superior to that made by the officers of the company, played just a week previous, their aggregate score being: Line officers, 1,175; staff officers, 1,132.

Plant Curiosities.

Many plants in common cultivation show some striking peculiarities, and when we know where to look for these odd features and how to exhibit them they never fail to be exceedingly interesting. Only a few of these plants are mentioned below; they are all easily procured and not difficult to cultivate.

Pellionia pulchra and P. Daveauana are exceedingly ornamental creepers when grown in a shaded warm house. They will always take care of themselves when introduced to a bench of wet gravel or sand. They are allied to the pilea, commonly known as the "artillery plant," and have the same method of suddenly opening the male flowers and discharging the pollen-like little puffs of smoke. The pellionias have much larger flowers than the pilea. To produce the action quickly dip the flowers in tepid water and they will discharge the pollen in a few seconds.

Schinus molle, the "peruvian pepper," used as a shade tree in California, and often grown in the Eastern States for temporary effects in Summer, shows peculiar antics when pieces of the leaves are thrown on the surface of water. The pieces will immediately start along the surface in short jerks, sometimes varying the performance by spinning around rapidly. These motions are caused by the exudation of the resin from the bruised parts of the leaf.

When the seed vessels of Oxalis tropeoloides are ripe a little disturbance with the hand will cause myriads of the seeds to fly in all directions.

Desmodium gyrans, known as the "Indian telegraph plant," is the only one with which I am acquainted that keeps up a very perceptible motion of the lateral leaflets without interference in any way. The leaves are formed of one large terminal leaflet and two small ones. It is the smaller ones which are continually on the move. The upward movement is slow and jerky, but the downward motion is rapid. The circuit is completed in about two minutes. Sensitive plants are numerous in cultivation; the two genera, mimosa and oxalis, supply most of them. The leaves are sensitive to the touch, and they either close the leaflets with the superior surfaces together, or the reverse. Oxalis sensitiva, O. Ortgiesii and O. bupleurifolia close downwards. In Mimosa pudica the leaflets close up and the leaf stems fall down. In a very warm house, if the end leaflets are touched very gently, those on the remaining part of the leaf division will close in pairs with great precision. In M. sensitiva the joints or hinges at the bases of the leaf divisions are almost white in color, but when the leaf is in the act of closing this color changes to greenish yellow.

The "squirting cucumber," Echalium elaterium, belonging to the squash family, gets its name from the singular manner in which the seeds are ejected from the fruit. When ripe a slight touch causes the fruit to become separated from the stem, and owing to the violent contraction of the rind, caused by this separation, the seeds are ejected with great force. They are, of course, mixed with the pulp, and if the mass comes in the direction of the investigator the consequences are not altogether pleasant.

DOUBLE NASTURTIUM

A VERY striking, double flowering, trailing plant, especially adapted for vases, window boxes, hanging baskets, rustic boxes, rock work; any place where trailing plants can be used it is indispensable. A free and vigorous grower, and continues to bloom the entire summer; the flowers are 3 inches or more in diameter, and are perfectly double; of a bright yellow, with a rich crimson feathered blotch at the base of each petal. The lovely shade of yellow gives them a charm that few flowers possess, and for cut-flowers, where yellow is wanted, they have no equal.

Strong plants, from 2¼ in. pots, $4.00 per 100: $35.00 per 1000.

Rose Growing Near Lake Michigan.

Would some reader of your valuable paper please tell me if it is any harder to grow roses free from mildew near the west shore of Lake Michigan in northern Illinois, than what it is two miles away from the lake? I would be pleased to hear from some of the Chicago shippers on this subject, as to whether it is advisable to put up a range of houses near the lake for roses, also for general stock. A Chicago grower told me one time about 10 years ago that Miller & Hunt used to have trouble on account of being too near the lake. My informant was not a good grower himself, so I did not place much confidence in his statement.

Z. X.

—There is nothing in the story generally accepted around Chicago by growers; although it is a fact that east winds all through the Spring months are very harsh and trying; and a fog or cloud may hang over the near lake shore, when 10 or 20 miles back of the lake the atmosphere may be clear and the wind but little felt. The vast rose and carnation establishments of Bowmanville, the Ridge and on to Evanston, are within a mile or so of the shore—some even nearer. Mr. Collins, foreman for Peter Reinberg, told the writer that he found no difficulty at their point (about one mile from the lake) in keeping roses free from mildew, although he says that formerly, when at Lake Forest, proximity to the shore was thought to be unfavorable.

As to growth of "general stock," by which we understand greenhouse plants generally, we cannot believe there are any objectionable features arising simply from the lake; but there may be, on account of contiguity of smoke, liability of city interference in the use of soft coal, untoward soil conditions, etc. However, a clear, high, dry pure atmosphere, with favorable conditions as to soil, may be obtained more certainly from 5 to 20 miles back of the lake, and are more suitable to the requirements of gardening generally, than those found in the environs of the smoke of a city like Chicago, with 2,000,000 of inhabitants spread along the west shore of Lake Michigan for 20 miles or so. Chicago's climatic and soil conditions are not, and never will be, favorable to a high state of gardening, and every success obtained, must be wrung by combating some untoward features, when compared with many another location in various other parts of the country we wot of. AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.—Report of ninth annual meeting held at Buffalo, N. Y., February 15 and 16, 1900. The society's report this year embraces 146 pages. In addition to a stenographic account of the proceedings, and the essays read, it contains a list of new carnations registered 1899-1900, together with the full membership. The pamphlet is, as usual, full of interest for all carnationists.

The next annual meeting of the society will be held in Baltimore, Md. The officers are: President, Robert Halliday, Baltimore, Md.; vice-president, William Weber, Oakland, Md.; secretary, Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.; treasurer, Fred. E. Dorner, Jr., Lafayette, Ind. Executive Committee, above-named officers and Wm. Scott, Buffalo, N. Y.; C. W. Ward, Queens, N. The Orchid-Flowered Cannas.

Editor Florists' Exchange.

We have read with the greatest interest the various opinions expressed by different correspondents on our Italian (orchid-flowered) cannas, in your issues of March 3, 10 and 24, from which it seems that there are two opposite opinions on the subject. As to ourselves we confess that we still belong to those who are convinced that the true orchid-flowered cannas, Italia and the like, are sterile. We think that the subject is important enough to be ventilated from more than one point of view. We do not think G. W. O. was justified in his statement, plainly declaring as a humbug our remark that the process of obtaining our Italian cannas was far from simple. Now, in return, we would simply put him this question: How is it that in spite of all the attempts made in many countries by most intelligent growers to obtain the same race by hybridization, none has yet succeeded? Before pronouncing it a humbug G. W. O. ought to have experimented with this race of cannas, as H. O. justly observes in your issue of March 10. The eminent botanist, and good friend of ours, M. Ed. André, editor of the Revue Horticole, expressed his opinion to the effect that the creation of the first series of orchid-flowered cannas might simply have been due to a happy accident, and that it would be difficult to continue experiments in that line with the same success. Now, this is fortunately not the case, as in the meantime we have succeeded in obtaining new kinds; but it is a proof that M. André himself thought the operation very difficult.

We have read with much interest Messrs. Howard & Smith's report that a successful cross, Italia × Mme. Crozy, has been made, and hope we may have an opportunity, later on, to know their seedling. DAMMANN & Co.

Among the Magazines.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE for May contains four illustrated articles that are unusually informing in regard to events and questions of contemporary importance. The leading article on "Some Pictnresque Sides of the Exposition" is both written and illustrated by the artist, E. C. Peixotto. He has spent a number of months in Paris recently, and these drawings give an artist's impression of the very picturesque group of buildings which will be soon crowded with visitors from all portions of the world. There is also a discussion in the Field of Art on "Formal Gardens and Small Parks," by Montgomery Schuyler.

GENEVIEVE LORD

The Peerless New Pink Carnation.

IN all of our long experience we have never had a Carnation produce as many first-class, high-grade blooms to the square foot as Genevieve Lord. It blooms early and the year round. Its color is just right; "beautiful," "lovely," "exquisite," "perfectly charming," are some of the adjectives used by some of our lady customers in describing it. With all its good productiveness, size is a leading feature, large enough to put it away up front. Its grand stem is perhaps its crowning feature. What is a flower without a stem? Genevieve Lord stands up straight twelve months in the year. When you think of all this, and a non-bursting calyx thrown in for good measure, there is little left to be desired. We are pleased to announce that we can fill orders promptly after April 10th, but do not know how long we can promise this, as stock is going rapidly. To clinch matters and drive a good bargain, order at once.

Price, doz., $2.00; 100, $10 00; 1000, $75.00.

Can also furnish all of the big new ones at Introducers' prices, as well as the best standard varieties.

Firms Who Are Building.

BANGOR, ME.—Carl Beers contemplates the erection of two greenhouses in connection with his branch store at Houston.

SUMMIT, N. J.—Lager & Hurrell will build a house, 150x25 feet, for orchids.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Arthur J. Pike is to erect another greenhouse, 100x20 feet, for carnation growing.

DOUBLE NASTURTIUMS.—Charles Limmer, Cobleskill, N. Y., sends us a bunch of perfectly double nasturtiums, of a pale yellow color, slightly streaked with carmine. The flowers are of good size and seem to be of the variety Tropæolum grandiflorum plenissimum.

Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont., registers rose "Lady Dorothea," a sport from "Sunset," originated with Mr. Dunlop in the Spring of 1895. Color, outer petals deep peach; pink to Indian red at base; inside, soft flesh color, deepest in midwinter. Other characteristics, as to color, vigor of growth, etc., identical with the parent, but omitting the objectionable feature of malformed buds at any season of the year. Can be disbudded to center bud, which is always perfect.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., register Cattleya labiata "Mrs. W. C. Squires." Flowers large, sepals and petals broad and massive; of a dark rosy mauve. Lip very large with fringed margins, the expanded portion crimson purple, posterior part stained with straw buff and crimson purple. The unusual flowering season of this variety is due to the plant having been imported late in Fall.

WM. J. STEWART, Secretary.

The American Rose Society.

The schedule of premiums for the first Summer exhibition of this society has been issued. The show will be held in the Winter Garden of the Eden Musée, New York City, June 12, 13 and 14 next. There are 34 classes, 26 of which are open, one for Rambler rose, four for private gardeners only, and three for amateurs, in all of which substantial money prizes are offered, besides seven other classes, the premiums in connection with which are silver cups, and include the following. The awards in the latter classes are to be made the second day of the exhibition, unless where otherwise specified:

The Stoeckel Cup, valued at $100, offered by Carl Stoeckel, Esq., for the best 36 plants of hardy garden roses, in pots, in not less than 12 varieties. (To be staged the first day.)

The Henderson Cup, valued at $50, offered by Peter Henderson & Co., for the best display of roses grown in the open ground in not less than 72 blooms.

The Joline Cup, offered by Mrs. A. H. Joline, for the best vase of La France roses, not less than 36 blooms. (To be shown in exhibitor's own vase.)

The Wood Prizes, offered by E. M. Wood, Esq., for blooms of Marechal Niel rose. Two prizes—for best 50 blooms, $30; for best 25 blooms, $15.

The Siebrecht Prizes, offered by Siebrecht & Son. First day, best plant of Belle Siebrecht, $2; second, $1. Second day, vase of Belle Siebrecht, first, $3; second, $2.

The American Rose Society's preliminary certificate of merit will be given for 12 or more blooms of any rose, in any class, not yet in commerce. A rose taking a preliminary certificate of merit is eligible to be entered at future exhibitions of the society for a final certificate, gold or silver medal.

Suitable awards will also be given to all meritorious exhibits, not included in the schedule. Honorary exhibits are respectfully solicited.

The schedule specifies that "all exhibits must bear the name of each variety properly attached. The judges will not consider any variety not so labeled."

Copies of the schedule and any further information desired anent the exhibition can be had on application to Secretary Leonard Barron, 136 Liberty street, New York. Mr. Barron informs us that all indications point to a very successful show. Entries are already coming in, and he feels confident that an equal, if not a greater, enthusiasm in the June show, as attended the March exhibition will be manifested.

The Quebec Horticultural Society, at its annual meeting held April 9, elected the following directors for the ensuing year: Sir James LeMoine, Hon. Richard Turner, A. Rhodes, Frank Carrel, E. F. Wurtele, E. Doucet, R. Campbell, J. Verret, J. T. Ross, F. W. Ross and G. G. Stuart. At a subsequent meeting of the directors John T. Ross was elected president and R. Campbell secretary.

New York Society of Horticulture.

As will be seen by our report in another column, initiatory steps were taken Saturday last, April 21, looking to the institution of a society of horticulture for New York City. The attendance at the meeting held at the Bronx Park Botanical Garden comprised in large part men who had seen similar organizations rise, and, for one reason or other, pass out of existence in the metropolis, and who, feeling the need of a body such as is proposed to be established, were ready to lend their assistance in its formation.

As explained by Dr. Hexamer, New York City has its various organizations devoted to gardening and floricultural interests, each working along its own special line, and while these bodies are necessary and play an important part in the general advancement of horticulture, there is room for a much needed society, the work of which would be more in the way of educating the masses in matters relating to horticultural subjects—something that the limited scope of the existing organizations precludes. The fact, too, that such representative florists and seedsmen as Messrs. Henderson, May, Manda, Don and Siebrecht are all more or less interested in the establishment of the new society, is abundant proof of the necessity of its creation as that exists in the minds of the trade, and with the backing of such a potent institution as the New York Botanical Garden there surely should be no such thing as failure.

The educational force of the Garden can yet be but faintly appreciated; but the foundation already laid in the elaborate Museum and the grand horticultural structures in course of completion impress one with an idea of its future immensity. And if that education can, through the establishment of the New York Society of Horticulture, be conveyed to the people generally, who can measure the resultant good to the trade, the city, and the nation?

There is no earthly use of holding up eternally before us the spectre of defunct associations of a character similar to the one in course of formation. All that need be remembered regarding these are the pitfalls that beset their path and into which they stumbled; and these, too, only to be thought about as future guides. The horticultural aspect of the times has changed since such bodies were in operation; the people's love for flowers and plants has kept on increasing yearly, until now as a flower-buying public we stand in the forefront among the nations of the world. Therefore the need for horticultural education is far greater now than existed at a more remote period, but up to within recent times this education in New York City has not received the attention it has deserved, nor has it been commensurate with the needs of the citizens; and it is really astonishing that with existing conditions our trade development has been so marked—a phenomenal testimony, surely, to advancement in the face of great impediment. With this want now more fully supplied, is it not natural to suppose that the next decade shall see a still further progress, in extent unparalled in our business?

We hope the promoters of the new society will start on a broad foundation and endeavor to draw to the association's support men who will at once give it a dignity and standing among the educational institutions of the country. As was wisely stated by Mr. Berckmans, commercial men are just as essential for the carrying on of the society's work as the millionaire amateurs are for the filling of the treasury, and this fact, we feel sure, will not be lost sight of.

It may be urged that for the holding of meetings and exhibitions the buildings in the Botanical Garden at Bronx Park have the disadvantage of being located too far from the center of the city to allow of any extensive attendance of the general public. Probably that is so for present-day needs, yet the wonderfully large gathering at a lecture on "Spring Flowers," delivered in the hall of the Museum Building on Saturday last, goes far to prove that that fear even now is unfounded. Then, too, the city is extending with rapid strides in the direction of the Garden; and just think of it, Dr. Hexamer, 50 years ago, used to go botanizing in the fields immediately beyond Canal street! Perhaps in selecting the Botanical Garden for the purposes mentioned, the members of the new society, as the years pass, will confess that "they builded better than they knew."

With, then, capable, energetic and representative men as officers and council, men with whom selfish interests and self-aggrandizement are subordinate to the general welfare of horticulture, combined with the support and encouragement of New York's best citizens, and under such favorable auspices as are likely to be afforded, there seems to be no good reason why the proposed society should not be other than a grand success, in the consummation of which the florists' trade can render very valuable assistance, and that we urge upon it to do, for its own sake, both by affiliation and otherwise, as in its power lies.

There is one thing however, that appears to us necessary, in order to give the society the stamp of actual reality of what it is intended to be, viz.—that amateur horticulturists be elected to the various offices, with a goodly sprinkling of such parties on the council. The impression should not get abroad, that the new society is but another trade organization because of trade men or those having trade interests occupying the places of honor in its executive workings. We believe that greater success will be accomplished so far as drawing in the masses is concerned, when it is known that amateurs, more than others, are to be the beneficiaries under the society's operations.

Bait Not Tempting Enough.

There are several ways of running the business end of a newspaper, not the least unique of which is the one just brought to our notice by Mr. Joseph Heacock, of Wynecote, Pa. As is well known to our readers Mr. Heacock is a very successful grower of American Beauty roses. Recently he received from a paper named, "The Southern Review of Commerce," a cut-and-dried editorial mentioning his status as a rose grower, telling he had plants of Beauty for sale, and purporting to have been written in reply to many inquiries on the subject of American Beauty roses generally arriving at the office of the paper in question. The article referred to was submitted for approval, with the assurance that the Review never makes "mention of concerns that are not worthy of commendation." Just by way of information the editor throws in a few side remarks in his letter of submittal, informing Mr. Heacock of the graded prices at which he can secure specified numbers of copies of the Review for distribution; or, if preferred, the paper will mail the copies to interested parties known to it, "making no charge for postage, marking, addressing, wrapping, etc." But whether any copies were wanted or not the article O. K.'d was, and the editor so stated.

With such a complimentary notice paid to him, and the other etceteras thrown in gratis, many would have been tempted to venture in. Not so Mr. Heacock; he simply incloses the correspondence and editorial in an envelope and forwards these to the EXCHANGE office, with the meaning remark: "Evidently the fools are not all dead, or it would not pay these people to throw out such bait."

OBITUARY.

John Breitmeyer.

John Breitmeyer, one of the veteran florists of Detroit, Mich., and head of the firm of John Breitmeyer & Sons, died at his home in Mt. Clemens on Sunday morning, April 22. A sketch of Mr. Breitmeyer's exemplary career appeared in our issue of March 25, 1899. He was pre-eminently a self-made man. Coming to this country as an emigrant, poor, but desirous of bettering himself, he succeeded in accumulating a competency and built up a business as a florist equaled by none in the state. His life was a simple one, with no ostentation, and his chief delight was to meet a few friends for a social chat. His was an open, sunny nature and his friends were many, for none knew him but to love him. The remains were interred at Mt. Clemens on the 24th inst., the Detroit Florists' Club attending the funeral in a body—some 50 in number. Mr. Breitmeyer was 65 years of age. The cause of death was pneumonia.

Steen Edwards.

Steen Edwards, a florist of Bridgeton, N. J., died at his home April 24, aged 90 years. He leaves eight sons.

Deceased was a native of Denmark.

The Market.

The cut flower business has fallen so flat this week that it is almost impossible to quote prices upon anything. Flowers of all kinds are coming in abundantly, and the demand for them is so limited that plenty of stock remains in the hands of the dealers from day to day. Roses particularly have suffered in value, and left-over stock can be had at almost any figure. Fresh top grade Beauty bring about 15c. each; the same grade of Bride and Bridesmaid, 6c. each, with all other grades in proportion. The demand is so light, however, that many have to be kept over, consequently they do not realize anywhere near the price asked for them when fresh.

The same conditions prevail with Brunner and Jacq.; very nice medium length flowers of the former variety are obtainable at $3 per 100.

Carnations also have been very draggy; fancies have got down to $3 per 100; standard sorts bring from $1 to $2, with common and ordinary stock at 75c.

Violets may be said to be over for this season; that is, so far as selling them at a profit is concerned. Trailing arbutus is now on the market, and with this, and the extreme cheapness of roses and carnations, the street peddlers have thrown down violets, refusing to handle them altogether unless they are to be had at prices that would not pay for the picking. Dealers are advising the growers to cease shipping, but as yet the advice has been unheeded, and thousands of violets are coming to the city daily. It is impossible to unload the most of them at any price.

Cattleyas have got down to 30c each. Valley is somewhat scarce, and the best brings from $2.50 to $3 per 100. Lilies are too plentiful altogether for the demand, and have to be sold at any price to get rid of them before they spoil. Harrisii can be had at $2 per 100; longiflorum, of the best, go at from $3 to $3.50.

Freesias, daisies, stocks, pansies, gladiolus, cornflowers, snapdragon and asters are all now to be had in the market. The asters as yet, though, are all of the purple varieties.

Among the retailers business is very satisfactory. Many prominent weddings are taking place and decorations for the same are quite lavish. Palms and flowering plants are being used extensively in combination, and the abnormally large quantity of the latter now obtainable is no doubt the reason, to a great extent, why the cut flower trade has been so dull of late.

Is It a Myth?

We are still receiving inquiries relative to the so-called "Florists and Gardeners' M. & B. Association" that is to hold an alleged festival and reunion at Woodlawn Park, on Monday, June 11. Seeing that the affair is said to be a reunion, one would presume that the society was of old standing. We found on inquiry at Woodlawn Park that the grounds had been engaged for that date by an association bearing the name as above; but on going to the address given by the contracting party, which, by the way, is in Brooklyn, we were unable to discover any one connected with any such organization. It is also noticeable that the receipt given for money paid for space in the alleged Souvenir of this association bears no address. The receipt is signed "Frank Sieman, Sec'y," while the contract engaging the park bears the signature "Edward Davis, Sec'y." We give these facts so that our readers may be on their guard, and we again advise that full investigation be made of parties soliciting either subscriptions or advertisements in aid of this so-called charitable movement, as after careful inquiry, both in New York and Brooklyn, it is quite evident to us that the trade knows nothing of the association in question.

Brevities.

Wadley & Smythe have secured large contracts for supplying plants, etc., to the Pan-American Exposition, at Buffalo.

J. Roehrs received, through A. Dimmock, agent for Sander & Co., England, a consignment of bay trees, numbering 500, a few days ago.

Last Sunday occurred the death of Mrs. L. Schiller at her home, 410 Sumner avenue, Brooklyn. The deceased was the wife of Mr. Ludwig Schiller, seedsman, 404 East 34th street, this city. The funeral was held on Wednesday, at Hagerstown, Md. Mr. Schiller has the sympathy of the trade in his sad bereavement.

H. Bnyersdorfer, of Philadelphia, sailed Wednesday, on the St. Paul, for Europe, to visit the Paris Exposition.

A. Rölker & Sons have moved their business to the second floor of the same building, where they are located—52 Dey street.

Trade News.

Quite a falling off in business has been experienced the past week. Good roses are in abundant supply, but the quality is not up to the standard, showing the effect of the warm weather; the flowers are smaller, those of the colored kinds being bleached out a little. American Beauty are very plentiful, and move slowly, at prices ranging from $3 to $25 per 100. Brunner, though in supply sufficient to meet the demand, are not so plentiful as they have been, and about equal prices rule their sale as for Beauty. Bride and Bridesmaid are very plentiful, and are favored with quite a demand for grades suitable for funeral work.

Carnations, too, have become very plentiful and prices have taken a decided drop. Choicest quality of ordinary sorts in limited supply bring $2.50; fancies fetch $3 and $4, while there are quantities that sell for $1, $1.25 and $1.50. There are prospects of these values dropping before this paper reaches its readers.

Bulbous stock is still too plentiful, the general quality also being poor. Lilies are quite plentiful and move rather slowly. Valley is in over-stock and fetches from $1 to $3 per 100.

Violets are in good supply, but the quality is declining. Mayflowers are received every day now, in large quantities, and have partially supplanted the violet.

Jottings.

The Horticultural Club held its regular meeting on Thursday evening, James Comley presiding.

The Calder Floral Co. has closed up its store at 396 Boylston street, where it had moved but recently from further down the street. F. J. N.

Market Notes.

Trade among the retail men seems to have been good, bad and indifferent the past week. We have as yet failed to hear any complaint as to Easter business, so it can be put down as having been the best on record. The quantity of stock has increased very materially the past week, and prices in consequence have gone down. In large lots roses have been sold for $25 per 1000; top price is 8c. for the best in small quantities. There is a large over-production of Daybreak carnations just now; in bulking them off they go as low as $10 per 1000, the best still bring 2c. to 4c. Beauty are quite plentiful, at $4 per dozen down to 20c. each. There are a good many belated longiflorum in now, that are sold as low as $10 per 100. Violets are on the wane, though a few still come in that sell for 40c. per 100.

Club Meeting.

A regular meeting was held last week, the attendance being rather small; but enthusiasm was large. Among other things it was decided that the club offer a prize of $10 for the best vase of cut flowers, no kind excepted—they can be roses, carnations, sweet peas, or any thing. This money will be divided into two or three prizes, and an interesting show is expected. The club also decided to have another show next Fall. There is some talk of mingling or combining it with a fruit and horticultural show, but just how has not been determined as yet. J. J. Beneke was elected general manager with F. H. Meinhardt assistant. Mr. Beneke announces that he will use the same committee as last year to help him. A lengthy discussion as to the advantages, if any, of own root over budded roses was indulged in, and will probably be continued at the next meeting, as no conclusion was reached.

The surplus or profit of the euchre party, amounting to $72.75, has been turned over to cash on hand belonging to last Fall's show—same will now be paid to premium takers at once, and the affair closed up.

Notes.

Fred. Amman, president of the Florists' Club, was recently elected an alderman in his town—Edwardsville, Ill. Quite a little jollification was indulged in after the meeting at Fred's expense. S.

EASTER TRADE REPORTS.

NEWARK, N. J.—Trade during Easter was very good, all kinds of plants sold well, especially lilies. Cut flowers, excepting violets, were not so much called for. Business was over that of other years.—B. & G.

KINGSTON, N. Y.—Easter trade was all we expected. Prices were about same as last year. A large number of plants were sold—hydrangeas, Crimson Rambler roses, hyacinths, valley and lilies, the latter being most in demand, both in potted plants and cut flowers, with roses, carnations and violets next.—V. B. & SON.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—Easter trade in cut flowers was a little better, but in plants, except azaleas and lilies, it did not equal last year's. The old cry in this town is that cut flowers are too dear to handle with any margin, and they are therefore let severely alone, most of us being satisfied to sell only what we raise ourselves; and on the whole the florists seem satisfied and think profits are ahead of last year.—J. B. L.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The demand for potted plants of the higher classes was exceptionally good. Lilies all went; as to their quality they were rather below par. The cut flower trade was about the same as last year's, the call being for Beauty, Bride, Bridesmaid and Meteor. The supply was about right. Violets were fine and sold easily. Tulips were plentiful and in great demand, especially for pink and red colors; no yellows were wanted. On the whole the plant trade advanced 20 per cent. and cut flower trade about 10 per cent.—D.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y.—Easter trade was about 20 per cent. better than last year's. In cut flowers roses, carnations, lilies and violets were in great demand. Prices were about the same as last year. Bulbous stock sold fairly well. In plants azaleas and lilies were the leaders; hyacinths and daffodils in pots and pans sold fairly well. Some nice plants of bougainvillea went well, also fancy pelargoniums and pans of pansies. The weather on Saturday was about as bad as could be—snow, rain and wind—which made lots of extra work in delivering plants, and no doubt kept many buyers at home.—L.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Easter trade was the best ever known here; sales were about 20 per cent. above last year's. Cut flowers and blooming plants were plentiful, but on Saturday afternoon lilies were all sold. Hyacinths, azaleas and spiræas sold well, next to lilies. Hydrangeas went rather slow—prices were rather higher than last year. In cut flowers carnations and violets were most in demand, scarce, and of poor quality. Roses were more plentiful and of good quality, and found ready sale. Roses sold at from $1.50 to $2 per dozen; carnations, 75c. to $1; tulips and daffodils, 75c.; violets, $2 per 100; lilies, 25c. per flower and bud.—E.

LYNN, MASS.—Easter trade for 1900 was the best that has been experienced for some years. Everything in the shape of plants and flowers sold out clean, and more lilies could have been disposed of. Moderate-priced plants were in great demand. Lilies sold at from 15c. to 20c. Carnations, as usual, took the lead—not near enough to go around. Wholesale prices were too high for the florists to stock up much, 60c. to 75c. per dozen was the ruling price, with a few fancies at $1 to $1.50. Violets also sold well; roses in limited quantities. No novelties were seen. Church decorations do not amount to much, and seem to be getting cheaper every year. Funeral work has been very good, rendering it hard to get stock enough to fill orders before Easter.—J. L. M.

DENVER, COL.—Easter trade just past exceeded that of former years. All florists report a general increase, some as high as 30 per cent. Plants, of course, took the lead. Lilies were scarce, although the Park Floral Co. were well supplied, they having the best in town and sold out clean early Saturday. Spiræas, too, went well, but were a little in oversupply. There was a good call for large pots of lilies, baskets of hyacinths, marguerites, in fact, anything made up that was showy. There were a few good lilies in town which sold readily. As to cut flowers I can hardly say what the trade would have been had the weather held out. They were going very fast till we were struck by a bad rain and snow storm, which started in about 3 o'clock Saturday, and continued till noon Monday. It looked a little blue Saturday night, but the orders were in for delivery, and Sunday turned out a fairly good "flower day" notwithstanding the severe storm. Beauty and violets had the call. What little stock was left over went on Monday. Altogether we have had a good Easter and no reason to complain.—DENVER.

BRIEFS FOR BUSY FLORISTS.

CARNATIONS that are on the benches and are expected to remain there through the Summer and furnish a supply of flowers, will need some attention about now. The plants ought to be gone over and relieved of all decayed leaves which will be found around the bottom; and where wire supports are not used the straggling shoots should be tied up. After this is done the surface of the bed can be reached easily. This should have a thorough cleaning and all weeds or moss removed. A good sprinkling of lime over all of the surface should then be applied. Besides being a good fertilizer the lime will keep down snails, which usually commence operations about this season. A mulch of well-decayed manure should then be put on, or, if that is not at hand, manure in liquid form should be given about once every week or ten days. A very light shading should also be put on the glass—just enough to break the full force of the sun; any more than that will shade too much and result in weak, sickly growth.

HYDRANGEAS—If the cuttings for next year's plants have not yet been taken now is the time to do so, and that as soon as possible. Any that have flowered and remain unsold can be stored away under a bench, or in a shed, until the middle of May, when they may be planted outdoors, remaining there until the Fall, being sure to lift and pot them before frost comes, as they force very poorly if touched by frost, although a few degrees does not kill them outright. The hydrangea has come to be used largely as a Decoration Day plant of late, and as no undue forcing is required to have it in on that date, complaints about the lasting qualities of the flowers are seldom heard. Plants showing the bloom now will be just about right if kept moderately cool. An occasional watering of liquid manure will add to the size of the flower heads.

CUTTINGS may yet be taken of such plants as salvias, coleus and verbenas, which will make nice stock for planting in filling any later orders that may come in.

BATCHES OF GLADIOLI AND TUBEROSE BULBS should be planted now in favorable locations. Put the bulbs well in the ground—3 inches deep is none too much for them.

HELIOTROPES AND FUCHSIAS should have their last potting this week.

NASTURTIUMS—The main lot may now be sown; these are best two or three in a small pot, though they transplant fairly well from flats when not allowed to become too large.

Rot of Cuttings.

Editor Florists' Exchange.

In the Question Box of the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE, of February 10, appeared a query concerning the rotting of geranium cuttings. One cause of failure not mentioned in the answer, which probably covered the case in point, is, that the cutting bed is not properly drained and aerated. The best bottom for a cutting bed, in the writer's experience, is made of narrow, flat tile laid close together. No matter how close the tiles fit excess water soon makes channels between them and drains off. When watered the bed should be drenched, a process that will drive spores of damping-off and other fungi down through the sand and out at the bottom. The excess water will pass quickly out, leaving the bed well aerated and properly moist—not too wet. By this practice the loss of cuttings from rotting, blackening and damping-off is reduced to a minimum. Of course, this bottom is more expensive than the ordinary bottoms, but it is permanent. When the supporting frame decays the tile may be removed and used again and again. M. G. KAINS.

Snails as Disease Disseminators.

The recent experiments of Mr. G. Wagner, a German scientist, have shown our familiar greenhouse pest, the snail, or slug, to be a worse fellow even than we supposed. Wagner removed a number of different kinds of snails from plants affected with ascomycetous fungi, powdery mildews and rust fungi, to healthy plants, with the result that the latter became diseased. Then he fed some of them on various kinds of parasitic fungi and examined their excreta microscopically, with the result that spores were found to be uninjured in passing through the animals' bodies and would grow under favorable conditions. As a last experiment the voidings were dissolved in water, which was then painted upon healthy foliage. In a short time disease showed itself upon the parts traced out with the water. Since no less than seven distinct diseases were found to be disseminated in this way, Mr. Wagner concludes that the spread of fungous diseases is often due to the humble snail.

New York Society of Horticulture.

A very representative body of horticulturists was present at the meeting held in the lecture hall of the Museum Building of the New York Botanical Garden at Bronx Park, on Saturday, April 21, in answer to the call issued for the purpose of organizing a New York Society of Horticulture. Among those in attendance were Drs. Britton and Hexamer, Messrs. J. DeWolf, P. J. Berckmans, James Wood, C. W. Ward, C. L. Allen, H. A. Siebrecht, Samuel Henshaw, A. L. Don, John N. May, N. Hallock, G. T. Powell, John Dallas, W. A. Manda, J. H. Troy, David Foulis and others, besides members of the horticultural press.

After a formal welcome by Dr. Britton, Mr. James Wood, Mount Kisco, was appointed chairman. In a few explanatory remarks as to the objects of the meeting, he pointed out the great necessity of formulating such a society as was proposed for New York City which, he believed, would be productive of very grand results in the advancement of horticulture. Leonard Barron was appointed secretary pro tem.

The majority of those who spoke at the meeting confined their remarks principally to the life and death of societies of a similar character that had sprung up in New York in former years, and the causes that led to their demise, some of which cited were apathy and remissness on the part of those in charge, particularly as regards the giving of exhibitions. There seemed to be a diversity of opinion as to the scope of the society now sought to be organized. While some were in favor of its being a purely local institution, others considered that it should partake of a national character, with headquarters at the Botanical Garden, where spacious accommodations would be provided, both as regards meeting halls and exhibition rooms. Mr. Berckmans pointed out some of the drawbacks associated with the formulation of national societies, mentioning that during the World's Fair in 1893 there was even a move to adopt an international body, but the promoters of this project came to the conclusion that the "contract was too large," and after 35 persons had been enrolled as members, and hardly sufficient money gathered in to pay the printing bill, the idea was abandoned. The same speaker urged that if it was desired that the working part of the proposed association should be kept up, commercial horticulturists were to be looked to more than others. The millionaire amateurs were those who would keep the treasury in condition.

Dr. Britton submitted a set of proposed resolutions regarding the plan and scope of the present society. He suggested that it be named "The New York Society of Horticulture;" that its objects be to collect and diffuse correct information on all topics relating to the culture and care of plants, and to promote a taste for same. He advised that 19 other members, with the officers of the society, form a council for the proper carrying on of its work; that committees be established to be named the Floral, Fruit, Vegetable, Forestry, Membership and Finance Committees; that membership be divided into members, honorary members corresponding members, and patrons, honorary membership to be limited to ten and these to be chosen from horticulturists who have distinguished themselves by important original investigations; membership fee to be $5 a year; life membership, $50, and to become a patron a payment of $250 was necessary; that the annual meeting be held the second Wednesday in May of each year, and regular meetings second Wednesday of May, June, October, November, December, January, February, March and April.

Mr. Geo. T. Powell, in charge of the New York State School of Practical Agriculture and Horticulture, to be established at Brisrcliff Farm, Sing Sing, N. Y., made a few remarks, pointing out the services that could be rendered by that school to a society of this nature in the matter of testing and planting choice fruits and plants, and where the best possible work—scientifically and practically—for the society could be carried out. After some further comments the following gentlemen were appointed a committee on organization, namely: Drs. Britton and Hexamer, Messrs. Wood, May, Withers, Henshaw, Allen, Siebrecht, DeWolf, Ward, Powell, Willis, Wallace, Manda, W. S. Clark, J. H. Taylor, Patrick O'Mara, Samuel Thorne, J. H. Troy, N. Hallock, A. T. De La Mare and John Dallas. A sub-committee, consisting of Drs. Britton and Hexamer, and Messrs. Henshaw, May and Withers, was appointed to nominate officers for consideration at a further meeting to be held the second Wednesday in May, in the rooms of the American Institute, Berkeley Lyceum, New York City, at 4 o'clock.

To an outsider it looked as if greater progress could have been made at this meeting, had those invited to the meeting been provided beforehand with an outline of the proposed society's scope. As it was there appeared to be among those present, with one or two exceptions, a complete ignorance of what was really sought to be accomplished.

After adjournment the gentlemen made a short tour of the Bronx Park and the horticultural buildings, and later attended a lecture delivered by Cornelius Van Brunt on the subject of "Spring Flowers," illustrated by stereopticon views. The lecture was very much enjoyed, and the magnificent and life-like pictures of wild flowers thrown on the screen much admired. The spacious auditorium of the lecture hall was well filled, showing that when an interesting subject is presented Bronx Park is not considered too far away from the city proper for attendance by people who are enthusiastic on the subject of horticulture.

Pan-American News.

The long-continued cold weather and frozen ground kept surface work on the ground in abeyance till nearly the middle of April. The past week's warm weather has produced great activity, and Mr. R. Ulrich has now five or six hundred men busy in many parts of the grounds, besides many hundreds on contract work. In spite of frozen ground hundreds of large trees have been planted this Winter, including many Lombardy poplars, which will be in keeping with the architecture of some of the buildings.

Work on the lagoons and canals has progressed all Winter and is nearing completion. The contracts for several of the largest buildings have been assigned and the foundations are going in. The Winter has been favorable for the poplars and willows planted last Fall, and by the Summer of 1901 the whole grounds will be encircled with a pleasing belt of trees and shrubs entirely hiding from view unsightly fences. The southern 100 acres of the grounds is the beautiful lake region of Delaware Park. Few, if any, points in the public parks of this country surpass in true landscape beauty our "Gala Water" and its wooded banks and magnificent drives. In this portion of the grounds, on a commanding site, will be situated the Art Gallery, to be used during the exposition, but a magnificent permanent building, the noble gift of our truly public-spirited citizen, Mr. J. J. Albright. Mr. Albright's gift in round figures will reach half a million. On the north of the lake will be the New York State Building, which at the close of the exposition will be given for their perpetual use to the Buffalo Historical Society. The Pan-American including, as it does, some of the handsomest portions of the park, has necessitated some costly improvements, chief of which is a commodious and handsome bridge spanning the lake at its western end. It is thus early very evident to see that in the adornment and embellishment of the grounds and planting in harmony with the style of architecture, the bright tinting of the buildings and gayness of the flower beds, the Pan-American, in horticultural taste and beauty, will surpass any previous effort in this country.

The writer thinks he knows a good thing when he sees it, and of all good things connected with this great undertaking, there is nothing inspires confidence combined with encouragement, more than the personality of the Director-General, Hon. William I. Buchanan. With marvelous executive ability and a world-wide knowledge of men and affairs, his intimate knowledge of the South American countries, his splendid diplomatic career, and his great record from the World's Fair, makes him pre-eminently the man to carry the Pan-American to a glorious consummation.

OUR PRIZE COMPETITION.

We desire to remind intending competitors that the "PRIZE PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPETITION," begins May 1. The Conditions and Prizes were published in full in our issue of March 31, page 341, but for the convenience of those who intend going into the contest, as well as others desirous of producing effective work for their forthcoming catalogues, we have reprinted Mr. Hallock's essay in full, together with the Conditions attaching to the contest, and this leaflet will be sent free to all applicants.

The publishers feel that an aroused interest should be taken by the trade generally in photography, more especially as it relates to trade productions. Photographs of specimens, etc., grown on a tradesman's own grounds, and printed in his own catalogue, are far more weighty and carry more influence with his customers than the stock illustrations now seen in the majority of trade catalogues; and the price at which these photographs can be turned into plates, ready for the printer, is now so moderate that every catalogue-maker can afford to insert at least a few in his own book, understood always that they are sufficiently well done.

Illustrations take with the public now more than ever. The proof is evident in every successful publication you meet; it is also evident in the catalogues of successful florists, nurserymen and seedsmen.

It is because of these facts the publishers of the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE have instituted the present series of competitions; there is no reason at all why the makers of small and medium-sized catalogues cannot introduce therein the facsimiles of their own choicest productions. The slightly added cost to those who undertake this will be readily and quickly made up by added sales at paying figures.

And the new century will not have taken on many years before it will be as common a practice with our trade to use fine colored illustrations as it is now to use good half-tones.

Therefore, gentlemen, in view of all the developments present and to come, its educational value, and the good results to be obtained from taking advantage thereof, the publishers hope to see their offers availed of and a spirited competition ensue.

Landreth & Sons' Easter Display.

Our illustration shows the appearance at Easter, of the store of D. Landreth & Sons, Philadelphia. The week before Easter the implements and other horticultural merchandise of every kind were cleared out, and the broad floors staged with the best selected assortment of potted decorative plants. Over 25 salesmen and saleswomen were necessary to attend to the wants of the customers, against whom the doors could not be closed until 10 o'clock on Easter Eve. The broad pavements of Market street were covered for days throughout its entire length with azaleas, lilies and other plants, all finding ready sale.

Visitors to Europe years ago were impressed with the vast quantities of flowers and plants sold on the streets and in the different markets of London and Paris, and could not understand why Americans appeared to be so indifferent to such charming adornments of the home. But now things have changed, and we can point to a development of horticultural taste equal to that of any country; and a taste certainly destined to outrank that of any country, for as a nation we do nothing by halves.

DECORATIVE PLANTS FOR EASTER.

Nothing prettier, if you caught a good collection of varieties together in different sized bushes and standards. But even the Charles X, Marly Rouge and Sinensis are very fine indeed, and should furnish excellent material for Easter sales and decorations.

About the end of June go to your nurseryman and select the bushes you want—from 4 to 5 feet in height to 10 feet or more. See to it that all have made good, stout growth during the Spring. Have them taken up and brought to your place. Go over them carefully, with a sharp knife cutting away all weak and unsightly branches, except what are needed to form a well-shaped bush. Pat them all into pots and tubs, cutting the root ball well back. The pot plants should then go into an open shed out of sun and wind. Put them close together and water them thoroughly. They should be syringed two or three times a day for one or two weeks, until you think them over the fatigue which the untimely lifting caused them. Then plunge them in over the rim outside; keep them well watered, though well drained, and continue, gradually withdrawing the syringing. You will soon observe very active root growth. In a month the pots will be crowded with new white roots; that's what you want. Toward the end of September you may diminish the waterings, and as frost comes take all the plants into a cold shed and let them stay there, nearly quite dry; or else lay them outside on the ground with lots of leaves or straw between pots and plants (select a place out of the sun). You need not think of them any more until four weeks before Easter. Then go over them, cut away all the roots above and below the pots or tubs; prepare a good watering can and neatly clean the pots. If necessary tie the branches into shape, and 20 days before Easter you must put them into heat of 58 to 60 degrees. Keep them half dark (the sunshine is apt to make the growth too firm, and unless the sun shines daily afterward the forcing is much delayed; at any rate more uncertain. This applies more or less to all forcing shrubs, roses, herbaceous plants, etc. I have frequently observed that when forced in sunlight the flowers and foliage of lilac, though nearly of their natural color and texture will fade very soon; sometimes the very day they are cut, therefore have them shaded by all means). When the single flowers begin to swell give more light (the light of whitewashed glass) and reduce the temperature to 50 degrees. As soon as the flowers are fully open put the plants into a cool, spacious, light place. If you are a little too early you can easily regulate the flowers by putting them in a cool place a little earlier. The syringing and watering, of course, must be attended to as before prescribed. When used for decorating be sure to put a saucer with water under each pot, for they need plenty of it.

PROPAGATING LILAC AND NURSERY CULTURE.

The ordinary way of propagating Syringa vulgaris is by the root shoots, which older plants produce in quantities; but the method of layering has also been resorted to, and is, of course, necessary where the mother plants are not on their own roots. The layers root very freely. (The persica and sinensis may be propagated by cuttings also.) The Marly Rouge, Marie Legraye and Charles X, which are to be grown in the open ground altogether, are generally propagated as indicated. Still a number of nurserymen have resorted entirely to budding or grafting. This method proved necessary to obtain short, bushy pot plants. Of course, it is more economical of wood, and for scarcer, especially double, varieties, one could not afford any other system. But for bushes to be grown without pots, it is well adapted, too, and furnishes an even-sized stock every year.

The lilacs are, in Europe, either worked on Syringa vulgaris seedlings or else on Ligustrum vulgare. It seems as if, when worked on ligustrum (privet), the lilac will make stouter growth, but on it it does not set flower buds so readily in a young state; an older plant on privet, say seven to eight years after budding, is at least equal to the one worked on syringa seedlings. Some say on ligustrum they do not force so early; but experts differ on that, and circumstances being equal otherwise I don't think there is a preference due to either on account of forcing quality.

Syringa vulgaris seedlings are the most generally used. When large enough, generally in the second year, they are transplanted in nursery rows, say 3 to 4 feet apart, and 1 foot in the rows. The following year in July, when the growth of the mother plant is thoroughly ripe, the budding is done. Two eyes are worked in on opposite sides of the seedling. If for bush plants, work on the crown of the root, but if for pot plants they should be put, say, one foot above the ground. Evidently half standard and standard trees may be grown by selecting suitable, strong, older seedlings, and by budding higher up the stem. The two eyes are left to develop naturally until the Fall of next year. The plants are then taken up, the roots sharply pruned and the plants are put into nursery rows again: the bush plants in rows 6 feet apart and 3 feet in the rows, the pot plants may be put into rows 4 feet apart and 2 feet apart in the rows. Before replanting them the wood has to be gone over. If the buds have taken well there will be three to four good shoots on each plant; all the other wood must be suppressed and the remaining three to four good shoots cut back to the lowest pair of good eyes. The bush plants may be left a little longer, unto two-thirds their length, where there is doubt about the selection of the eyes; but the pot plants should be trimmed well back.

The ground should be well manured, for the quality of the plants for forcing depends on the stoutness of their growth. During the succeeding years liquid manure, especially applied in early Spring and in Winter, will much help the plants. The third year the plants are left alone, except that weak growth, and, of course, at all times suckers from root, and base of stem are taken off. The fourth year after budding finishes the pot plants, the best, strongest shoots are to be selected to produce the flowering wood for the forcing; and these are cut back again in Winter or earliest Spring to the lowest pair of strong eyes, generally to 3 or 4 inches from below, all the other growths and all eyes, except the two top ones, are taken off with the knife. The plants have to be freely fed and watered until the growth matures. As soon as the last pair of leaves are fairly ripened, but before the wood gets hard, the plants are lifted, and after reducing the root ball they are to be potted—7 to 10-inch pots will accommodate all the plants. The potted plants are put close together on the top of the ground in a place sheltered from sun and wind; they are watered thoroughly and syringed frequently until they become fresh again. They are then taken outside and plunged into the ground just over the rim of the pot, and watering must continue until the cold weather approaches. They should then be laid on their sides with enough straw or leaves to protect them against hard frost and the influence of quick thawing. A deep cold pit, or frame, covered with boards is very useful, also. Of course, at this stage, they are ready for forcing or sale. Any surplus weak wood that has been made might be taken off while the potting is done.

We have followed the bush plants until their fourth year after budding; they need no attention other than the taking off of all superfluous wood. In the Fall of the fourth year the last season's growth is again cut back to about two-thirds of its height (some advocate not to trim, but only suppress the two terminal buds). Only the two top eyes of the remaining wood should be left on the plant, and during Winter and Spring a liberal supply of liquid or other manure will help to produce strong new shoots the following year. With these finished the plants will stand about 5 to 7 feet high; of course, they are long, leggy bushes, but the last year's growth is strong and each shoot will produce two, three or four flower buds.

If the plants are to be forced early, before Christmas, they should, as soon as the wood is nearly ripe, be cut around with a sharp spade, so as to check the root growth. In rainy seasons it may be better to take them up, and with the foot pack them firmly back into their hole again. This operation may be repeated should the rain continue (which is rarely the case in America). Lift them up a little and push them back again just enough to disturb the roots. For later forcing this extra trouble is not necessary.

Before severe frost all the plants should be put into a place where they may be had conveniently at any time. Lay them on the ground with a little earth over the roots and sufficient leaves or straw between and over the plants to protect them; or else put them into a cold shed, where they are sheltered from frost. The root ball may become quite dry; for early forcing it is even necessary that the plants are dried off one month previous to bringing them into heat.

The grafted stock, of course, is to be treated identically. The grafting is best done in earliest Spring, but it is not so convenient as budding. Plants propagated from suckers and layers are treated as I have suggested for the bush plants. Always build the plant up on three to four good strong branches and suppress any new shoots from root or bottom of the stem.

DOUBLE LILACS AS RAISED BY LEMOINE.

As I have previously mentioned the popularity of the lilac has greatly increased with its improvement. The new varieties are so much superior to the original type that this one is not worth growing any more (certainly not worth forcing), except, as suggested, for stock to bud on. Unique in effect are the double varieties, and as soon as they are more plentiful they will, I suppose, supplant the single ones altogether. It will, I don't doubt, interest many to learn a little of the work of the expert hybridizer, Lemoine, of Nancy, France, and I hope that his example will be followed in America, where the climate is so well suited for the shrubs under observation. M. Lemoine was kind enough to give me an explanation of his hybridizing work in a letter which reads as follows:

"For about 30 years we have been working to obtain good double forms of lilac. The first double lilac known to us and found in a few collections as a curiosity was the one named Syringa vulgaris azurea plena. Its flowers were small and hidden in the foliage of the plants; they had no special value. Inside the corolla of narrow tubular form was to be found still a second, and occasionally a third one; but so tightly was the flower filled by these extra corollas that they never produced stameas, and but rarely a rudimentary form of a pistil. With this poor, small-flowered variety we began crossing, using the pollen of five single varieties of Syringa vulgaris, such as Ville de Troyes, Aline Maqueris a. s., but failed to obtain good results. The most difficult work of hybridizing, using the Chinese Syringa oblata as pollen parent, succeeded better; and we had the satisfaction of finding among the seedling plants one afterward named Syringa hybridi hyacinthiflora plena, to be worthy of the name of hybrid. This new variety had inherited the double form of flower of the seed parent and the characteristic earliness of bloom of the pollen parent, as also its peculiar Autumn coloring of the foliage. All the varieties which were subsequently raised were hybrids or crosses between hybrids. The first introduced to the trade was Syringa vulgaris Lemoine, which, though now 20 years in general culture, has held its own. This variety was in chronological order followed by Alphonse Lavallée, Michel Buchner, President Grévy, Virginité, Léon Simon, Emile Lemoine and Mme. Lemoine. (This is a selection of only the best varieties.) The last named was the first double white and probably the finest of all. It was obtained from the single white, Marie Legraye, fertilized with a double variety." As a choice of all the doubles at this date M. Lemoine suggests the following list:

President Carnot, pale lilac, center white; Comtesse de Choiseul, white flushed with rose; Belle de Naacy, brilliant satiny pink, white toward the center; Chas. Baltet, center lilac, rose mauve toward border; Louis Henry, blue pink, with a wash of violet rose; Doyen Ketteler, pale rose; Mme. Casimir Perrier, creamy white; Abel Carrière, blue, tips rose; Chas. Joly, the darkest of all, mulberry black; Mme. Léon Simon, lilac rose, buds purplish; Marc. Micheli, azure lilac, tips nearly white.

The merits of the double lilacs over the single ones are, in M. Lemoine's opinion, the great variety of form and color, especially the size of the bunches and the single flowers. The doubles keep much longer, both on the plant and cut in water. They resist dry, hot weather much better, and as the flowers are tightly filled they don't allow insects to enter them, which is especially annoying with the light-colored single flowers. It is well known that insects can destroy white single lilac in a day or two.

Lilacs must have all possible light and sunshine to do well outside and a well drained soil, because they are apt to suffer from stagnant moisture. They should not be planted under trees in gardens and parks. M. Lemoine recommends Syringa pekinensis as a handsome solitary tree in standard form, and S. japonica as a Summer blooming shrub. The latter expands its pretty flowers in July, and is worth more attention for flower shrubberies, as the greater number of our garden shrubs bloom earlier.

Trade Report.

In most quarters an active retail trade in flowers has been the rule since Easter. Most kinds of blooms are plentiful, some being in over-supply. Roses hardly move off entire, and Harrisli are scarcely needed to the extent they are offered. Callas share a similar tendency. Bulb stock seems ready to finish up. Violets are still good. Buyers generally have the call on stock. Smilax is extremely scarce.

Anderson had several moderate-sized wedding orders this week, one of which called for a bride's bouquet of Bride roses, with a shower attachment in a combination of chiffon interspersed with valley sprays and adiantum.

News Jottings.

Hardy roses are on sale at the department stores at 12c. each. Active customers are noticeable about the low-priced seed-packet counters in these places.

W. B. Milley notes a good Easter call for hyacinths in pots at 20c. each. His lilies were a bit late. Altogether he had a larger business than usual, customers buying more liberal.

A Plant Easter.

This has been eminently a plant Easter, although the demand for cut flowers was in excess of the supply, except in tulips and narcissus; and these have to be pushed to sell, the main avenue for disposing of them being in boxes of mixed flowers, otherwise they are simply not wanted at all. As expected the business done has been a record-breaker, particularly with plants—about 40 per cent. on the average better than last year, and everyone cleaned up close on all salable goods.

The weather was very disagreeable Wednesday and Thursday, cold and two inches of snow on the ground, in spite of which shipping orders were taxing the ability of every florist enjoying that class of business; and retail orders continued to flow in in a steady stream, mostly for Saturday and Sunday deliveries. Saturday opened up bright and beautiful, and then the fun commenced. All expected a heavy trade and had made preparations for extra delivery; but none seemed prepared for the avalanche which came, and by afternoon additional teams had to be put on in order to get everything delivered. Crabb & Hunter rented a store on Monroe street for a plant sale, which was remarkably successful, except the delivering, that necessitating the engaging of four parcel delivery wagons to help out. Henry Smith had a beautiful wreath and cross combination piece of galax leaves in his window which attracted a good deal of attention. The Floral Co.'s windows were neatly arranged with a mixture of azaleas, lilies, etc., as were also Cunningham's. Renwick made no special attempt at display, yet his window was as attractive as usual.

The lily, of course, was in greatest demand, as it is the Easter plant. Azaleas and hydrangeas sold well. Crimson Rambler roses sold on sight, as did American Beauty in 6-inch pots. A great many did not open their flower buds in time, or there would have been none left. Spiræas hardly sold at all. Azalea mollis did not seem to take very well either; and as for rhododendrons so few sold that we predict none will be grown next year. Dielytras should have sold better. Hyacinths in 4-inch pots, at 15c. to 25c. each, were in good supply and sold quick, while 6 to 8-inch pans of hyacinths did not sell so freely, being too expensive. What the people wanted was something for about 25c. to 75c. each; at those figures they bought freely, but above that value sparingly. Tulips in pans went very slow. The cineraria clings to the trade with the tenacity of a poor man's plaster, a few yet growing it; but it has had its day. A nice Paris daisy, grown to standard form, about 4 feet in height, was seen at Bruins Slot & Sons'; it was evenly flowered, and altogether a fine plant. G. F. C.

Trade Notes.

Business during the past week was only fair. Plenty of stock is coming in now to fill all orders, and prices have declined a little. Carnations are improving in quality, Flora Hill still being in the lead as a good white, and coming with a good stiff stem, and fine flowers.

News Jottings.

Our growers who have planted out their carnations are experiencing considerable trouble with rabbits. Will Murphy reports that in one night they managed to eat up or destroy about 1,000 Estelle for him. They have good taste, and only pick out the best sorts. Thomas Windram was also looking for a rabbit exterminator. With him Fisher seemed to be the sort the rabbits wanted.

Saturday afternoon, April 21, wound up the monthly exhibitions of the Cincinnati Florists' Society for the season. This was the bulb and plant meeting. George & Allen captured most of the prizes. Henry Schwartz secured the $5 for Harrisii and first premium for best geraniums.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Society was held Saturday evening, with barely a grower present. The next meeting will be held May 12, when all members in good standing are earnestly requested to be present, as the nomination of officers for the ensuing year will then be in order.

Mr. Graves, of Richmond, Ind., was a caller Tuesday, as was J. T. Herdigen, of Aurora, Ind. E. G. GILLETT.

Market News.

The principal event of the past week was the Bergner-Bispham wedding, the decorations of which were very elaborate. Pennock Bros. had a carte blanche order for this event, for both the house and church decorations. At the church, over the chancel, a canopy was made of smilax; suspended from this were floral bells. The ends of the choir stalls were banked with palms, azaleas and lilies. The altar was one mass of cut lilies. The ends of the pews were also decorated with bunches of these flowers tied with ribbon. The main aisle of the church was covered with expensive rugs, which were tied to each other with ribbons. The bride carried a bunch of orange blossoms, while the bridesmaids carried shower bouquets of Bridesmaid roses. At the house the drawing room was converted into a reception room, a bower being made of foliage and flowering plants. The curtains and draperies through all the rooms were hung with asparagus, into which were inserted carnations. In the dining room of the bride white was used, the table having a center vase of Bride roses and small vases of choice orchids and valley. The main dining room was red, the draperies, chandeliers and walls being hung with asparagus, to which were attached red carnations. The hallways of the three stories of the house were hung with smilax; with this pink carnations were used. All the mantels, side boards, etc., were appropriately decorated, flowering plants and Adiantum Farleyense being lavishly used. The entire decoration was the largest seen here for some time, and was carried out with splendid taste to the satisfaction of all.

Trade in Flower Pots Satisfactory.

The Whilldin Pottery Co. report the present season as a very satisfactory one, the amount of business being far in advance of any previous year; but during the rush of the past two months they were able, with their splendid facilities, to keep all orders filled promptly, being now only short on a few sizes of pots. This firm has recently purchased a large tract of land about 30 miles from this city, which has a good deposit of clay, the vein being 2 feet thick having only a few inches of top soil on it. The clay is of splendid quality; in fact, better than this firm has ever been able to secure previously. Pots are now being made from this and are giving every satisfaction.

News Items.

H. Cook, of Broad and Federal street, extended his business the past Winter by renting an adjoining store. In this he has made a specialty of gold fish, aquarium, etc. The venture has paid well, good business being done, and the sale of plants materially increased.

Ed. Fancourt, who during the past season was with Jos. Klft & Son, has gone to Cleveland, to enter the employment of Smith & Fetters in their retail store.

The Florists' Club will meet on Tuesday next when Robert Craig will make an address on "Experiences Gained by the Easter Trade of 1900."

Not much can be said this week about the cut flower trade, as although business has been fair with the stores, the supply of cut flowers is far in excess of the demands; and all kinds of stock are practically a glut, except valley, which is in demand. No settled prices can be quoted; everything is in favor of the buyers, and large quantities of both roses and carnations are going to the street men. Shipments now arriving are larger than earlier in the week.

DAVID RUST.

Hartford, Conn.

Easter trade was a record-breaker and all of the dealers report business away ahead of last year. Some say twice as much business was done. Everything was cleared out clean. Stock was generally plentiful, excepting carnations, which were very scarce and in good condition. Some of the florists would not take any orders ahead for carnations, on account of there being such a scarcity of them. More than double the number of blooming plants were sold than a year ago. The general price for lilies in pots was 20c. a flower, the large buds counting as blossoms. They were in excellent condition and the supply was about equal to the demand. Cut lilies sold at from $2 to $3 a dozen. There was a big demand for tulips, hyacinths, spiræa and daffodils in pots; and they went readily at from 25c. to 75c. a pot. Azaleas sold well, at from $1 to $5 each; many more could have been disposed of had they been in bloom or bud more.

In the cut flower line there was more call for carnations and violets than for anything else. Carnations sold at from 50c. to 75c. a dozen. Violets were very plentiful and in good condition; they went at from $1 to $1.50 a hundred. Roses were quite plentiful and good in quality, but were not much called for. Bride and Bridesmaid brought from $1.50 to $2 a dozen; other varieties, $1 to $1.50 a dozen. Daffodils and tulips went at from 50c. to 75c. a dozen. Most of the florists worked all night Friday putting up their orders for Saturday, and many of the stores employed extra help.

John Coombs opened his new store Good Friday, which is said to be the largest and finest florist store between New York and Boston. All of the fixings, cases, etc., are of quartered oak. The large show window in front measures 20 x18 feet, which is next to the largest pane of glass in the city. The window will hold about three ordinary wagon loads of plants. It was decorated very tastefully for Easter and attracted a good deal of attention. J. F. C.

Pittsburg.

Trade is moving along nicely and stock is in good condition and abundant. Prices are very satisfactory, and will not likely change very much before Summer. The seedsmen are very busy just now, the retail trade is on, and it promises well. The plant growers are also getting in line, for the weather is all that can be desired and people are anxious to buy plants. Trade in plants will be heavy this season and competition sharp. Several growers in the Pittsburg Market have rented store-rooms near their stands, and are doing a good trade already.

The street fakirs, or Greeks, are slowly gaining ground in the city, and now control about a half dozen prominent stands on the main thoroughfares. They handle good stock and are thriving in their trade. A few of the department stores are still trying to get a hold in the florist business, but so far have not succeeded in doing any harm to the regular trade.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, was in town. E. C. REINEMAN.

Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Easter business was very brisk—an increase of at least 10 per cent. over last year. There was less demand than ever for cut flowers. Roses sold very slowly, but carnations sold out clean. Violets went well, both cut and in pots. We found an increased demand for lilies (all longiflorum) at a slight increase of price over last year. Harrisii were a total failure.. No novelties were offered unless you consider boronia, eriens and Crimson Ramblers as novelties. Prices, with the exception of those on lilies (increased), were about same as last year.

E. W. W.

Syracuse, N. Y.

Easter Notes.

This year's Easter trade was the heaviest ever known. There were no novelties. The florists' stores presented a beautiful display. H. Burt was very strong in azaleas. Henry Morris had some remarkable good cinerarias, h. p. and Crimson Rambler roses. P. R. Quinlan & Co. had a large general assortment. Bannister Bros. rented a store for Easter week and made a very creditable display. Pot plants in bloom sold remarkably well, the chief call being for cinerarias, hyacinths, tulips, azaleas and lilies.

In cut flowers bulb stock of all kinds sold well. Carnations also sold well and had the first call. Prices for everything ruled high with few complaints. Roses sold at from $2 to $4 per dozen; Beauty, $1 to $2 each. Carnations brought $1 to $1.50 per dozen; tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, $1; violets, $3 per 100, and in short supply. There was a very noticeable increase in the number of church decorations and of a more elaborate description.

Peter Kay, florist, has been appointed superintendent of Woodlawn Cemetery, and continues his florist business with the aid of his wife and extra help.

The desire for more parks for the city is growing year by year, and the Council has secured several large pieces of land in different sections of the city for park purposes the past year. H. Y.

Toronto.

Business since Easter has been fairly good, and as stock has been generally plentiful this has been a profitable week for the retailers. Quite a glut of lilies has been experienced, and they have been sold at wholesale for all sorts of prices, the general figure being 5c. per bloom, with buds thrown in. Violets have been fairly plentiful, but not generally good. Carnations are abundant again, and roses are good. The last few days have been very warm, and stock has rushed along rapidly. Tulips and hyacinths in the open ground are coming along fast, and if the present weather conditions continue the flowers will not last long, or be very good. T. M.

Weather and Trade Conditions.

Indications point to a late Spring. The grass is at last green; buds of willows are slow of opening; lilacs are trying to bud out, but that is all. Everything else is as bare as in Winter, although we are entering the last week of April. These conditions are sure to occur here, when winds persistently veer to north or east off the lake. Stock of all kinds is accumulating, and prices are falling. The home demand seems to have quieted down since Easter, and it is almost certain that from this on lower values will prevail. The belated lily crops have shown up all week, being now well sold at from $6 to $8, and then hard to clear. Callas are in the same boat, being still quite abundant. In roses, long-stemmed Beauty realize $4 per dozen, down. A few fancy teas go at $8, but $5 to $6 is a more common price; No. 1 bring $3 and $4; shorts, and old stock, $2 to $3.

Carnations also are feeling the slump. The streets are gay with good red flowers, and when that is the case the price is low. Lots were sold this week at $10 to $15 per 1,000. Fancies will not go beyond $3, except in very rare instances; fine grades of standards realizing $1.50 to $2.

The violet supply is shortening up somewhat. Good frame-grown stock sells at 75c. Pansies, fine, large flowers, bring 5c. per bunch of 10, and are selling better. Bulbous stock, house grown, is not so plentiful now, but lots are coming in from the South. Lilac has made its appearance and is selling well. Some good antirrhinums at Easter brought $1 per dozen, but they will not fetch that figure now. Trailing arbutus is in.

Some New Buildings.

Now that the frost is at last practically out of the ground, and more favorable conditions for building present themselves, there are several notable extensions under way. Among them Peter Reinberg will shortly have ready for glazing 16 houses, 27½x250 feet—something like four acres more to be added to his immense establishment. The houses have iron posts and the Garland gutter is employed en bloc; glazing will be with 16x18 glass, three carloads of which are on hand, with two more to arrive. One-half of these houses will, when completed, be planted with Beauty, the remainder with Bride and Bridesmaid roses. Mr. Reinberg has 6,000 Liberty already planted, and two houses of Golden Gate. The room taken up by cuttings and pot plants of young roses and carnations at this place would alone make quite a large-sized establishment. When this new lot of houses is completed, starting along the sidewalk of the street, one may get a glimpse from the outside of a range of houses, each 250 to 265 feet in length, all end to end, and making within 300 feet of a half-mile tramp from one end to the other. This new addition will cost nigh upon $35,000.

George Reinberg will not build nor rebuild this year, but proposes to rearrange his heating apparatus, adding new boilers, etc. He is planting two houses of Liberty roses; had several houses of Kaiserin planted some time ago that are just beginning to give good cuts. He also is cutting regularly from his La France plants.

J. A. Budlong, Bowmanville, has the posts and benching nearly finished, and is ready for the rafters of four houses, 24x300 feet each. The stock here, all roses, is in very fine condition, and has given splendid cuts right along, of Beauty, Meteor, Bride and Bridesmaid.

John A. Grossman, on Lincoln avenue, is building new—using the old glass—eight houses, 20x100 feet. He hopes to finish the work in two or three weeks. Weber Bros. will rent and run these houses. Two smaller ones, for propagating, are to be added later.

Albert Fuchs' Place Sold.

The past week Albert Fuchs' splendid place has changed hands, the purchasers being Walter Retzer and Alfred Everett, who will conduct the business under the firm name of Retzer & Co. The establishment covers a space of 250 x300 feet, compactly built, with fine show house, office, dwelling, stables and two three-story stone front flats erected last year. The principal part of the stock on the place embraces 150,000 palms, of all sizes, besides quantities of palm seeds sown this Spring—ferns, roses and a general assortment. The site is an admirable one, close to the Sheridan Drive, with showy frontage. The establishment was started in a small way by Mr. Fuchs a dozen years or so ago, gradually reaching its present development. There is an excellent home trade in cut flowers, decorating, etc., with plenty of opportunity for expansion.

Mr. Fuchs expects to go to some German baths, being troubled with rheumatic affection. Walter Retzer is an educated young man, a graduate of Shaw's Garden, St. Louis, and for the last year was with O. C. Simonds, at Graceland Cemetery, acting in the capacity of landscape engineer. The building, stock and business as it stands cost something like $40,000, outside of the land, which is quite valuable.

Round About.

John Blank, on 43d street, did a fine Easter trade. He was rather short of potted lilies, but made a great hit with other bulbous stock.

The Art Floral Co. report a grand Easter business. They have some fine clivias in flower, and also were very successful with hydrangeas, which they grew at their place in Blue Island. They will go more extensively into the latter another year.

George Allen, formerly with Schubert, is now with the Anderson Floral Co., on Madison street.

O. J. Freedman has organized the Freedman Automobile Co.

J. C. Vaughan is on the Cook County April Grand Jury.

An Unprecedented Easter Trade.

All of our florists interviewed within the few days since Easter report an unusually good business, exceeding in volume that of any previous season; and these reports are verified by the depleted stocks and general appearance of the houses of the growers. Never before was so much stock disposed of in so short a space of time. The weather during the entire week was cold and dull, and threatening until Saturday noon, when it changed to sunshine. The depressing conditions of the early part of the week held trade back until the last two or three days, and then it came on with a rush that overtaxed the facilities of all dealers to care for it.

Early preparations were made for a heavy trade and storekeepers engaged unusually large stocks of plants; by Sunday noon but very little was left on hand, most of their purchases having been disposed of at exceedingly good prices. Although the trade in cut flowers was good, values were not advanced to any great extent, and in most cases the rates for several weeks preceding Easter were obtained. Plants of all kinds were eagerly sought after and the entire stocks of both growers and dealers were consumed.

From early predictions a shortage in lilies was looked for, but the supply was larger than was expected, and in every instance quite equal to the demand. No scarcity in these flowers can be noted at this time.

Retail prices were $3 per dozen for best blooms; wholesale rate, 15c. per bloom. Roses were in good supply and prices asked were not above former quotations. Much choice stock retailed at $1.50 per dozen, while best blooms brought $2 and $2.50 per dozen.

Bulb stock was offered freely, and prices same as last quoted.

Violets were in brisk demand, and although large quantities were engaged by store keepers, their stocks were exhausted early and many orders remained unfilled.

Carnation prices were the same as last reported—60c. to 75c. per dozen for ordinary, and extras and fancy, $1; in some cases very fine blooms brought $1.50 per dozen.

The usual Easter window decorations were very fine.

At the Market.

The weather was so disagreeable that little Easter stock was offered at the markets until Saturday. At the Sheriff Street Market all day Friday was given to arranging the stands of the several growers. The management of this market had for several weeks advertised the "Annual Easter Flower Show," and, as usual, offered cash premiums for the best arranged display of flowers; many of the growers entered the competition for these premiums, and some very creditable displays were made. G. M. Naumann took the first premium, Fred. Burger second, John Mollenkopf third. The flower display being so widely advertised attracted thousands to it, and during Saturday afternoon and evening it was almost impossible for the florists, even with large forces of help, to handle the trade. When your correspondent visited this place at a late hour Saturday evening there was nothing of any account left to dispose of, plants of all kinds, cut flowers of all grades having found eager purchasers at unusually good prices. One grower stated that any price asked was readily paid by buyers.

Retail rates on cut blooms were: Carnations, 50c. to 75c. per dozen; tulips, 75c. per dozen; roses, teas, $2; hybrids, $3 per dozen. Crimson Rambler roses in pots brought $1 to $2 and $2.50 per plant. Azaleas from $2 to $10, according to size of plant; plants which bring ordinarily $3 sold at $5 each. Red varieties were in greatest demand.

BY LIZZIE PAGE HILLHOUSE.

A complete text-book and guide to the care, cultivation and propagation of all plants in the garden and the home.

The volume is written by a woman for women, in plain, concise language, easily understood, and the book has the special merit of giving directions which can be readily followed, the methods prescribed being of the simplest, and the material suggested to be used easily within reach of all.

To Retail Florists. The old thought, that it was dangerous for a customer to know much about the care of plants, has passed away, being superseded by the newer and more intelligent one, viz.: that the more successful a customer is with plants, the greater quantity will he or she buy.

THIS great work comprises directions for the cultivation of horticultural crops and original descriptions of all the species of Fruits, Vegetables, Flowers, and ornamental plants known to be in the market in the United States and Canada.

BY L. H. BAILEY, OF CORNELL UNIVERSITY, ASSISTED BY WILHELM MILLER AND MANY EXPERT CULTIVATORS AND BOTANISTS.

THOUGH distinctly an American work, not only plants indigenous to the North American continent are mentioned, but also all the species known to be in the horticultural trade in North America, of whatever origin. It is really a survey of the cultivated plants of the world.

The chief characteristics of this great work are comprised in our describing its source, scope, and general features. It is AUTHORITATIVE since its contributors are the best specialists in America, and there will be at least 5000 signed contributions from the best-known horticulturists, cultivators, and botanists in this country and in Europe. It is also most COMPREHENSIVE in that it presents for the first time in carefully arranged and perfectly accessible form the best knowledge of the best specialists upon greenhouse and garden practice, fruit growing, vegetable culture, forestry and the like. It is moreover fresh, entirely ORIGINAL; not a rehash of old material, old cuts, etc. The articles are specially prepared and illustrated for this work alone; while the trained botanist discusses the botanical features of the important commercial plants, practical cultivators submit observations on their culture, marketing, and the like, so that the reader has before him the very best practice in the most favorable localities for the perfection of any fruit, vegetable, or economic plant. The arrangement is very systematic, clear and convenient for ready reference.

THE CYCLOPEDIA is to be completed in four handsome quarto volumes, embracing about 2000 pages, with more than that number of original illustrations. It is carefully printed upon specially made paper of a permanent character, and the work will be completed this year.

This book is sold only by subscription, and orders will be accepted for the full set only. For terms of subscription and all further information, address

Commercial Plants

THEIR PROPAGATION AND CULTURE.

BY GEORGE W. OLIVER, PROPAGATOR TO THE U. S. BOTANIC GARDEN, WASHINGTON, D.C. AND LATE OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDEN, EDINBURGH.

A working Hand Book of Every-day Practice for the Florist or Gardener, and those who intend to grow plants and flowers, in the greenhouse or garden, as a means of obtaining a livelihood. Each and every article is written in concise, simple language, and embodies wholly and solely the experiences of the writer.

The plants dealt with comprise those which are commercially handled by Florists, Gardeners and Nurserymen, and include Florists' Flowers, Stove and Greenhouse Plants, Hardy Herbaceous Plants, Annuals, Shrubs, Hardy and Tender Vines, and a chapter on miscellaneous subjects in connection with the above.

This reliable cultural book has been gotten up for use not ornament, therefore the price has been fixed at a figure within the reach of all, while it contains more real practical information for those for whom it is intended than is to be found in much more pretentious works costing ten and twenty times as much money. Strongly bound to stand rough handling and plenty of it. Price, $1.00 by mail, postpaid.

G. H. CRANE

THE BEST SCARLET CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED.

We have the finest and best selected stock of this Carnation in the country. We have 25,000 selected cuttings now ready, and can ship promptly on receipt of order.

Price, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL MACEO

THE BEST CRIMSON CARNATION.

Pure, Rich, Clear, Effective Color, the Best Keeper of all Crimsons. The Most Profuse Bloomer of all. Produces 25 per cent. More Flowers than any other Carnation we have ever grown. Sells Out Clean in Quantity. Is Liked by Everybody.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL GOMEZ

Some growers who have not grown Maceo think this is the best of the two varieties. Our experience shows Maceo to be the most profitable of the two. Gomez has a longer stem, is lighter in color and sells at 20 per cent. higher price than Maceo.

If you are in doubt as to which to plant, buy an equal quantity of each variety. That will enable you to determine which is best suited for your requirements.

15,000 Cuttings ready, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Ethel Crocker A pure red-pink shade of Mrs. Jas. Dean, but darker, healthiest habit of all; fine stock now ready. $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Morning Glory (Dorner). The Daybreak Colored Scott, the best salmon pink on the market at present; a bright, refreshing shade; very free bloomer; always in flower; ready now. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Olympia Largest variegated Carnation, only rival to Mrs. G. M. Bradt; strong plants, from soil and a few from pots, at $12.00 per 100.

Mrs. G. M. Bradt One of the largest and most sought after Carnations grown, producing blooms 3 to 4 in. in diameter; best seller of its class; strong stock, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Genevieve Lord Fine, strong plants, from soil or pots, $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Germination of Seeds, and Chemical Fertilizers.—The late Gilbert H. Hicks, assistant botanist United States Department of Agriculture, sometime before his death made several experiments relating to the germination of seeds as affected by certain chemical fertilizers, and the result of these experiments has now been published in Bulletin No. 24, Division of Botany. The following are the conclusions arrived at:

(1) That muriate of potash and sodium nitrate used as fertilizers in strengths of 1 per cent. or more are very detrimental to the germination of seeds, whether applied directly or mixed with the soil.

(2) That fertilizers composed of phosphoric acid or lime are much less injurious to germination than sodium nitrate or muriate of potash, and if not used in excess may be harmless.

(3) That commercial fertilizers should not be brought into direct contact with germinating seeds.

(4) The effect of treating seeds with chemicals before planting is no index to the action of those chemicals when applied as manures to the soil.

(5) That the chief injury to germination from chemical fertilizers is inflicted upon the young sprouts after they leave the seed coat and before they emerge from the soil, while the seeds themselves are injured only slightly or not at all.

(6) It is highly improbable that potash, phosphoric acid, nitrogen, or lime used as fertilizers actually favor germination.

In the letter of transmittal Chief Botanist Coville remarks: "The general conclusion that a commercial fertilizer, unless known to be of a non-injurious kind, should not be brought into direct contact with germinating seeds should be made the basis of established practice."

Holland's Famous Tulip Craze.

"In the year 1634 the tulip craze in Holland," writes Clifford Howard, in the May Ladies' Home Journal, "became so great that the ordinary industries were neglected. No one wanted to do anything but raise tulips. A rare specimen offered for sale called forth excited bidding. Every one was on the lookout for special varieties. It was rumored at one time that there were but two bulbs of the Semper Augustus in existence in Holland. One of them was owned by a florist in Haarlem, and the other by a dealer in Amsterdam. This rumor was sufficient to arouse the liveliest commotion in tulip circles, and dealers and fanciers hurried forward with offers to purchase—each one endeavoring to outbid the other. The competition became so eager that finally one man offered 12 acres of city property for the Haarlem bulb; but the owner refused to sell. The bulb in Amsterdam was knocked down to the highest bidder for $1,900 in cash, two horses, a carriage and a set of harness—a total of about $3,000, which in those days was a fabulous sum."

European Notes.

During the past two days Nature has landed us into the middle of Summer, and if anything could galvanize into new life the plants on which our hopes are relying for next season's crops it would be such weather as we have enjoyed during the past five days. Unfortunately, it is now too late, and every day is adding to the failures of varieties that are needed the most.

Reports reach us from your side that sales have been rather slow. This should not be discouraging to holders of good stocks, for they will certainly realize full values next year. Already values have risen considerably and the prices now being realized by European dealers for cabbages, mangels, kohl-rabi, rutabagas and rape would make some of your merchants open their eyes. An "eye opener" in the opposite direction is to be found in one of the "cheap and nasty" seed catalogues that is being sent broadcast throughout the British Isles. In this precious production all seeds are offered in penny (i. e. 2 cent) packets, from orchids to mustard and cress. The hollow device of stating the number of seeds in each packet will cause a smile on the face of the purchaser of such articles as anthurium, chianthus, coffea, thea, lapergeria (sic.) and seven varieties of palms, etc., when they find the packet contains one seed. This is playing to the gallery with a vengeance, and it is not surprising to find it stated on the title page that "this new system will in a few years revolutionize the seed trade."

The novelties in narcissi which have appeared thus far have presented no very striking feature. Those most likely to be of use to seedsmen are N. Poetaz (what an ugly name), a hybrid between the Poet's narcissus and N. Tazetta. This was exhibited in several different colors, and the general opinion is that if they are as useful for outdoor cultivation as they are for pot culture there is certain to be a good demand for them when they can be bought at a reasonable price. A double form of the Campernelle Jonquil also attracted attention, and received an award of merit from the Narcissus Committee.

NURSERY DEPARTMENT.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN

WILSON J. PETERS, Troy, O., President; D. S. LAKE, Shenandoah, Ia., Vice-President; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Secretary; C. L. YATES, Rochester, N. Y., Treasurer.

Robert Douglas Son's, Waukegan, Ill., inform the nursery trade that there is no foundation to the report circulating in Western newspapers to the effect that this nursery has been sold. This will not be done as long as the present proprietors live, as they look upon the nursery as a monument to their late revered father.

Two agents of the Division of Forestry left Washington recently to organize an investigation of commercial trees, which will be carried on in western Washington this Summer. They will be joined in a few weeks by about 20 assistants. The chief object will be to determine the rate of growth and the stand per acre of forests of different ages under varying conditions. From this data can be reckoned the time required to produce a second crop on cut-over land, and lumbermen can decide whether it will be profitable to hold and pay taxes on such property. Some work of this kind was done on the red fir last Summer. This will be completed, and about July 1 the Western hemlock will be taken up. A party will also go to California to study the redwood about the same time.

American Association of Nurserymen.—The twenty-fifth annual convention of this association will be held at the Chicago Beach Hotel, June 13 and 14. Among the subjects to be discussed are: "The Retail Nursery Business," by N. W. Hale, Knoxville, Tenn.; "Reminiscences of Our Association and its Members, up to its Silver Anniversary," by N. H. Albaugh, Phonetoo, O.; "Some New Lines of Work for Prairie Nurserymen," by Professor N. E. Hansen, Brookings, S. D.; "The Future of the Nursery Business in Our New Possessions," by R. C. Berckmans, Augusta, Ga. Special rates of one fare and a third for the round trip have been granted by the railroads.

The Question Box will be largely drawn from, and altogether a most satisfactory meeting is looked forward to.

The Experiment Stations.

SPRAYING NOTES. By Professor L. H. Bailey and others. Bulletin 177, Cornell University Agricultural Experiment Station, Ithaca, N. Y.—The bulletin states that the old kerosene and soap emulsion—the vilest of concoctions—seems to be doomed; the kerosene and water emulsion is to take its place. Regarding the San José scale the following significant remarks are made:

"The San José scale is still with us. It will stay. There is no hope of eradicating it. Then every man should be prepared to meet it. He should not rely on state control alone. For three seasons now we have experimented with the kerosene and water emulsion—as others have done—and have found that it is a specific for the scale. In the proportion of 1 part of oil to 5 of water in Summer, and 1 to 4 in Winter, it will kill the scale. Can a man hope to annihilate the scale, then, by spraying? No. On plants which he can spray thoroughly and frequently he can hope to eradicate it; but I should not expect him to eradicate it from a large and badly infested plantation any more than he can eradicate the apple scab or the bark louse. But I should expect him to keep it in check. Spraying for San José scale must come to be an accepted practice, as spraying for potato blight is. All this means that the grower should not be frightened, but should be self reliant and determined. But the state should help him. The law should not help him less, but more. Nursery stock should be fumigated with hydrocyanic acid gas, under strict control. It would be folly to attempt to burn every infested tree or bush wherever found; but the law should be so amended as to allow a properly qualified officer to destroy plants which, in the judgment of experts, are a menace to the general weal."

Jackman's New Hybrid Coccinea Clematis

HYBRID CLEMATIS DUCHESS OF YORK.

We have been appointed Sole Agents for the United States and Canada by Messrs. Jackman & Sons.
An entirely new and distinct type, being crossed between Clematis Coccinea and Star of India, both of which succeed well in our climate. They combine all the good points of their parents in hardiness, vigorous growth and freedom of bloom, which, together with their entirely distinct coloring and novel shape, will make them valuable additions to our list of Hardy Climbers.
Countess of Onslow.—A bright violet-purple with a broad band of scarlet down the center of each petal; it is of open bell-shape form, with four to six petals to each flower; very useful for decorative purposes, as when cut will keep fresh in water for several days. $1.25 each.
Duchess of Albany.—A beautiful bright pink, deeper down the center, softening down to lilac pink round the margin; campanulate in shape, useful for cutting. $1.25 each.
Duchess of York.—A delicate and pleasing shade of pale pink, with a deeper tinge down the center of each petal, of campanulate form, with four to six petals to each bloom, useful for cutting. $1.25 each.
Grace Darling.—A delicate hue of bright rosy carmine, star-shaped blooms. $1.50.

St. Louis.

Trade Notes.

With the advent of warmer weather greenhouse flowers seem to have lost some of their prestige. Business among the wholesalers is not so bad, however, but the great quantity of stock coming in causes a reduction in prices. Roses are as low as $1 per 100, and from that up to 5c. each for the very best; Beauty realize from 6c. to 25c.; carnations, $1 to $1.50 per 100, though one of our wholesale men got 6c. for a very fine fancy variety he received last week. Violets are at last out of the market. Lilies, especially Harrisii, are very plentiful and prices low. Little bulb stock is now to be seen. Lilacs, both from below and locally, seem to come in together this year, with little demand.

Bedding will now proceed briskly. The ever popular geranium seems to take first place, while cannas are a close second. Most all the local florists are provided with a good stock, so we are in hopes of a very prosperous season, that is for this city, for after reading in last week's EXCHANGE the report of your Cincinnati correspondent of the quantity of stock sold there on Easter Saturday it makes us think St. Louis has no flower buyers worthy of the name. This is not strictly correct; we have some very liberal people, but comparatively speaking, no such volume of business was done in this city as was claimed by the scribe of our sister city. One thing against us is, that we have no suitable place here to show our goods properly—only an open market shed, with no protection from the elements.

Business in our market has been steadily decreasing as the years go by. We attribute this condition to the number of electric cars that take people direct to the greenhouses, where the bulk of the business is now done.

Wm. Clamp, of Harper's Place, Webster Groves, has closed out his interests there, and will shortly return to England to reside.

The firm of Felter & Bruecker will dissolve partnership after the Spring sales. Mr. Bruecker has bought a new place, and will build this Summer, while Mr. Felter will continue at the old stand.

Helen, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Beneke, died May 1. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of the trade here. C. C. S.

Denver.

Trade since Easter has been rather on the quiet side with the exception of Easter Monday, when there was a brisk call for flowers. Consequently, stock is beginning to load up, but prices hold firm. Beauty are selling at $3 to $7 per dozen; Bridesmaid and Bride, the best, at $2. Carnations are going at 50c., while fancy and good Flora Hill bring 75c. Just now Glauber & Webb are picking some exceptionally fine Scott—no need for a better pink one while done as good as they do it. They are also sending in some good Beauty.

The Park Floral Co. are having a big cut of roses, and Beauty is well done here. They will have a big cut during June just right for the weddings.

Beauty is a universal favorite here, and a great many more could be disposed of, that is, if grown here; we don't like to ship in.

On Saturday last Mr. Lingenbrink, for the past six months our commission man, sold out to the Alpha Floral Co., who will carry on the business. Plenty of chance here for a hustling concern. It is said that Mr. Lingenbrink will forget the florist business and take to the Klondyke. Just when he will start I do not know. DENVER.

Toronto.

Business continues good and nearly all stock is first-class. Violets are in short supply, as many of the outside plants have been killed by the hard frost during the Winter.

The Horticultural Society held a special meeting during the week, at which Dr. King, president of the local Camera Club, gave a splendid exhibition of views of plants and flowers especially interesting to the members. T. M.

GENEVIEVE LORD

The Peerless New Pink Carnation.

In all of our long experience we have never had a Carnation produce as many first-class, high-grade blooms to the square foot as Genevieve Lord. It blooms early and the year round. Its color is just right; "beautiful," "lovely," "exquisite," "perfectly charming," are some of the adjectives used by some of our lady customers in describing it. With all its good productiveness, size is a leading feature, large enough to put it away up front. Its grand stem is perhaps its crowning feature. What is a flower without a stem? Genevieve Lord stands up straight twelve months in the year. When you think of all this, and a non-bursting calyx thrown in for good measure, there is little left to be desired. We are pleased to announce that we can fill orders promptly after April 10th, but do not know how long we can promise this, as stock is going rapidly. To clinch matters and drive a good bargain, order at once.

Price, doz., $2.00; 100, $10.00; 1000, $75.00.

Can also furnish all of the big new ones at Introducers' prices, as well as the best standard varieties.

Lothrop & Higgins, dahlia specialists, Bridgewater, Mass., have had 300 square feet added to their allotment of 550 square feet at the Paris Exposition.

Cleveland (O.) has a Home Gardening Association, which recently distributed through the various schools 40,000 packages of seeds to be planted by the school children.

A florist of Paterson, N. J., one day last week was delivering a gates ajar when he was accosted by a resident, who put to him the following inquiry: "Say, mister, where are you goin' with these oven doors open?"

Intending competitors are reminded that the contest in the third essay on the subject "What Benefits have I Received and Pointers Obtained from My Visits to Other Greenhouse Establishments and the Flower Shows," closes May 7. See page 406, issue of April 14, for particulars.

American-Grown Bulbs.

The satisfactory results of the tests made in connection with American-grown bulbs, by C. J. Stromback, head gardener of Lincoln Park, Chicago, both forced and out-of-door grown hyacinths, would seem to demonstrate the superior quality of the home grown bulbs, in comparison with those imported. Even Dutch bulb men expressed surprise at the fine quality of the flower spikes obtained from the former, one of these gentlemen remarking that they were "far ahead of what he anticipated."

Three serious drawbacks to the development of the bulb industry at home, at the present time, seem to be the questions of labor, experience and transportation. Mr. Andreas Simon, horticultural editor of the Times-Herald, Chicago, who has given much attention to the subject of growing bulbs in America, particularly in the Puget Sound region, discussing the labor phase of the matter, in a recent issue of that paper, comments thereon as follows:

"It is claimed by some that cheap labor in Holland is mainly responsible for the maintenance of the monopoly which that country has enjoyed, but when one considers the tariff on bulb importations, or takes into account the fact that an acre of fine bulb land—virgin soil—in the Bellingham Bay region can be purchased outright for less money than is demanded in the shape of annual rental for an acre of worn-out bulb land in Holland, the question of low wages in Holland would not seem to give the Dutch growers any advantage whatever. Certainly not when one considers that the Washington bulbs are pronounced by experts to be superior to the imported in size, texture, blooms and forcing qualities." As stated another deterrent here to the successful conduct of the bulb industry is the lack of experienced help. It was noticed in some instances in the bulbs under test that the process of curing had not been thoroughly understood. But Mr. Simon thinks he sees a way out of this difficulty. He says: "When the time arrives in which to make a well-directed, energetic start in our own northwestern bulb country it will be found an easy matter to hire men who have spent a considerable portion of their lives in bulb growing in Holland, and who will be found not only willing but anxious to come over here and accept employment as overseers or field foremen on bulb farms. There are several such men engaged in bulb growing for the American trade near Haarlem; they possess furthermore the very desirable accomplishment of bulb sellers, which is proved by the fact that they have visited the United States for a number of years each Spring to solicit orders for bulbs grown by themselves."

The greatest difficulty to be overcome at the present day, in competition with foreign grown stock, is the matter of transportation charges, it being possible to lay down Holland bulbs at the port of New York, freight and duty paid, for far less money than the cost of bulbs and transportation from the northwest; and unless bulbs can be grown cheaper here than in Holland, that country will still have the advantage, until our freight conditions are changed, or the duty on imported stock increased.

The district whence the American bulbs were received is thus described by Mr. Simon: "Bellingham Bay, on the shores of which the new industry is located, is a majestic harbor in Puget Sound, with an area of about 80 square miles and an average depth of 10 fathoms, large and deep enough to accommodate the fleets of the world. It is surrounded by the richest of agricultural lands, the possibilities of which in fruit and berry culture have long since been demonstrated to be little short of marvelous. The temperature of the ocean warmed by the Japanese current and the alternating moisture and sunshine make it a country in which deciduous fruits and flower bulbs reach their greatest perfection. The mercury seldom rises above 90 degrees in the Summer, and to see it at zero in the Winter is to see an extraordinary thing. The rains produce semi-tropical abundance of vegetation."

In view of the evident adaptability to bulb growing of the region in question, also to the fact that there seems no insurmountable impediment to the development of the industry there, the time may not be far distant when the $500,000, the estimated sum spent annually for bulbs and tubers sent to us from abroad, may be kept at home, and a new and important industry created in the midst of us. What other localities can do in the way of establishing this branch of trade in America will be better known when the United States Government gives forth the results of its inquiries thereanent now making.

The Co-operative Purchase Scheme.

The advocates of co-operation in the purchase of certain trade supplies through the medium of an organization controlled in, by or through the S. A. F. O. H., have by no means ceased in their earnest propagation of their pet measure. And if by the exercise of brains and the backing of capital the results sought to be accomplished can be brought about and a glorious achievement should follow, not only would it be an infinite satisfaction to the promoters, but the example thus set by the S. A. F. O. H. would undoubtedly be emulated in rapid succession by other trade and kindred organizations.

But, is it possible?

The chairman of the Purchasing Committee, President E. M. Wood, in his encyclopædic and scholarly presentation of the case before the society at Detroit, dealt more with generalities than giving an analytical account of the workings of the proposed scheme, and his citations in favor of his plan had reference more particularly to confined areas or localities; he also presented the roseate side of the question entirely, mentioning but few of its drawbacks.

But let us look squarely in the face some of the attendant difficulties, and make ourselves acquainted with these, so far as it is possible to foresee them; for investigate, deliberate, and consider all one may, after all the still unseen obstacles are often greater than those seen and prepared for.

Should such an attempt be made through the medium of the S. A. F. O. H.? What effect would it be likely to have on that body? If successful, greater cohesion; if unsuccessful, disintegration. Truly, it is the first step that costs (and counts); a false first step would be very disastrous in this case.

Would it not be better to form a Trade Co-operative Society independent of the S. A. F.? Certain members of the latter body could do this, and if they are anxious that other members, or the society itself, should profit from accruing gains, such could easily be provided for in a constitution. The S. A. F. O. H. can receive a gift; but it can't well go into commercial business without a re-organization.

Now, granted that we have our society organized, capitalized, officered and in running order ready for business—it would be foolish to start otherwise—how shall we proceed? We have a goodly country to supply, surely enough! This gives us a few conundrums in the way of transportation charges. To deliver goods purchased by the cheapest route will require the services of an experienced man.

In his address the chairman of the Purchasing Committee states "the percentage of saving is much greater to the small purchaser than to the larger one, especially when the latter is located in or near the larger cities." And the small purchaser, with few exceptions, is, we venture to say, the one who cannot take advantage of the committee's services, seeing such services demand a ready cash equivalent; so his case need hardly be considered.

Now, as to the buyers who can afford to meet the payment requirements. A prominent article among the purchases will be glass. [The glass factory idea had better be overthrown for the present, at least while the Trusts rule the market. Twelve thousand dollars, or several times that amount even, could not accomplish much against $12,000,000.] Will co-operation avail anything in obtaining favored prices, when these prices are set for the entire country?

In the case of iron to be bought, the conditions are not much more favorable than those for glass.

As regards coal there might possibly be some saving on this material; others now buy at bottom prices.

Greenhouse supplies, such as lumber, sash, ventilators, etc., how long would it be before our friends in these lines would combine for their own protection?

With bulbs and imported stock generally, would our growers trust the selection of qualities, etc., to a committee? Small buyers might; but large buyers?

The same conditions would hold good as regards domestic plants, even though officers of the purchasing department were maintained in more than one locality.

The vastness of the country precludes the S. A. F. O. H., or a committee thereof, from acting in the capacity of broker, drummer and general provider, with any chance of success. That is more likely to come through local co-operation, and it seems the trade is more inclined to favor the latter than a national scheme. But even that local plan does not meet general approval, encroaching as it does on individual action, and being hardly compatible with the speculative spirit of the age.

The FLORISTS' EXCHANGE would not object to see practical co-operation instituted, and still further would like to see it a success; but visionary ideas and plans must bear no part. Success can only be brought about by a business organization on a business basis.

OBITUARY.

D. B. Northrup.

D. B. Northrup, florist, Oswego, N. Y., died Thursday, April 26. He was 72 years old.

Joseph Scholz.

Joseph Scholz, a florist of 129 Allison street, Cincinnati, died Friday, April 27, at the City Hospital, of bronchitis. He was 43 years of age.

S. M. Pratt.

Sylvanus Marvin Pratt, a florist and much respected citizen of Moodus, Conn., died Monday morning, April 16, of pneumonia following an attack of the grip, aged 64 years. He was born in Essex and passed most of his life in his native town. When a young man he taught school, later entered the mercantile business and for several years past was engaged as a florist.

Firms Who Are Building.

WATERVILLE, ME.—H. R. Mitchell & Son will erect a potting shed 60x20 feet; also a rose house 60x120 feet.

WESTERLY, R. I.—S. J. Reuter is adding another greenhouse to his already large establishment.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Hugo Book, who recently removed from 1052 Main street, to College street, has just completed three more greenhouses.

SHIREMANSTOWN, PA.—John F. Rupp will build two more greenhouses and a storage shed.

The head gardeners in the vicinity of Oakland, Cal., have organized the Gaertner Verein Hortensia. The present officers are: Henry Mayer, landscape and head gardener of the Dunsmuir Garden, near San Leandro, president; Adolf Nissen, vice-president; Albert Mally, treasurer; Eugene Burger, secretary, with F. Tillman, Fruitvale. The members will furnish information to the public on the subject of gardens and gardening.

The Chestnut Hill Horticultural Society will hold an exhibition November 7, 8 and 9. The schedule is now being distributed. Copies may be had of the secretary, Robert G. Carey.

Hail Items.

Business Difficulties.

PITTSBURG, PA.—Joseph Elmer McGinniss, a florist of Allegheny City, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities $5,815, and assets $115.

School of Agriculture and Horticulture.

The Committee for the Promotion of Agriculture, consisting of prominent women and men of New York and vicinity, which has been seeking a suitable location for the establishment of a school for practical training in agriculture and horticulture, has selected Briar Cliff Farm, owned by Mr. Walter W. Law, of Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y. The school is 27 miles from New York, on the Putnam division of the New York Central Road and three miles from Sing Sing.

The committee has been making a study of agricultural needs, and decided to start this school for the practical training of men and women in the methods of horticulture, floriculture, gardening, poultry keeping and allied subjects, that they may become proficient in the management of farms, estates, greenhouses and gardening. The small farm, intensive gardening, and the special market for its fine productions, will be the object sought.

Instruction will be given on 60 acres of land, and students will be taught the practical detail of orchard management, gardening under glass, poultry and bee keeping. Stock husbandry and dairying will be studied also: Students will prepare soil, plant trees, seeds, etc., prune, spray, harvest, pack and market. There will be instruction in planting and propagation of nnt trees, landscape gardening, table and house decoration, entomology, botany, chemical knowledge from the study of fertilizers, in the sciences in connection with practical work in field, garden and hothouse. The nearness of the city gives opportunity also for the study of marketing. Students will make excursions to New York to study packing and methods of selling in the great wholesale and finer retail channels of trade. The course of instruction covers two years, but students may take a special branch in less time.

The Board of Managers of the Botanical Garden will co-operate with the school manngementiu affording students the opportunities of the Garden and its collections and conservatories. Lectures will be given by florists, gardeners and horticulturists.

Ground is now under preparation, trees and plants are being set, and buildings will be erected and in readiness for the opening in September.

George T. Powell, a former director of the New York State Farmers' Institute, has been appointed director of the school, and he will have associated with him some scientific and practical instructors. —N. Y. Telegram.

New York.

The Market.

Notwithstanding the large volume of business that is doing in the retail line, the wholesale trade has been very slow this week. Flowers of all descriptions, with the exception of violets, have been coming in in grently increased quantities, and, as we heard one buyer remark, Thursday, "there is seven times too many flowers in the market."

With such conditions prevailing there can be but one side to the market, and that is, the buyers rule it.

Roses particularly are in heavy supply, and although odd dozens of special selected Beauty sometimes realize $3 per dozen, by the hundred they may be had at about half that figure. Choice blooms of Liberty are also bringing 25c. each, and Testout, of extra quality, bring 8c. each. Brunner and Jacq. move very slow, and when two days old, as many of them are before being sold, they go at ridiculously low figures. Bride and Bridesmaid are probably the worst drug in the market, and are offered as low as $5 and $6 per 1,000.

With carnations conditions are not any better; thousand lots cau be had at from $3 to $5, and it is next to impossible to get rid of them. The appearance on the streets of quantities of Southern lilac is no doubt responsible in a great measnre for the accumulation of roses and carnations. The street peddlers are handling lilac to the exclusion of other stock.

Among the Retallers.

At the Benedict wedding last Monday George Stumpp had the furnishing of the flowers and decorations, which were of very elaborate proportions. Besides vast quantities of lilies and other stock there were used in the decorations 48 cases of wild smilax.

The chancel of Grace Church was very prettily arranged with palms and flowering plants last Monday morning. The occasion was the marriage of Miss Edith Morton, daughter of the Hon. Levi P. Morton, to Mr. W. C. Eustis. The Rosary, J. H. Troy, manager, had the decorations, both at the church and at the home of the bride. The decoration at the church was confined to the chancel, two banks of palms, each commencing at the outer edge of the approach, and meeting at the east window at a height of 50 feet, made an imposing avenue that became gradually narrower as it neared the communion table. An arch of lilies rested against the wall above the table, and the latter was banked with azaleas, plants of the same also being intermingled among the lower growing palms that constituted the front rows of the avenue. The highest palms used in the work were built-up specimens, of course, and they were exceedingly well done. The decorations at the house were centered in a large alcove, where the married couple received. The ceiling and walls were eatwined with peach, apple and cherry blossoms; these were all of natural growth, forced into bloom for the occasion. In the rooms adjoining wild smilax was used wherever the fresco work would admit of it, and the mantels, of which there were three, were tastefully arranged with vines and flowering plants, rhododendrons and azaleas being the principal features. A large square basket filled with Bride roses stood near the alcove; the handle was covered with moss roses. In the dining room the bride's table was adorned with lily of the valley, and the guests' tables with pink and red roses. They were all arranged in shallow flat baskets with adiantum. The red roses used were Papa Gontier, a variety that we rarely see nowadays. The bouquets carried were made by Small & Sons; the bridal one was composed of lily of the valley, and was constructed in the English drawing-room style, reaching almost to the carpet when carried. There were four bridesmaids and two maids of honor; all carried bouquets composed wholly of that beautiful light pink rose, Captain Christy.

At a wedding ceremony in the Cathedrnl last Monday Fleischman had the decoration, which, with the exception of two bunches of lilies on the altar, consisted wholly of palms. The bridal and bridesmaids' bouquets were all of pink and white sweet peas.

Auction Sales.

The auction rooms have been well attended this week—h. p. roses and rhododendrons were special features Tuesday. Bedding stock is beginning to come in in larger quantities as the season advances.

Wm. Elliott & Sons announce that they will have no more hardy rose sales this Spring; of other stock, however, there is plenty.

Cleary & Co. had a sale of Japanese plants Thursday and Friday, in addition to the regular sales.

Brevities.

F. L. Atkins, of the firm of Bobbink & Atkins, met with a severe fall by tripping against a signal wire while crossing the railroad track at Carlstadt, N. J., some days ago.

Suzuki & Iida, Japanese bulb importers, have removed their office from 11 Broadway to 11 Barclay street.

A new retail store has been opened on Fifth avenue, near 29th street, by Beaumont & Klunder.

The greenhouses of Wm. Schweinfurth, Ridgewood, N. J., were partially destroyed by fire on Wednesday.

Alex. Guttman is rejoicing this week; it is a daughter.

Bay trees seem to be gaining much in popularity as the large numbers reaching this port would testify to. Bobbink & Atkins recently received a heavy shipment of handsome large-sized specimens.

(98) Wanted a Good Red Rose.—The best red rose for forcing, aside from Liberty or Meteor, is American Beauty.

(99) Single Violets.—The best single violet for Winter is Princess of Wales, next to this is the California. Some growers prefer La France.

(100) Diseased Rose Plant.—The roots of the rose submitted are badly affected with root galls, and although the plant might out-grow the trouble we would not call it a healthy plant by any means.

(101) Smilax.—We do not know of any rust that is peculiar to the smilax, and think it possible that the trouble referred to is the result of attacks by red spider. We would not hesitate in planting the young stock in the beds, as they will soon outgrow the trouble if ordinary care is given them.

(102) Soil for Chrysanthemums.—Will the same soil do for chrysanthemums as was used for carnations through the Winter; and what fertilizer would be best?—J. C.

—The carnation soil will do admirably for the chrysanthemum if a good dressing of well-rotted stable manure is thoroughly incorporated with it.

(103) Violets in Lean-to House.—Would a lean-to at the north of an east and west house, and with just enough heat to keep the frost out, answer for violets?

—Violets planted in such a house would hardly be satisfactory during midwinter, but would give fair results through the Spring months.

(104) Grout for Side Wall of Greenhouse.—Is a grout wall as desirable as boards and paper for an outside wall of greenhouse?

—Of the two walls mentioned one is just as desirable as the other, and if the material for making the grout is at hand, so that the cost of the same would not exceed the cost of the board wall, the grout could be used to advantage, as it would probably last the longer.

(105) Trouble With Carnation Leaves.—The carnation leaves submitted show the effects of exhaustion rather than disease,—that is, they seem to have died down naturally, because it was their time to do so. Carnations that have been thriving all Winter, with a night temperature of 50 degrees, can but be expected to show signs of deterioration when Spring arrives, to offset which all dead leaves should be taken off as they appear, and the roots stimulated by regular waterings of liquid manure, or a mulch of manure applied to the bed.

(106) Chrysanthemums.—What are the best and most easily grown chrysanthemums for pots, short and stocky plants—three white, three yellow, two pink and one dark? How late may they be rooted to make good plants in 6-inch pots?—C. K.

—The middle of this month is as late as the rooting should be deferred if plants in 6 inch pots are wanted. Three good whites would be Mutual Friend, Ivory, and The Queen; two good pinks are Mrs. Perrin and Maud Dean; three yellow, Major Bonnaffon, Colonel Appleton and Golden Wedding; dark crimson, John Shrimpton.

(107) Heating and Building Questions—Kindly inform me as to the cost of building one 100-foot house running north and south, even span, 20 feet wide, and two 100x18 feet short span to the south, running east and west; butted glass; continuous ventilation open from ridge. Also for each house 10 lines of 1¼-inch pipe and steam boiler apparatus for ventilaton, and 6x6 feet benches of 1½ lumber for three houses with painting,—finished all ready for planting.—QUERIST.

—There will be a wide variation in the cost of the houses, according to the cost of labor and material and the quality of lumber, glass, etc., used. Three thousand dollars would be an average price, but fair houses could be built in some places for $2,500, while $3,600 would not be excessive for a first-class job in others.—L. R. T.

Please tell me the best way to heat a violet house unsheltered, running north and south, with 2-inch pipe. Houses has three beds, two paths, sides board, 4 feet high; ridge 10 feet; 100 feet long, 19 feet wide. I want enough pipe to keep the temperature at 50 degrees when outside it is zero. Beds are solid.—W. C. PRAY.

—A 19-foot violet house will be easily heated by ten runs of 2-inch pipe, and nine would answer quite well. Of these three should be flow pipes, as there is difficulty in distributing them to the best advantage in a house with solid beds. I would prefer to use two 2½-inch flow pipes and seven 2-inch returns. The returns can be on the walls, three on one and four on the other; and the flows may be over the returns, or overhead upon the ridge posts.—L. R. T.

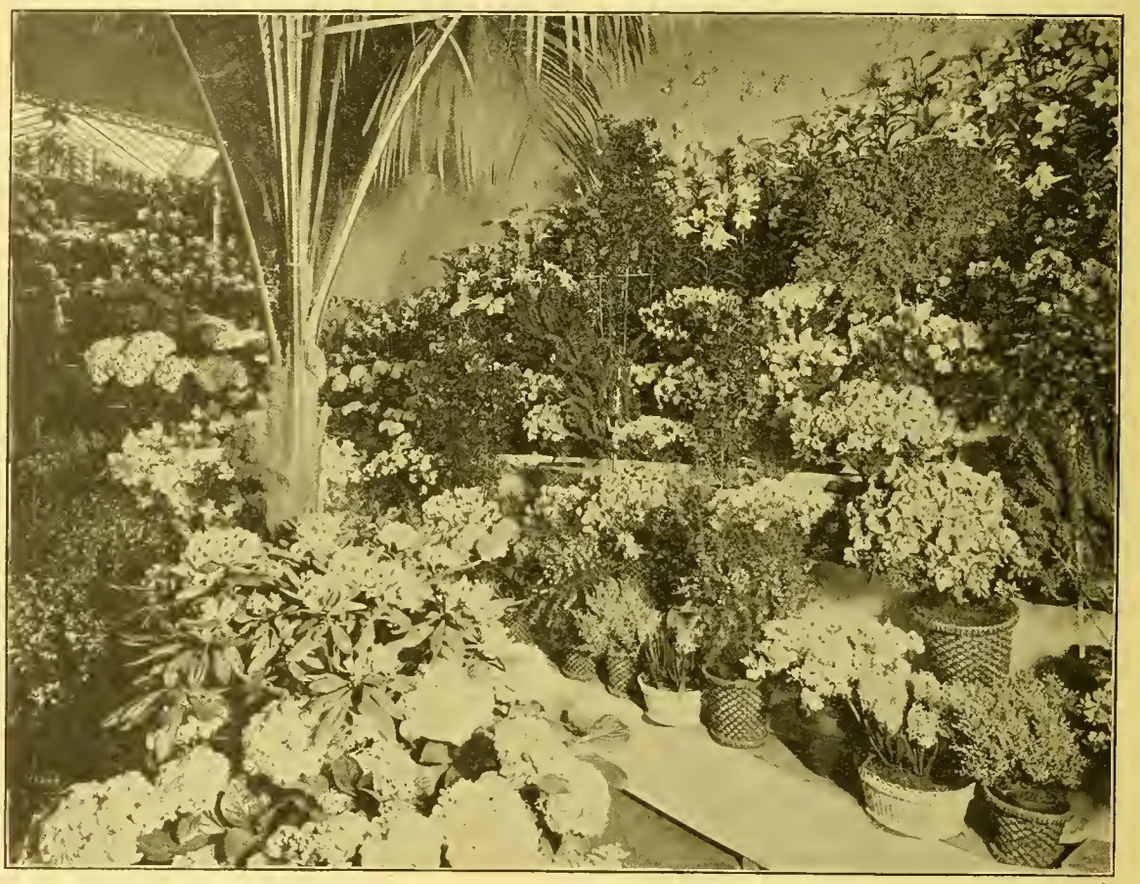
I have a greenhouse 10x30 feet even span, running north and south with 1 foot of glass in west side; 8 feet to ridge; benches 3½ feet wide. How many runs of 2-inch pipe would be required to heat it, also about how large a boiler should I use? Boiler can be 5 feet below the pipes, so it will have a good circulation. —E. A. P.

—For a violet house 10x30 feet in southern New York, about six runs of 2-inch pipe will be required. This can be arranged as two flows and four returns. The boiler should have a grate 14 or 15 inches in diameter, and should be rated for 150 to 175 square feet of radiation, although the amount of radiation in the house is considerably less than this.—L. R. T.

I am going to build three greenhouses this Spring and will be pleased to have you help me out on the heating question. The rose house for Bride and Bridesmaid will be 25x200 feet, running east and west, even span; side walls 5 feet; part glass north and south side. The carnation houses will be 25x200 feet, joined at gutter but open underneath the gutter; side walls 5 feet, part glass. There will be 15 to 18 feet between the rose and carnation houses. Please tell me the best way to heat same with hot water. I can only dig boiler pit about 6 feet deep. Would hot water heat them if boiler was at northwest corner, or would it be better to put boilers in the center on north side and put a glass passageway between the rose and carnation houses or the main flow and return pipes? Could these be on the ground? I want to have the pipes hung on the side walls; have bought a carload of 2-inch pipe. How had I better distribute same for best results? We have zero weather sometimes. How should the ventilators be hung on short span to south houses? Are short span to south houses most desirable for carnations? How would they answer for roses? Please state price of Professor Taft's book; would like to get one if it will help me.—W. X. P.

—While the pipes may run the entire length of the building the circulation will be better if the boiler is located in the center of the north side. If 2-inch pipe is to be used for flows and returns, and these are to be placed upon the side walls, 19 will be required for the rose houses; of these 10 should be on the north and 9 on the south walls. For the carnation houses 14 pipes will be desirable. One-half of the pipes may be used as flows and the other as returns, or each flow can supply two returns. For a house of this width it is often well to have part of the pipes in the center of the house, and if desired two coils of three pipes each may be thus distributed in the carnation and three coils in the rose house. Another method of piping the houses is to use one 2½-inch flow on each wall with eight 2-inch returns in the rose house and six in the carnation house, one-half being on each wall. In addition to this use nine 2-inch pipes in the rose and six in the carnation house distributed through the house. The best circulation can be obtained if one-third of these pipes are placed upon the purlin posts as overhead flows, and the others under the benches, or in the walks, as returns; but all may be under the benches if desired. The ventilators in short span to the south houses should be on the north slope. It is a good plan to hinge them at the lower edge, especially if the prevailing cold winds are from the north. Good results can be secured in short span to the south houses with either roses or carnations. Even span houses also answer well for carnations if they can be run north and south, but instead of building two houses 25 feet wide better results can be obtained with one house 50 feet wide, with the long slope to the south, where a site with a descent to the south of two or three feet in 50 can be secured.—L. R. T.

"Greenhouse Construction" and "Greenhouse Management" are sent postpaid for $1.50 each. They can be secured through the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE, or direct from the author, L. R. Taft, Agricultural College, Mich.



Easter Display of J. H. Small & Sons, New York.

Our Belgian Letter.

We have experienced one of the most unpleasant Winters in years. Frost set in quite early and severe cold lasted for about three weeks; then the weather became foggy and dark.

Trade has been very lively for this time of year. The demand for kentias is greater than ever, and they have sold at very satisfactory prices. The call for latanias came later; still, at present, all the best stock is disposed of. In azaleas even the poorest plants and sorts are all gone. Cocos Weddeliana have been and are still in good demand, as are Livistona rotundifolia. Phœnix canariensis has also been largely called for. Bay trees seem to go slower than usual, and the general demand is more for the smaller sizes. Specimens above $15 sell faster by the pair than by the dozen. Few rhododendrons have been disposed of this Spring, buyers being chary after the heavy frosts.

In tuberous begonias and gloxinias everything salable has been bought up by the special growers and merchants of this class of bulbs. Araucarias have gone well, although of those above a dollar but few are wanted in A. excelsa. It seems that A. glauca is preferred by the people who are willing to pay a good price for an araucaria. Growers of ficus have lately been having a great run on their products, and while prices are about the same as in former years there is quite a shortage of stock. Dracænas, as usual, are selling very well, at moderate prices.

It seems that there will be no overstock in Indian azaleas for next Fall; many cultivators have dropped growing these on account of low prices, and have turned their attention to such specialties as kentias, which bring better figures at present.

The Paris Exhibition opened last week, and as far as we can see Belgian horticulture will be largely represented.

We expect many prominent American florists will plan a visit to Paris this Summer, and also make a call on their respective Belgian plant growers. They will be sure of a hearty welcome.

AUGUST HAERENS.

BRIEFS FOR BUSY FLORISTS.

NEW CARNATIONS.—If new varieties are being bought, and they should arrive about this time or later, don't, to save time or labor, plant them direct into the field unless they have very good roots and have shipped without the balls shaking apart. The safest and most economical method to treat these late arrivals is to plant them into flats; put them into frames and let them grow there for several weeks. They will then give much better results than if planted in the field when first received, as at that time they had probably come direct from a warm greenhouse.

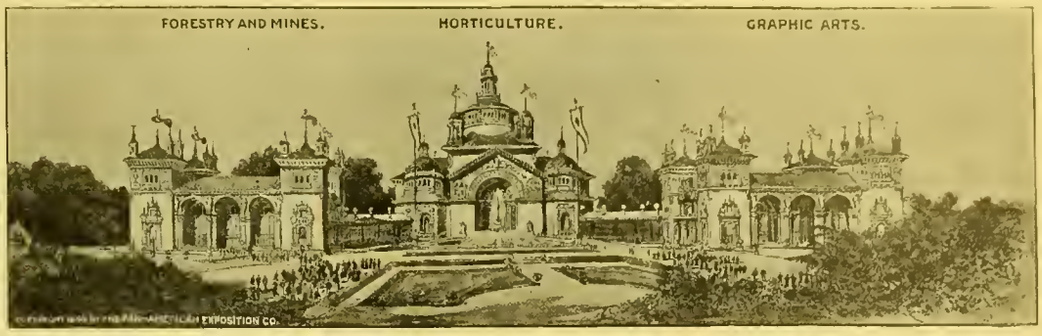
CYCLAMEN.—Young plants of these should be now put in the frames. Ashes or cinders to the depth of 3 or 4 inches should be spread for them to stand upon, as the roots need to be cool; and ashes are the best material for that service. The sash will need to be removed every day, except on rainy days, but for some little time yet it must be replaced at night. As the weather becomes warmer some shade will be necessary to the young plants during the hottest part of the day. Thin calico or cheese cloth, tacked on to strips of wood, make very handy shading materials, and are so light that they are easily put on or off as desired. Do not water the young plants with water direct from the hose pipe, for although very cold water does not seem to injure them it will be found that if a tank or barrel is kept full, and the plants are watered from that with a can, much finer and larger plants will be the result.

DAHLIAS.—As soon as all danger from frost is over these should be planted where they are to bloom. For cutting purposes the cactus section is very valuable, and a few of these should be in every collection. In preparing the bed or border for dahlias no half-way measures should be taken if success is to be assured. Manure the soil very heavily and dig it in deep, as the dahlia is a very gross feeder. After the plants are set out they must never suffer for the want of water, and an occasional watering of liquid manure will help them materially after they are well started growing.

PANSIES.—If it is desired to have a bed of these for use in the latter part of the season the seed should be sown in beds outdoors. Make the soil tolerably rich and sow in drills, transplanting the seedlings when large enough to handle. Pick off all flower buds as they appear until the first of September, then let them flower at will.

PRIMULA.—The main batch of the Chinese primulas should be sown now. Before commencing be sure to give the soil in the seed pan a good watering and let it stand a few hours. Cover the seeds very lightly and then place a piece of paper over the receptacle. This covering may there remain until the seeds begin to germinate. It should then be removed, and a pane of glass may be substituted until the leaves are formed and then dispensed with altogether.

HANGING BASKETS.—This is a good time to have a lot of these filled and hung around in the show house. By doing the work now small plants may be used; and they will be well established and growing by the time they are needed.

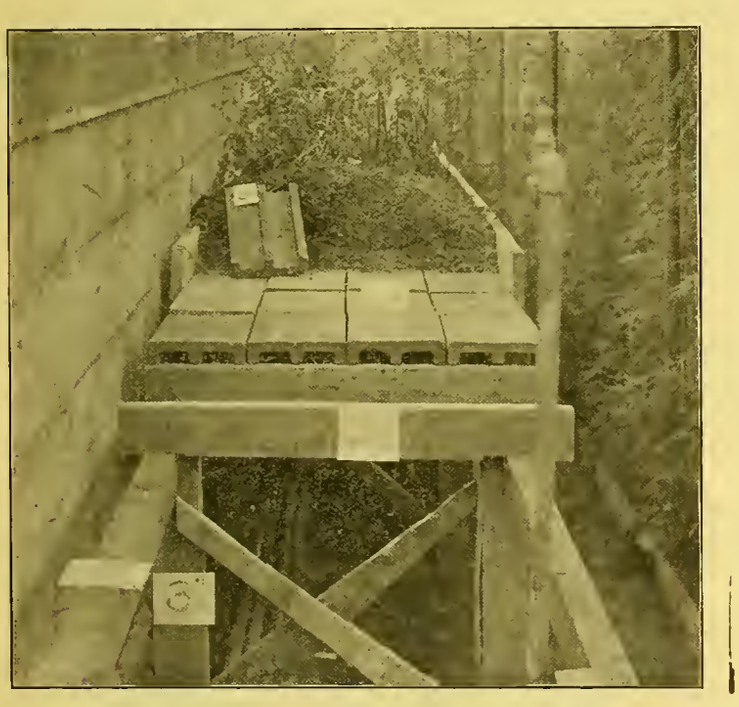


View of Pan-American Exposition Buildings.

Horticulture at the Pan-American.

Our illustration shows a picture of the building to be devoted to the Department of Horticulture, of which Mr. F. W. Taylor is chief. The building is 220 feet square. It has two arcaded wings sweeping from the north and south facades to the eastward and connecting with other buildings to form a semi-circular court. West of these arcades are the conservatories in which will be displayed the palms and other plants of tropical origin. The arcades leading from the main building will be kept gay the entire season with flowering and ornamental plants. The large building will be used for the display of fruits and various other exhibits pertaining to horticulture. It is expected that the State of New York will spend at least $10,000 in aiding the horticultural societies of the state to extend and replenish their exhibits during the season of the exposition. The Horticultural Building will be one of the most picturesque of the entire group of large exposition buildings. The loggias which form the eastern entrance will be richly adorned with frescoes. Two of these compositions will represent Ceres, the goddess of the harvest, bearing in her arms a sheaf of wheat, her chariot drawn by three lions led by Flora and Primavera.

The exhibits to be made by the leading florists of the United States will be situated south of the Horticultural Building. To these displays some six or seven acres of land will be devoted. William Scott, of Buffalo, will have charge of the floral exhibits. Several prominent horticulturists have already entered for the competition of 1901.



Practical Greenhouse Bench, with Flat Tile Bottom

A Practical Greenhouse Bench.

Round tile benches have been used by some florists for some time, but they don't seem to me to be as practical and durable as the flat tile bench here with illustrated. The soil is removed much easier from the flat than from the round tile; and the front is more durable because there is less wood in contact with the tile in the flat than in the round, and it is therefore less liable to stay wet and rot out. We first placed brick 4 feet apart on which to put the legs (No. 3), which are spiked to the stringer (No. 4), and on these stringers are placed the tile bearers (No. 2) on which the tile are set from center to center. The frame is constructed entirely of 2x4 oak, excepting the braces, which are narrow strips ⅞x2 inches. Benches constructed as above will last 10 to 12 years without repair. The bench is not original with me. I got the idea from Mr. George, of Storrs & Harrison's Greenhouses, at Painesville.

The tile used on the bench cost here, at Tiffin, $ 24 per 1,000 square feet, and the oak timbers from $10 to $20 per 1,000, according to the quality.

Tiffin, O. L. ULRICH.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y.—Of the 4,200 people who attended the opening of J. C. Hatcher's handsome store but one expressed himself as being adverse to the improvement. It was the biggest surprise to the folks and was only exceeded by the Easter display, which was declared perfect. The business done has eclipsed any preceding festive season.

ALBANY, N. Y.—John Dingwall says if Tropæolum Phœbe is grown in a starved condition it is a great bloomer, but if fed the plant makes rank growth with but few flowers. He thinks very highly of it for basket work. He has, as usual, a well-grown stock of bedding plants.

Fred. Goldring is benching several of his carnation houses intending to grow roses more extensively. As violets continue to do so well he intends planting 10,000 another season to supply the demand, which has been highly satisfactory right through the season. On the day before Easter, from five beds, each 100x4 feet, 19,500 good blooms of Marie Louise were picked. How is that for a record?

Harry Eyres startled his patrons at Easter with the dandiest turnout in the business—a spanking span of grays attached to an open wagon, with attendants in uniform. It is the best advertisement yet conceived.

F. A. Danker wants to enlarge his store to accommodate increasing business. Expansion is the talk all along the line.

AUBURN, N. Y.—Alfred Patrick is adding to his extensive plant, maybe some additional houses to accommodate the coming carnation that blooms just when one needs it most. This was the only flower scarce at Easter, which was the brightest on record.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—At time of my visit L. E. Marquisee was entering up the last big order for The Marquis, and expressed himself well pleased with the result of sales. His only regret is that owing to the very backward season the plants did not make their usual growth, which made delivery of cuttings more tardy than he could have wished. By the time the White Marquis is ready to make its bow to the public its predecessor will have firmly established itself in popular favor.

KEENE, N. H.—Ellis Bros. continue to grow carnation Empress, which was immense at Easter, and one of their heaviest crops. The catalogue plant trade is now a separate business, it being the intention to go more extensively into cut flowers.

CORFU, N. Y.—Alex. Scott has been sending some of the finest violets and carnations of the season into Kasting's. He had a big supply around Easter. This is one of the garden spots of the state, and Wm. Scott showed foresight when he located his son out here. A nursery has been established, several thousands of trees planted to be transplanted later, and add to the adornment of the Bison City.

WEST SENECA, N. Y.—Prof. J. F. Cowell reports rather slow but sure progress upon the grounds surrounding the Buffalo Botanic Gardens. No doubt by Summer he will have things presentable. It is not his fault they are not so complete as he would wish. Mr. Cowell had a lengthy and delightful visit from Prof. Britton, of the New York Botanical Garden, who was enthused with the assortment of botanical specimens gathered by our sage, who takes equally as much interest in a cactus as in those mammoth cyclamens he annually shows us. Just now a fine lot of Cattleya citrina is in bloom, and fills the air with its aroma.

SARATOGA, N. Y.—T. J. Totten is looking for the perpetual blooming carnation. Young America is grand, yet, like all others, it takes a rest, but only a brief one. A bench of Jubilee is a fine sight; this variety does well here. Fora Hill and Young America were in fine shape at Easter. W. M.

Philadelphia.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The meeting on Tuesday last was only fairly attended, most of the growers being now very busy. The chief interest of the meeting was the paper by Robert Craig, on "Experiences Gained by Easter Trade of 1900." The paper was a good one. It was read by Wm. P. Craig, in the absence of his father, and will be given in full in our next issue.

In a discussion which followed, speaking of lilies, Henry F. Michell said that he had recently had a lengthy conversation with a grower of lilies from Bermuda, and the outlook for healthy stock was now much better. This industry having got such a set back this past two or three years some extreme measures had to be resorted to, and on the appeal of the lily growers the English Government had sent specialists to study the disease, and suggest treatment for its eradication. Experts had also been there from Washington and from Canada; and following the advice of these methods had been adopted to kill the disease. Now not more than 5 per cent. of the crop shows any signs of the trouble, and a grower having diseased bulbs is compelled to destroy them. The outlook being so much brighter, Mr. Mitchell stated that he had increased his order over that of last year. The Bermuda growers are also now making investigations of the soil, climate, etc., of Puerto Rico, with the view of planting lilies there.

John Westcott spoke about S. A. F. Convention matters, and stated that President Wood intended to offer a splendid bowling trophy, realizing that to have school it is necessary to have the scholars there; and as the bowlers were all good scholars he wanted them all at the convention. Mr. Westcott wishes to entertain all members of the S. A. F. passing through this city next August, and would like to see a large meeting of the club next month, in order to talk this over, and decide how best to entertain visitors.

Bulb Display.

The display in the city squares or small parks during the past two weeks has been very good. The hyacinths, tulips and narcissus bloomed better this year than ever before. The principal display was at Independence Square and has been a center of attraction for the past three weeks. The bulbs were all supplied by Henry F. Michell, and the city officials are so well pleased with the quality that they have given him the order for next season. The order comprises 65,000 bulbs.

Joseph Heacock is now building another house for palms, 26x250 feet. This is a full span house, and is intended for large plants. There will not be any benches, the plants standing on beds of ashes. Steam pipes will be run around the sides. Many of the rose houses on this place will be overhauled shortly, all benches and pipes changed. The benches will be built away from the walls, allowing room for walks front and back. There will not be any pipes under the benches, the pipes being placed on front and back walls, with probably two lines of two pipes each along the narrow walks between benches. One house benched this way last year has given great satisfaction. At this date the roses are in much better condition than in the other houses, and the cut has been larger. The benches are cool at the bottom; the circulation of heat is much better by this method, and it is thought quite a saving in fuel is effected. Palms on this establishment are in splendid condition; sales the past month have been very good. All the stock is clean, healthy and stocky, of good habit. Arecas form the largest stock; kentias are also in big quantities, from 6-foot plants down, and the stock of these is certainly hard to beat. Latanias are also grown, but not so extensively as the other kinds. There are also some phœnix and a fine lot of cocos for Fall sales.

Wedding Decoration.

Hugh Graham had a very large decoration; in, fact, the largest in several years, the past week, at Durham, N. C., necessitating the taking down of several carloads of plants and materials. The electric appliances alone filled half a car. All cut flowers were sent from this city; the whole decoration, although far from home, was carried out with great satisfaction.

Patents Issued.

Among patents issued this week to applicants of this city the following will interest the trade: D. D. L. Farson, patent faucet; Frank C. Ives, patent color plate camera. This latter is especially interesting to all flower lovers. Plants and flowers can be photographed to exactly reproduce all colors; the photo when finished is placed in a stereoptic apparatus with color screens, and you see the plants or flowers exactly as in the natural state. Another patent was obtained by C. Jennings, greenhouse iron benches and fittings.

Cut Flower Market.

Not much can be said of the cut flower market; conditions are about the same as last week—too many flowers. It is impossible to quote prices, these being in favor of the buyer; and the price depends how badly he wants the flowers. Quantities of stock are seen on the street. Owing to the very warm days the blooms are not keeping well.

Seed Trade.

All stores are now very busy with retail orders, most of the stores working until late to keep up. Business is reported very good with all, and the present season is likely to prove far ahead of last year.

Commercial Plants

THEIR PROPAGATION AND CULTURE.

BY GEORGE W. OLIVER, PROPAGATOR TO THE U. S. BOTANIC GARDEN, WASHINGTON, D. C. AND LATE OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDEN, EDINBURGH.

A working Hand Book of Every-day Practice for the Florist or Gardener, and those who intend to grow plants and flowers, in the greenhouse or garden, as a means of obtaining a livelihood. Each and every article is written in concise, simple language, and embodies wholly and solely the experiences of the writer.

The plants dealt with comprise those which are commercially handled by Florists, Gardeners and Nurserymen, and include Florists' Flowers, Stove and Greenhouse Plants, Hardy Herbaceous Plants, Annuals, Shrubs, Hardy and Tender Vines, and a chapter on miscellaneous subjects in connection with the above.

This reliable cultural book has been gotten up for use not ornament, therefore the price has been fixed at a figure within the reach of all, while it contains more real practical information for those for whom it is intended than is to be found in much more pretentious works costing ten and twenty times as much money. Strongly bound to stand rough handling and plenty of it. Price, $1.00 by mail, postpaid.

A. T. DE LA MARE PTG. & PUB. CO., Ltd., 2 to 8 Duane St., N. Y.

N. B.—As we expect a large sale for this valuable book, we would take it as a favor to have your order now, and you can remit when notified that the book is ready.

New York.—Monday night last the scores made were as under;

J. I. Donlan	164	162	..

Newport, R. I.—The gardeners and artillery teams played a return bowling match on the alleys of the former, Thursday evening, 19th ultimo, the gardeners winning by 451 points in a score of 1,914 to 1,463, thus fully making up for their former defeat. I was in error in stating that the artillery alleys were longer than those upon which the gardeners practice, both being of the regulation length. The space behind the line, however, is very much greater, and is taken advantage of by the artillerymen in getting up speed; consequently when placed under more restricted conditions the soldiers were completely handicapped. The next match is to be played on the artillery alleys, May 10. Following are the scores:

MAC.

Denver.—I would like to mention in Denver notes, for the benefit of the bowling florists, just what kind of alleys we have here. Subjoined you will see scores made at last club roll. I think those made by Phil. Scott are a little larger than any heretofore recorded in a trade paper, hence the explanation. Our alleys are full length, that is, 60 feet to head pin, but are 6 inches narrower than regulation, and when the pins are set up it gives one plenty of confidence; and that is about all there is to the game. I have been at it a good long while and cannot see anything else to it. We are badly handicapped on balls though; have anything from egg-shaped to a diamond frame. We have one pretty fair ball, and P. S. managed to get hold of that every time when he made the 280 score.

Only two members showed up for club roll last Tuesday, but some fine bowling was done by Scott. Berry rolled high but seemed very low alongside of such scores:

				Avge.
Scott	221	234	280	246

GERMOL A Sure and Safe Insecticide.

The following Testimonials tell of its Good Qualities:

I have used "Germol" on all sorts of plants in our greenhouses, and am pleased to say that it has given me more satisfaction than any other insecticide ever used here to this place. I have used it on the most delicate ferns, small palms and orchids as well as on bedding plants, and find it good in all cases. Never yet have I seen any bad results from its use.

Yours most respectfully, D. C. THOMSON.
Head Gardener Prospect Park, Brooklyn.

Regarding the sample of "Germol" you sent me some time ago, I would say it is, as an insecticide, about the best thing so far in the market. I have tried it for black scale on kentias, applying it with a syringe, and found that it did very good and quick work.

Yours very truly, CARL A. WOERNER.

Cincinnati.

Spring in all its glory is with us. The yards that were planted with beds of tulips are beautiful; all fruit trees are in full bloom. Peaches that were thought to have been killed are all right, and other fruit is also in good condition.

Business in the cut-flower line is quiet, and we are now experiencing our first glut of carnations. Roses are still holding their own; but prices have dropped all along the line, and there is plenty of stock in the market to fill all orders.

In bedding plants geraniums have the pull and will no doubt be scarce before the end of the season; they are now selling at $1 per dozen, which is too cheap; $1.25 could be had just as easy if the growers would ask it and stick to the price. Cannas will also be good stock, and are becoming more popular every year.

A letter dated Richmond, Ind., April 25, signed by John A. Evans, states that a son arrived at the Evans home at 11 p. m. Congratulations are now in order, and ventilators will now advance in price. The best wishes of the Cincinnati craft are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Evans and the boy. E. G. GILLETT.

Grand Rapids.

The lull has come at last, and with beautiful weather, which allows of the planting of carnations in the field. The carnation crop is in full, and some high-grade flowers are cut, particularly of Flora Hill. While business is dull there is no good stock going to waste. Roses are in good crop, with quality deteriorating. Carnations run from 25c. to 50c. per dozen; roses, $1 to $1.50 per dozen; lilies, $1.50 per dozen. Bulb stock is about over. Preparations are going ahead for a large Decoration Day trade.

Ben. Pohlmann, foreman for Crabb & Hunter, has gone into partnership with F. Hills, who furnishes the means, and they will build a large range of glass at East Grand Rapids and grow wholesale cut flowers.

Pittsburg.

The bright sunny weather is bringing stock on in great quantities, and if it continues will soon have the effect of shortening crops. Sweet peas have been finer this season than for a long time—good, long stems and flowers. Lilies are still abundant. Roses and carnations are too plentiful, particularly the former.

Plant sales are fair; at present prices are about the same as last year, with poor prospects for much betterment.

The Botanical Society of western Pennsylvania had their first field meeting Saturday last in the woods around Aspinwall. Quite a number followed Prof. Shafer and spent a pleasant afternoon.

Visitors during the week were Ernest Ashley, representing H. A. Dreer, and S. Pennock, both of Philadelphia.

E. C. REINEMAN.

Tarrytown, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held at the Vanderbilt Building on Thursday, April 26. The society decided to hold a June show. Richard Griggs, Michael Greea and Albert Ely were elected to membership. ROBERT ANGUS

Reporting Secretary.

Erie, Pa.

Easter trade was very satisfactory with us. Roses and carnations were a little short in supply. Violets were plentiful and sold well, both cut and as pot plants. Azaleas, lilies, hydrangens, genistas and bulbous stock were in full supply and brought good prices.

The Market.

Business has been rather quiet the past week, although a few weddings livened it up a little for the retailers. All kinds of flowers are in abundant supply, and the demand for most of them is limited. Roses are very plentiful but meet but a light call, moving rather slowly at about the same prices as quoted last week. American Beauty average $15 to $20 for best grade, with others in proportion down to $3. Brunner are shortening up somewhat in supply, and Jacqueminot are about done for. Bride and Bridesmaid are very plentiful, and go rather slowly; a limited quantity of specials bring $10. Really first-class roses, and, again, the small sizes suitable for funeral work, do pretty well; there are plenty to go around.

Carnations continue in very good supply, and though favored with a fairly good demand for this season they are seldom cleaned up nowadays. Ordinary sorts make $1.50 to $2, the latter figure being for best grades, excepting fancy Daybreak, white, and Eldorado, which make $2.50 per 100. Bradt hold at $4 per 100. There are quantities of carnations that are sold for $1 and $1.25 per 100.

The supply of bulbous stock is shortening up; quality is getting poor and there is consequently little demand. Lilies are very abundant and are very little sought after, selling for what they will bring—from $4 to $8 per 100. Valley is very plentiful and moves slowly. Bulbous stock from out-of-doors is now arriving, of fairly good quality though as yet rather short stemmed.

The supply of violets is diminishing and good ones are very scarce. Mayflowers are plentiful; there was quite a demand for them on Tuesday (May Day). Sweet peas have become quite abundant, meeting with a very good call. They clean up daily at $1 per 100.

News Jottings.

John Forbes, of Jamaica Plains, brought in the first gladiolus of the season on Wednesday last.

The Spring display of tulips at the public gardens is about at its best now, and presents a handsome sight.

The May exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held on Saturday, May 5. Prizes are offered for pelargoniums, Indian azaleas, calceolarias, orchids and amaryllis in plants; and for tulips, hardy narcissus, and pansies in cut flowers.

The auction sales at McCarthy's have been well attended so far, and have proven very satisfactory. F. J. N.

Newport, R. I.

At the Caswell greenhouses Manager Allan has, during this week, had all hands at work planting out carnations in the field—about 20,000 altogether being handled—all from pots. Mr. Allan has been at work for some time getting out a ventilator, and has succeeded in getting up one at one-third of the cost of those now in use. The advantage claimed, besides the cost, is that a whole house, no matter how long, can be worked to perfection by one machine. A patent has been applied for and it is expected the ventilator will be put on the market ere long.

A little over a year ago quite a number of automatic ventilators were put into greenhouses here, principally rose houses and graperies, and all of them, so far as I can learn, have given great satisfaction Having been trusted to do the work day and night they have done away with the old rule of "closing up" for the night. A stronger growth and freedom from mildew has been the result. Their high price is the only bar to their more general use.

State of Trade.

The condition of the market presaged in my last notes has become only too evident. The supply of stock has increased enormously, for which there is less outlet. This is especially true of carnations, and prices have dropped even for the choicest. G. H. Crane and America are still held at $3, but all other kinds in this market will not go above $1.50 to $2, while in clearance sales they are disposed of at 5c. to 10c. per bunch; and the street men, toward night, offer them at 5c. per bunch as sent in by the grower. With roses it is a trifle better, but the best long-stemmed Beauty bring only from $2.50 to $3, and so on down to $1 to $2 per 100 for shorts. In teas the highets figure to be quoted is $6; good stock brings $3 and $4, and after the morning sales and shipping orders have been provided for $7.50 to $10 per 1,000 takes the lion's share. Lilies and callas are still plentiful, finding very dull sales. Violets are no longer a feature. Bulbous stock is slackening up in supply. Some near-by outdoor grown flowers are coming in.

We are now in the midst of Dewey Day, but it is not thought this will cut any figure in floral circles. The only thing to improve matters is for the growers to let up for a spell and not pour everything they can cut into a dull market. It is too late in the season to expect Winter prices to prevail. This much can be said, however: An enormous quantity of flowers is being sold at some price; in fact, some of the big growers seem quite content with the cash returns. It is the casual shippers and those sending in poor stock that will now suffer the worst.

Among Growers.

M. H. Mann, 3793 N. Clark street, has six houses of carnations, each house 120 feet long. This is his first year and his success has been gratifying. Planting of next year's crop is now, April 28, being done. In pinks there are Triumph and Mrs. Frances Joost; white, McGowan and Flora Hill; red, Evanston, which, with variegated Mrs. Bradt, will form the bulk of those to be housed, besides 1,500 Mrs. Lawson, the same number of The Marquis—In all about 15,000 from which to select. For Summer flowering he has 7,500 Scott, 5,000 Mrs. Fisher and 3,000 Evelina. The product finds a market at J. A. Budlong's wholesale house.

Bedding plants will from this date on be a big feature with A. H. Schneider, Oak Park, he having both a home and cemetery trade. He has a fine lot of stock, probably from 60,000 to 70,000 plants.

Jacob Russler, Fernwod, has mostly a home market, selling from a store. A good bedding plant business is done. Cyclamen, cinerarias and calceolarias sold well this Spring, also Rambler roses.

American Grown Hyacinths.

A bed of hyacinths at Lincoln Park, raised from bulbs grown and sent from Whatcom Co., Washington State, has been in flower this week. The varieties were King of the Blues, Gertrude, Norma, Robert Stelger, Marie and General Pelissier. All the bulbs produced splendid heads of flowers, the three latter kinds, two spikes and upwards, Marie having six spikes. There is no question about the quality of American-grown bulbs, if they can be supplied cheap enough, as these examples grown out-of-doors, and others grown in pots by Mr. Stromback, and exhibited during the Winter before the Florists' Club, show.

Sunday, April 29, being the first warm day of the season, it was estimated that 75,000 people were in the park during the day.

Carnation planting is now on in full swing. Bassett & Washburn had ten men planting all last week; 75,000 plants were set out, with more to follow.

Peter Reinberg has a new piece of land on which he will plant four acres, all fine stock.

Round About.

A. L. Randall returned suddenly from West Baden on account of the serious sickness of an only daughter.

Flint Kennicott has left for his country home, out at the old homestead—The Grove, in this county—for the Summer.

Soft coal has gone up in price 33 per cent., and, it is feared, to stay. This will be a serious feature to the florists, who mostly use soft coal in this city.

G. H. CRANE THE BEST SCARLET CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED.

We have the finest and best selected stock of this Carnation in the country. We have 25,000 selected cuttings now ready, and can ship promptly on receipt of order.

Price, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL MACEO THE BEST CRIMSON CARNATION.

Pure, Rich, Clear, Effective Color, the Best Keeper of all Crimsons. The Most Profuse Bloomer of all. Produces 25 per cent. More Flowers than any other Carnation we have ever grown. Sells Out Clean in Quantity. Is Liked by Everybody.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL GOMEZ Some growers who have not grown Maceo think this is the best of the two varieties.

Our experience shows Maceo to be the most profitable of the two. Gomez has a longer stem, is lighter in color and sells at 20 per cent. higher price than Maceo.

If you are in doubt as to which to plant, buy an equal quantity of each variety. That will enable you to determine which is best suited for your requirements.

15,000 Cuttings ready, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Ethel Crocker A pure red-pink shade of Mrs. Jas. Dean, but darker, healthiest habit of all; fine stock now ready. $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Morning Glory (Dorner). The Daybreak Colored Scott, the best salmon pink on the market at present; a bright, refreshing shade; very free bloomer; always in flower; ready now. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Olympia Largest variegated Carnation, only rival to Mrs. G. M. Bradt; strong plants, from soil and a few from pots, at $12.00 per 100.

Mrs. G. M. Bradt One of the largest and most sought after Carnations grown, producing blooms 3 to 4 in. in diameter; best seller of its class; strong stock, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Genevieve Lord Fine, strong plants, from soil or pots, $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Chicago, Ill., President; ALBERT MCCULLOUGH, Cincinnati, First Vice-President; F. W. BOLGIANO, Washington, Second Vice-President; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Secretary and Treasurer.

New York.—F. W. O. Schmitz, accompanied by his wife and son, will leave on Wednesday next, May 16, for a trip to Europe. He expects to be gone until August next.

St. Paul.—The season now drawing to a close has been one of the most prosperous on record. Wholesale trade has been very active in all lines, while retail catalogue trade has shown a large increase over previous years. The demand for Bromus inermis has been phenomenal, and no grass has ever attained the prominence that this has in such a short time. That it is a godsend to the barren stretches in our great Northwest, where other grasses wither and die in the hot, dry Summer, is proven beyond a doubt. Essex rape as a forage plant for sheep has also attained great popularity, and the demand has more than quadrupled in two or three years. Field corn is now in great demand, and a shortage in selected seed is imminent, though later developments may unearth enough to go round.—VERITAS.

Import and Export Statistics.

The following exports and imports of plants, shrubs, seeds, etc., are for the month of March last. The dutiable imports of plants, shrubs and vines amount to $54,655, against $58,843 in the same month of last year. The free imports of seeds amounted in March, 1900, to $180,326, against $136,843, the value of these imports of March, 1899. The dutiable imports of seed amounted to $29,404 in March, 1900, against $40,008 in March of the previous year.

The exports of seeds to other countries amounted to $352,544, against $326,567 in the same month of 1899. The countries to which the United States exported seeds were the United Kingdom, which received shipments to the value of $79,627 in March, 1900, against $97,686 in the same month of 1899. Shipments to France amounted to $3,256 in March, 1900, against $745 in the same month last year. Germany imported seeds from the United States in March to the value of $110,390, against $94,592 in March, 1899. Other European countries received shipments to the value of $10,659 in March, 1900, against $13,564 in the corresponding month of 1899. An increase is noted in the exports of seeds this march to British North America, being $136,485, against $105,595 in March of last year. Exports of seeds to the Central American States and British Honduras amounted to $887 in March, 1900, an increase on the exports of last March, which amounted to $495. Mexico's imports of seeds from the United States amounted to $3,850 in March, 1900, compared with $3,156 a year ago.

European Notes.

The hot weather reported in last week's notes has brought our plants on in good style, and were it not for the fact that one day out of three reminds us of midwinter nearly all the lost time would be made up. The cool nights (9 degrees of frost last night) check the young seedlings and the pestiferous fly; the inevitable accompaniment of the northeasterly winds, which have so long prevailed, is clearing off the young plants of cabbage, brocoli, savoy, Brussels sprouts and cauliflower as fast as they come through the ground.

It is not at present too late to resow some of these, but it involves both labor and loss of valuable stock seed.

The onion plant for the coming season's crop is looking particularly healthy just now. Leek is not so promising as at this time last year, but a short supply of this article will do us no harm.

Of other important items that interest seedsmen on your side rutabagas are the most unsatisfactory at present.

Bulbs naturally occupy much of our time and thought just now; the most interesting are the new developments in narcissi, some of which are simply superb. While the headquarters of the daffodil cult are located in England, and the certificates awarded by the Narcissus Committee of the Royal Horticultural Society are the most highly prized, it must be admitted that some of the finest varieties are of Dutch origin and reflect the highest credit on the firms of Van Waveren, De Groot and De Graaf. An English lady, Miss Wilmott, gained two certificates and two awards with some very beautiful developments in the trumpet section, of which N. Countess Grey, a beautiful bicolor with a pale yellow trumpet, was the most conspicuous. The Rev. G. Engleheart was to the fore once more with his favorite Poeticus section, and in "Virgil" presented us with the most perfect flower that has yet been seen. Truly, Mr. Editor, of the making of new varieties there appears to be no end, but while the novelties present such points of excellence as have those exhibited this week they will be cordially welcomed by EUROPEAN SEEDS.

Basal Rot of Narcissus.

A contributor to the Journal of Horticulture (Eng.), after personal observation, has come to the following conclusions regarding this trouble:

"The widespread disease of narcissus bulbs which has come to receive the name of 'basal rot' is caused by an active injurious fungus—viz., 'Penicilium'—specific in the sense that it has a special affinity for bulbous structures; that it occurs always, if not altogether, in cultivated soils infested with the fungus, and where there are present free ammoniacal or nitrogenous compounds; that all injurious agencies affecting bulbs, such as frost, late planting, half-ripened roots, cause the bulbs to fall an easier prey to the disease; that healthy culture consists in choosing a mellow soil, free from nitrogenous compounds, or in rendering the soil mellow by first growing on it a crop which will free it of nitrogen (and perhaps the best crop for this is grass); that the disease may be warded off by allowing the roots to lie only sufficiently long to cover the growing or active stage; that they require deep planting if there is fear of disease; that they require plant food in the way of phosphates at planting and potash later on; and with all these, as a further precaution they may be surrounded in the ground by some agent that is known to be free from Penicilium."

PORTLAND, ME.—Niles Nelson has the contract to plant the beds at Cape Cottage Park, as last year. This is the chief attraction for Portlanders, and Hiram Dyer, who has charge of the contract, has a splendidly grown lot of stock for the purpose. I noted Tropæolum Phebe in grand form. Six plants planted on a bed, and tied to posts, were one mass of flowers and foliage. It has been cut since before Easter and will be in fine shape for Memorial Day. It does well in a temperature of not less than 60 degrees at night. Mr. Dyer adopts the plan of planting his young roses in a bed from the sand, a good distance apart; then transplants when the old beds are ready. He cuts well around the plant and raises a good ball of earth. He says the plants go right along without any check.—W. M.

NURSERY DEPARTMENT.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN

WILSON J. PETERS, Troy, O., President; D. S. LAKE, Shenandoah, Ia., Vice-President; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Secretary; C. L. YATES, Rochester, N. Y., Treasurer.

Rocky Ford.—George Nidy, of Kalmazoo, Mich., has purchased the Loveland Nursery here.

What Cheer, Ia.—Zeigler Bros., proprietors of the Forest City Nursery, have leased 20 acres of land here for nursery purposes.

Rockwell, Ia.—W. L. Brockman, of South Dakota, will engage in the nursery business here. Mr. Brockman was formerly connected with the Forest Nursery.

At the recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Maryland Horticultural Society it was stated that prospects in all parts of the state were never better for a big crop of the peach, plum, pear, blackberry, raspberry and strawberry.

St. Paul.—L. L. May & Co. have purchased a farm of 240 acres, 14 miles from this city, and are planting 60 acres to nursery stock and small fruits. J. E. Carrothers, of Sedgwick, Kansas, has been engaged as superintendent of the nursery, and with a large force of men is busily engaged planting. A general line of nursery stock adapted to the Northwest will be grown, especial attention being given to hardy apples, ornamental trees and shrubs, and small fruits. The farm will be known as the "Mayfield Nursery," and Mr. May and family will reside there during the Summer months. —VERITAS.

Rutherford, N. J.—Bobbink & Atkins have now got 20 acres of land under cultivation, and it is being rapidly filled with herbaceous and nursery stock. Evergreens are a specialty, and many choice specimens are being reserved to do duty at the coming exhibition to be held in conjunction with convention of the S. A. F. O. H. in New York, August next. In the greenhouses young stock of roses and dahlias predominate, though there are some large batches of palms of the cocos and kentia varieties chiefly. Rhododendrons, azaleas, buxus, bays and ficus have been imported very extensively this Spring, and the condition of all these plants upon arrival was all that could be desired, giving universal satisfaction to the firm's many customers throughout the country. This firm has secured the sole agency of Bard's adjustable sprinkler. This is an innovation in the sprinkler line. It can be attached to any hose pipe, and the pressure is so regulated that the finest soils, either in seed beds or pots, can be watered quickly without washing. As a syringe it also fills the bill perfectly, its shape giving it an advantage, in pressure, over existing forms.

The florists and gardeners of New Haven, Conn., are endeavoring to re-organize the New Haven County Horticultural Society, which has been in a dormant condition since 1881. The following committee has the matter in hand: Robert Veitch, Jr., chairman; Charles Munro, secretary; John H. Slocombe, William J. Rowe, Edward J. Morse, Robert Paton, William Gardner, David Kydd, John Doughty and William Ferrier.

(108) Number of Carnations for a House.—How many carnations, either Daybreak or Flora Hill, can I plant in a house 100 feet long, two benches 5½ feet wide, plants to be taken from 3-inch pots, and have been grown inside.—A SUBSCRIBER.

—We would plant the carnations six in a row, and have the rows 15 inches apart. This would make room on the benches mentioned for 960 plants.

(109) Primulas.—A. C., Cal.—Primula sinensis should be sown now for next Winter flowering. The seed will no doubt be perfectly ripe by this time and may be gathered and sown. Primula obconica may be had in flower next Winter by sowing at once, though for Christmas blooming we prefer to sow in the beginning of April. Sow the seed in shallow pans, or flats, using a soil in which plenty of leaf mould and sand has been incorporated. Water the soil a few hours before putting in the seed, and after the sowing is made cover the seeds very lightly, then place a piece of paper over the receptacle to exclude the light until the seeds germinate. When germination commences remove the paper, and should the surface appear to be dry give water; but give it very sparingly. A rubber bulb sprinkler is the best to use when watering seedlings. When the seedlings are large enough to handle transplant into pans, using the same kind of soil that was employed in the first place, and put the pans as near the glass as possible. When large enough to need potting put them into 3-inch pots and sift a little well-rotted manure into the potting soil; repot into larger-sized pots as required and with each successive potting the quantity of manure used in the soil should be increased.

(110) Herbaceous calceolarias are best sown in July or the beginning of August. Grown on in the ordinary way until November, when they should then have reached the 5-inch pot stage. By the first week in November they should be placed on a cool bench or shelf, where the temperature is about 45 degrees, and allowed to become almost dormant, remaining in that condition until the month of January, when they should be potted into 7 or 8-inch pots and started into growth, though there must be no attempt at forcing them. A temperature of about 50 degrees will be ample. The soil for potting must be rich and very coarse, and plenty of drainage must be given them. As the sun gets powerful a slight shading should be applied to the glass, and as they begin to show flower weak liquid manure will also be a great help to them.

(111) Trouble with Calceolaria hybrida.—What is the matter with my Calceolaria hybrida. I sow in June and they do fine until about flowering time when the leaves begin to look bad. I pot them about three times, finishing in 6-inch pots, and keep them in a cool place with the glass shaded and do not overwater. I use leaf mould, loam and sand. Do I use too much drainage, or do they get pot bound? They make any amount of root. Or do I sow them too early. They are fine-looking plants by Christmas. I keep them comparatively clean from green fly. Are they kept too warm? About January I fire up a little for other things, and have only one greenhouse.—A. C.

—The seed was sown too early, and evidently they were kept growing right along instead of resting them through November and December. Then again, they were kept too warm in January, when trying to grow them along with other plants. Treat as recommended in the foregoing answer.

BRIEFS FOR BUSY FLORISTS.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS—By this time it will have been decided how much bench space is to be devoted to these for the coming season; and if the cuttings are not already in the sand they may be taken at any time. Although good flowers may be had from plants rooted much later than this date, if the cuttings are to be had it will be found much easier to root them now, and they will require less care through the hot weather if they are well established on the benches before it arrives. Do not allow the cuttings to stay in the sand after roots have formed, until the leaves become yellow. To do that gives a check to their growth from which, in many cases, it takes two weeks to recover. Pot them off as soon as rooted and keep them growing right along.

GERANIUMS—These will be growing rapidly now, and it will be necessary to go over them occasionally, spreading them out more, and picking off any leaves that have become yellow. Decoration Day is almost here, and the demand for the cheaper grades of flowering plants will undoubtedly be large. The geranium is by far the most popular of plants for this occasion, and no efforts should be spared to have them well in bloom and looking at their best for that day. Put three together in a 6 or 7-inch pot; they will out-sell any other plant. Separate colors may be used, or three of a kind can be put together. Some plants should be potted up in this manner now so as to be ready when wanted.

TUBEROUS BEGONIAS will need careful attention, as regards watering, as the leaves begin to develop. These plants must be watered only when they require it; to go over them once a day with the hose pipe watering them indiscriminately is the very worst treatment that can be given. Use a can and water them individually.

CANNAS should be put outside in a partially sheltered location so as to gradually harden them before time to plant them outright.

CALADIUMS that are intended for bedding will be better in the greenhouse for another week yet; and as they are now making fast growth water must be given them in liberal quantities—twice a day if necessary.

HALF HARDY ANNUALS of all kinds should be got outdoors at the first opportunity. The longer they stay under glass after being once established in the flats the more sickly and drawn they become.

VINCENNES, IND.—Messrs. J. A. and Adam Balmer have closed out their florist business here, and gone to the State of Washington, where they will engage in a similar industry.

PATERSON, N. J.—The Paterson Rose Co. has hired part of Joseph Towell's greenhouses here, and gone into raising roses and violets for cut flowers.

Chicago.—After the meeting on Friday night a few games were played, but the most interest was centered in a challenge game between John Degnan and Phil. Hauswirth—ten games for $1 per game. Eight of these were rolled with the subjoined result, leaving two more games to tell the story. As will be seen Johnny, so far, has 68 pins to the good. In the games Degnan beat in four, Hauswirth in three, with one a tie.

Next Monday being the meeting night of the Florists' Club bowling will take place in the afternoon.

Utica, N. Y.—On Saturday, May 5, eleven Syracuse florists came to Utica for the sole purpose of "doing up" the florist bowlers here, but, as the appended scores show, they were doomed to an inglorious defeat. They were met at the depot by a committee of florists and escorted to the greenhouses of Peter Crowe, where the prize-winning roses and Adiantum Bardii were viewed, and also a very satisfactory test of the Bard patented nozzle held. They were then escorted to Music Hall, where a dinner was served, a pleasant feature of which was the presence of the older members of the trade, Peter Crowe, William Mathews and C. F. Baker. After the dinner the bowling match was held. Syracuse did her best to win, going to the extra precaution of bringing along her Bishop and her Bard to sing her praise, their Camp-bell to give us warning, and even a Ham for our succor in ease of need, but amidst all their Smil(i)es they were not Fox(y) enough to win and got Dunn. This is the third game in the series, which now stands two to one in favor of Utica. A return match is talked of in the near future.

Market News.

The heavy receipts have let up in a measure, and a slightly better price is obtained for stock generally. There is, however, an abundant supply for all demand, and plenty left over for the street men.

Roses begin to show the effects of warmer weather, but except a few mildewed samples the flowers are yet in good selling shape. Long-stemmed Beauty are now sent in freely, and $3 is the top-notch, price per dozen, $1.50 to $2 being a more common figure. The best teas may still be quoted at $6, and from that down to $1 and less to clear.

Club Meeting.

At the regular club meeting held May 4 some renewed interest was manifested. G. L. Grant acted as secretary pro-tem. Thomas Savage, Joliet, Ill., was elected a member. A committee of five, consisting of W. N. Rudd, A. McAdam, Peter Reinberg, Walter Retzer and J. C. Vaughan, was appointed to work up an interest in the coal question, to see if something cannot be done in obtaining reduced rates on coal by co-operative purchasing.

In the discussion and from other information obtained it was evident that considerable variation in prices was the rule last year, and difficulty often experienced in obtaining regular supplies, which condition it is thought might easily be improved if the growers will only aid the committee.

John Reardon showed a 6-inch pot of chrysanthemum Petit Ami, the plant being about a foot above the pot with 10 good blossoms fully opened. Mr. Reardon had designed the plant for pot purposes for next Fall show, but it seemed bound to flower in advance.

The subject for next meeting, May 18, is "Bedding Plants;" W. L. Pallnsky will open the discussion. Walter Retzer will also prepare a paper on the "Arrangement and Planting of the Grounds of Suburban Residence Lots," of which he has made a study.

New Greenhouse Building.

Wietor Bros.' addition this year will be 16 houses, each 30x300 feet, representing an augmentation of something like four acres, or 200,000 feet of glass, to their immense plant. The houses are attached, furnished with iron supports and Garland gutter, and so arranged in the way of staging that 2 feet is gained in bench room for each house over the old style. The work is proceeding rapidly. Part of the structures will be ready by the end of the month. When finished five of the houses will be planted with American Beauty, five with Bride and Bridesmaid, and six with carnations. Speaking of carnations, the firm has 200,000 planted in the field, and expects to house no less than 125,000 the coming Fall.

Poehlmann Bros., of Morton Grove, will erect a range of three houses, each 20½x306 feet, detached, long span to the south, with two lean-tos 7½ feet wide, the same lengths, for propagating purposes. As an illustration that they are not tired of chrysanthemum growing they have 150,000 cuttings already in the beneh.

Around Town.

Walter Retzer is so far well content with the conditions of trade since he bought the Fuch's place. The retail business continues good. This firm had some of the decorations in connection with the Dewey festival, as did the Central Floral Co., Phil. Hauswirth, A. Lang, Schubert and others.

Jottings.

J. C. Vaughan gave a score of his lady clerks an outing on Sunday to Western Springs, where a bus was in waiting, and a country ride enjoyed.

J. F. Benthey was taken suddenly sick on Wednesday with appendicitis, but we learn he is getting along all right. His son Fred. attends to the business.

There is every evidence that the meeting in this city, June 5, of the American Park and Outdoor Art Association will be a notable affair.

The Market.

The cut flower market is even in a worse condition than last week; all kinds of flowers are a glut, and prices are at very low ebb. Roses being so plentiful and cheap makes it almost impossible to sell carnations and other flowers, and, to make matters still worse for the commission men in removing the surplus, the police have begun a crusade against the fakirs, ordering them off the streets and arresting them if seen a second time. This has created quite a boom with the Greeks who have showcases on the corners of principal streets, and who are now doing a rushing trade One fakir, alive to business, has been selling roses to a large restaurant, these flowers being given away to customers.

Pennock Bros. have had their window decorated with wistaria blooms this week, with some vases in the center filled with the feather hyacinth, Muscari comosum.

Among Growers.

Albert Knapper has now in bloom on his place, at Frankford, about 100 plants, in 3-inch pots, of edelweiss. Many people have gone out there this week to see this much-heard-of plant. This is probably the first lot of plants grown commercially; a few have been cultivated on private establishments in the past few years. Mr. Knapper's plants have been grown from seed obtained direct from Switzerland.

John Kuhn has met with great success with his new carnation Mrs. Bertram Lippincott. It has been flowering steadily since October. The house, 20x75 feet, has produced as many as 8,500 flowers in one month, the lowest cut in any month being over 2,000. The cut for April was 4,600, and the plants are still blooming freely, with the advantage over other pink varieties in that the flowers do not fade out pale with the now strong sun. His other new carnation, John Habermehl, is also blooming very freely and promises well. Like the former variety it is a continuous bloomer from Fall till Spring. Spring stock is now the chief object on this place, among which was noticed a fine lot of fuchsias in 5-inch pots.

Denver.

Trade the past week has been only fair; two or three good days though helped to take off the over-supply. Bridesmaid and Bride leaning a little bit that way. Beauty sold well all week. Carnations are beginning to come in very fast, but as the quality keeps good, and by dropping the price somewhat, very few go to waste. Pæonies made their first appearance May 5, the Park Foral Co. showing a few very nice grown plants in pots with a dozen flowers on each. The first consignment of cut flowers from Texas reached here this morning. They were the common old red ones and not very good, but as they were pæonies, and first of the season, sold fast.

Seen since Easter—Alatania with three good leaves, a yellow pot and tied up near the leaf on one of the stems with pink ribbon. Now, if the poor plants could only talk, especially the azalea, it would be heard to say, in recommendation to some crepe paper firm, "Before using my price was $2, but since using one box of your 4x crepe paper, and one bolt of No. 16 ribbon, my price is $5."

GENEVIEVE LORD

The Peerless New Pink Carnation.

In all of our long experience we have never had a Carnation produce as many first-class, high-grade blooms to the square foot as Genevieve Lord. It blooms early and the year round. Its color is just right; "beautiful," "lovely," "exquisite," "perfectly charming," are some of the adjectives used by some of our lady customers in describing it. With all its good productiveness, size is a leading feature, large enough to put it away up front. Its grand stem is perhaps its crowning feature. What is a flower without a stem? Genevieve Lord stands up straight twelve months in the year. When you think of all this, and a non-bursting calyx throws in for good measure, there is little left to be desired. We are pleased to announce that we can fill orders promptly after April 10th, but do not know how long we can promise this, as stock is going rapidly. To clinch matters and drive a good bargain, order at once.

Price, doz., $2.00; 100, $10.00; 1000, $75.00.

Can also furnish all of the big new ones at introducers' prices, as well as the best standard varieties.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—Robert Capstick, grower for the A. C. Hutchinson Co., had a merry twinkle in his eye when he told me that Boston offered him $10 per hundred for his Daybreak at Easter; but the majority went to Uncle Sam's gallant vets at the Navy Yard. I do not doubt it, for such fine stock was very scarce. He hit it right with lilies and gives the craft the benefit of his experience. On receipt the bulbs were potted up, placed in the house, kept three weeks with but one watering, until they had started; then kept growing in a temperature of not above 75 degrees day, and 60 degrees at night. The percentage of loss was very small.

A. G. HOOD, OF MANCHESTER, is positive lilies should be kept warm, as he experienced a loss of 50 per cent. in a batch that was placed outside and less than 10 per cent. from a lot taken from the same case, but which was placed in heat from the time the bulbs were potted up.

C. H. KAULBACH, of Haverhill, was not so fortunate, but now that the subject is being so well ventillated he hopes to be as successful as his fellow craftsmen. He was told the other day, in all seriousness, by a bulb agent that the cause of the lily disease has been traced to the planting of onions in alternate rows, the pungent odor being so strong as to overpower the delicate flower and retard its development. In Scott's Manual mention is made that the tips of the foliage are browned by the use of tobacco. No tobacco was used, yet the tips were very auburn.

BATH, ME.—J. H. Ramsey & Co. were among the few fortunates who had an abundance of carnations at Easter, when $1 per dozen was willingly paid by the best people, although such a price was unheard of a few years since. Speaking of the improvement in this direction Paul M. Olm, the skillful grower here, finds it necessary to grow two grades where ordinary stock formerly satisfied. Additional space will be devoted to the new varieties, which will have to be away above par to outshine Hector, Daybreak and McGowan as grown here. A grand lot of sweet peas, planted on the carnation benches, was in fine crop at Easter. The varieties grown were Blanche Ferry (early and ordinary), Emily Henderson, Catharine Tracy and Her Majesty. Funeral work has been exceptionally heavy. One piece recently made for a deceased sea captain was a large capstan—something never before seen, and voted a perfect design in every way.

Mr. Davison reports a satisfactory increase in the nursery branch. The demand for trees and shrubs seems to be more than usual, in keeping with the general advance.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—A. G. Hood is building an extensive range of glass, which will be under the care of W. Sutherland, formerly grower for Fred. Moses, of Bucksport. Theo. Egger, until recently with Mr. Hood, is now with F. E. Palmer, Brookline.

NASHUA, N. H.—Aug. Gaedeke & Co. are rebuilding the entire range of houses on Judge Hoitt's old place, and intend to have an up-to-date plant. G. E. Buxton is also adding some glass, remodelling the office, adding a show house, and making improvements all around, keeping in touch with prosperity which has smiled generously upon him and is reflected in the choice stock he offers to an appreciative public. A movement is on foot for the establishment of a botanical garden in Denver, Col.

Horticultural Hall, Boston, has been sold. The new owners purpose tearing down the old building and erecting on the site a modern sky-scraping office structure.

L. M. Noe, Madison, N. J., informs us that he has not rented the Slaughter greenhouses there; that Edward Brant is the lessee, and that that gentleman has, Mr. Noe believes, rented the establishment in question for a term of years. We may state that Mr. Slaughter himself was our informant regarding the reported Noe lease.

PAMPHLETS RECEIVED

INSECTS INJURIOUS TO FOREST TREES; being an extract from the Fourth Annual Report of the Commissioners of Fisheries, Game and Forests of the State of New York. In the pamphlet Dr. E. P. Felt, the State Entomologist, describes the depredations of some of the most noxious insects, and furnishes suggestions for their eradication. The work of the various pests is well demonstrated by the handsome colored plates which accompany the report.

PRIZE COMPETITION

COMMERCIAL HOME GROUNDS

Arrangement, Planting and Maintenance

The publishers of the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE, firm in the belief that the home surroundings of America's multitudes can only be made beautiful through force of example, and that these examples must be set and maintained by the florists and nurserymen themselves, and, further, that the more attractive and numerous these examples become the more prosperous will be the business of the industries this paper represents, hereby institute the following competition:

Class A—Unimproved Grounds
Prize, $10.00

Any fully paid-up subscriber to the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE, the professional landscape architect and engineer and landscape gardener excepted, may forward a plan of his grounds as they now stand, together with a full and definite statement of existing conditions and requirements. This preliminary plan to be accompanied by a second one, drawn to the same scale, showing subscriber's own ideas as to the proposed improvements in arrangement and planting which he intends to put into effect.

All plans received in Classes A and B will be submitted to Mr. Warren H. Manning, of Boston, Mass., landscape architect, who will pass upon same and offer such suggestions and criticisms as will, in his opinion, add to the value, harmony and effect it is desired to bring about in the subscriber's surroundings. The best plans will then be published in the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE for the benefit of those interested in the planning and maintenance of attractive commercial grounds. All competitors in Class A will be eligible to compete in Class C in the year 1901.

The institution of Class A is intended to arouse an interest among those who have not hitherto given much attention to their own home surroundings, and the absolutely free and eminent professional advice which the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE now tenders its subscribers on this important subject should result in very many taking advantage thereof.

Class B—Improved Grounds
Prize, $25.00

The FLORISTS' EXCHANGE offers a prize of $25 for the present best laid out and planted commercial home grounds and complete description thereof as they stand. Successful competitor must supplement the plans of his grounds by photographs to be taken in June, July or August, to prove correctness of statement. (Or the testimony of two expert witnesses will answer.)

In making the prize award for Class B, natural advantages of any one competitor's ground will not be taken into consideration as against another competitor whose grounds are not so well adapted to effect; in other words, judgment will be pronounced on the best use made of existing surroundings.

Class C—Grounds Improved in 1900
Prize, $35.00

Competition in this class will be restricted to competitors in Class A in 1900. No awards can therefore be made in Class C until the Fall of the year 1901, at which time the above substantial cash prize will be awarded that competitor who has displayed the most skill and care in the laying out and maintenance of his grounds, working on his own plans and such professional advice as may have been tendered to him. The award will be decided under the same conditions as govern the competition in Class B.

All pertinent questions on these competitions will be answered through these columns, or privately, as the case may be.

Intending competitors should make themselves fully informed as to all conditions (herewith printed) before proceeding with the work.

All plans must be drawn to a scale of one-eighth inch to the foot.

Use black ink only, as plans will be photographed directly from competitor's copy.

Competitors must work on the drawing paper and material which will be furnished, free, on application to the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE.

The FLORISTS' EXCHANGE will also furnish a printed sheet of instructions showing the characters to be used indicating a tree, a shrub, flower beds, groups, lawns, boundaries, fences, greenhouses, dwelling house, etc., etc.

Use figures (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, etc.) to indicate nature and composition of planting, the plantings indicated by said figures to be given in full in the descriptive text.

Plans drawn out of scale, or executed in an unworkmanlike manner, will not receive any consideration. By this we do not mean that we expect to receive as good plans as those which would be drawn by professionals, but we want plans good enough for publication without having to be redrawn by a professional.

Competitors in Class A, in order to get the benefit of professional advice for this Fall's planting, should send in their plans as early as possible.

The competition in both Classes A and B is herewith declared open and will close October 31. Decision in Classes A and B will be given as soon thereafter as is practicable.

While the publishers will recognize all merit shown, they will not commit themselves to a prize award in any class unless there are at least five competitors in said class.

Drawings must be mailed in a tube and fully protected against being cracked or broken in the mails. Address all communications,

Publishers FLORISTS' EXCHANGE,

A National Rose Day for England.

England has her Primrose Day observed in honor of the late Lord Beaconsfield; and other floral days celebrating remembrances of great men or their deeds. Now, however, a movement is on foot to "go up higher," and to establish the recognition of the coronation day of Queen Victoria (June 28) as the national Rose Day of England. A writer in the Journal of Horticulture makes the following interesting observations on the popularity of the rose and its appropriateness for the purpose in view:

"It is interesting, as the proposer of the movement observes, to remember 'that far back in English history the Wars of the Roses, red and white, showed how bitter racial animosity divided England; and now the wearing of roses, of all colors, would show how the old divisions and hatreds had been healed in this mode of celebrating Queen Victoria's reign.'

"How, when, and in what manner the rose became the emblematical flower of England, perhaps Mr. William Paul could tell us. His fine work, the 'Rose Garden,' contains much—very much—that is highly interesting historically, but the particular point, if treated, has been overlooked by the present writer. That it was the favorite flower of the luxurious Roman Emperors is clear enough; and we are told that about 2,000 years have rolled away since Sappho christened it the 'Queen of Flowers.' This was done in the following lines, written, of course, in Pagan times:

"Would Jove appoint some flower to reign
In matchless beauty o'er the plain,
The Rose (mankind will all agree),
The Rose the queen of flowers should be;
The pride of plants, the grace of bowers,
The blush of meads, the eye of flowers;
Its beauties charm the gods above;
Its fragrance is the breath of love.

"Associated with royalty through past ages, and now a favorite flower of the Queen, also, no doubt, broadly speaking the most popular flower of the inhabitants of the United Kingdom, it would be appropriate that it be selected as commemorative of the longest reign in the annals of history, and so abundant are roses on Coronation Day that they would be within the means of the millions to obtain.

"The roses, moreover, would not be the production of foreign lands, as would be the case largely if an abnormally large demand occurred at a season when our home growers could only produce them under glass. Under these circumstances enormous importations from southern Europe would be inevitable; but in our natural rose season the flowers required for a royal celebration would be grown in the gardens of the British Isles. This, as perhaps will be generally conceded, would be entirely appropriate; it would further have a tendency to induce thousands of persons to grow their own flowers for such a purpose, and thus widen still more the deserved popularity of the 'queenly rose.'"

Dean Hole, the famous rosarian, suggests that the variety "Her Majesty" would prove very acceptable, on account of its appropriate appellation, and also of its general good qualities.

Horticultural Society of New York.

A meeting of the temporary council was held Wednesday last at the Berkeley Lyceum, 19 West 44th street, James Wood, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., presiding, Leonard Barron acting secretary. It was decided to adopt the title "The Horticultural Society of New York," for the new organization. The dissemination of information on the culture and care of plants, fruits, flowers and vegetables is the object of the society, in addition to the holding of exhibitions, at the stated meetings whenever practicable. The number of vice-presidents was increased from three to five, and 25 members, together with the officers, shall constitute the council. A Botanical Committee was added to the list of committees already published.

The Committee on Nominations submitted a list of names for the various officers and the council. Election will take place at the next meeting to be held June 13, in same building, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Siebrecht.

Mrs. Siebrecht, mother of W. H. and H. A. Siebrecht, died Saturday last, aged 77 years. The interment was at St. Michael's Cemetery, Astoria, L. I.

Jacob Leis.

Jacob Leis died suddenly last Saturday morning early; the funeral took place at College Point on Monday. The deceased was 79 years of age, and had long been an agent for the Whilldin Pottery Co., with offices in Long Island City.

C. C. Morse.

C. C. Morse, seedsman, of Santa Clara, Cal., died at his home there on Saturday, May 5. Mr. Morse, it may be remembered, was seized with paralysis at Minneapolis, in the Fall of 1898, while on an Eastern trip. He rallied from the stroke, but never fully recovered.

Deceased was born in Maine about 55 years ago. After leaving school he went to sea and visited many parts of the globe; but that life did not suit him. He went to California, married and settled there. He leaves a widow, three daughters and one son, Lester L. Morse, who is well known in the American seed trade. Nearly 30 years ago, when Robert Wilson, the pioneer seed grower of California, got sick, and could no longer attend to business, he sold out his then small concern to Kellogg & Morse, who carried on seed growing. Mr. Kellogg retired 10 years ago, and later the firm name was changed to C. C. Morse & Co. About that time Lester L. Morse took hold with his father, proving a very able lieutenant, and on whom the conduct of the business has rested since the sickness of his father.

Charles C. Morse was naturally a very strong, healthy, robust, cheerful man, built on a large pattern, and possessed lots of push and enterprise. He loved his business and applied himself to it with all the force of his strong personality. He was a very successful and reliable seed grower, a close observer, never forgot what he learned, and never tired following up the many details of seed growing. He was honest and honorable to the letter, just, liberal and charitable in all his dealings with other men. In his home he was a kind, indulgent husband and father, where, as well as in the seed trade, he will be greatly missed, but always thought and spoken of with love and respect.

New York.

The Market.

The cut flower trade is in such a demoralized condition that the less said about it the better. There is no fixed price upon any one commodity. Store people are buying almost nothing, and the street men are confining their efforts chiefly to lilac. The purple variety is selling at 10c. a bunch wholesale.

Roses and carnations are a complete drug; it is impossible to make daily clearances, and at all times there is a heavy surplus in the hands of the dealers. American Beauty are coming in very plentifully; the demand for them has fallen considerably short of what it was last week even, and the average returns will compare very unfavorably with that period.

An occasional box of violets still comes to the city, but for all practical purposes their season may be said to be over. Narcissus are still plentiful, and with the possible exception of one special variety they realize but 50c. per 100.

Daisies, pansies, sweet peas and mignonette are so plentiful that no fixed price obtains. Lily of the valley runs from $1 to $2.50; lilies and callas from $4 to $6 per 100.

Among the retailers there is little doing, except steamer trade, and as May weddings are supposed to be unlucky (that is by the 400), business is expected to be comparatively quiet until June arrives.

Auction Rooms.

Bedding plants are now being offered in the auction marts in vast quantities—pansies, verbenas, petunias and geraniums predominating.

Cut Flower Exchange.

On Saturday last the stockholders of the Cut Flower Exchange met for the purpose of electing four directors. Jos. Sklenka was elected, and Wm. Amos, John Donaldson and Henry Ulrich, re-elected. The inspectors of election were Messrs. J. Wocher, V. Dorval and T. O'Dea. Philip Emmerich, of College Point, was appointed janitor of the building, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James Gordon.

American Institute Show.

At the rooms of the American Institute, in the Berkeley Lyceum Building, West 44th street, there was a very creditable display of flowers and plants on Wednesday last, the occasion being the Institute's Spring show. It is to be regretted that more people did not take the opportualty of visiting the show, seeing there was no charge for admission. Siebrecht & Son occupied space on one side, the entire length of the hall, and among their collection were specimens of anthuriums, Adiantum Farleyense, a group of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, Clerodendron Balfoari, allamandas, Crimson Rambler roses, lilies, Azalea mollis, a pair of fine bay trees, vases of roses, including one of Goldea Gate, and a nice collection of orchids, among them cattleyas, dendrobiums and oncidiums.

Lager & Hurrell, of Summit, N. J., showed an assortmeat of orchids, among which were many fine specimens in full flower, notably Cattleya Mendelii, C. intermedia and C. granulosa, Oncidium Kramerianum, Lælia cinnabariua, Miltonia Roezlii and M. Roezlii album, Dendrobium thyrsiflorum and Epidendrum rhizophorum.

Julius Roehrs, Carltoa Hill, N. J., had a splendid collection of orchids and floweriag plants, the latter being 25 perfectly grown herbaceous calceolarias in as maay distiact colorings. The orchid collection contained many choice forms of cattleyas, such as C. Warneriі, C. Mossiæ and C. Harrisoaiæ, Dendrobium Pierardi, Cypripedium Lawrenceanum, beautiful pieces of Odontoglossum citrosmum, Deadrobium Phalænopsis and miltonias.

J. H. Traendly, Rowayton, Conn., had a vase each of Bride, Bridesmaid and Morgan roses; J. G. Hayden and C. H. Allen, Floral Park, L. I., each staged exhibits of carnations. C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens, Queens, L. I., exhibited the carnation Governor Roosevelt; John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, L. I., showed aa extensive collection of flowering shrubs. There was also a collectioa of hardy flowers named, from the New York Botanical Garden. A. K. Petit, gardener to the Deaf aad Dumb Institute, New York City, staged some well-grown pelargoaiums and calceolarias.

A vase of the Queen of Edgely rose was shown by the Floral Exchange Co., Philadelphia.

James Wood, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., gave a short talk on the home gardea and confined his remarks to vegetables and fruits. The speaker advocated wide planting, successive crops, rotation of crops and heavy feeding.

Brevities.

Owing to increasing business Dunne & Co., horticultural supply dealers, 50 West 30th street, have had to enlarge their quarters, by annexing the store at No. 54, two doors away.

James Purdy, commission dealer, has associated his brother with him in business under the firm name of James Purdy & Bro.

The New York Florists' Club will meet Monday evening in Elks Hall, corner 27th street and Broadway, at 8 p. m. The Ways and Means Committee will meet one hour previous to the regular meeting.

A new committee has been appointed by President O'Mara, to be known as the Coavention Hall Decoration Committee, with W. I. Brower as chairman.

Secretary Manda, of the Exhibition Commitee, is having numerous reqaests for copies of the schedule of the horticultural exhibition to be held in conjunction with the coavention next August.

S. Jacobs & Sons, manufacturers of greenhouse building material, have, on account of increasing business, removed their office from 406 West 13th street, New York, to the same location as their new factory—Flushing, avenue near Metropolitan avenue, Brooklyn.

Eugene Dailledouze has been confined to his room with sickness for a week, but is again recovering.

In the vicinity of Flatbash there was a severe frost Thursday morning, doing much damage to early crops.

Trade News.

Business during the past week has beea fair. Stock has been plentiful and has sold at low prices, as a rule, but large quantities have been disposed of. The ruling price of roses has been 3c., but many were sold at job-lot figures. Carnations have also been very much la evidence, and have gone off at prices ranging from 50c. to $1.50 per 100. Sweet peas are now in the market, selling at 50c. to $1 per 100. Callas and Harrisii move very slowly, there being very little fuaeral work around.

In the market plants are moviag fairly well, geraniums having the call. For the past few days we have been passing through a cold spell that will have a tendency to hold back vegetatioa considerably. In many sections frost has been reported, but I do aot think fruit has beea damaged. We are also having a very dry spell aad caruations ia the field are sufferiag badly.

Jottings.

B. P. Critchell is making a stiff fight for superiatendeat of parks versus R. H. Warder; as both men are hustling it looks as though it would be a close finish.

Already we begia to hear a buzzing among the florists regarding our annual outing. It looks now as though the National Soldiers' Home at Dayton, O., would be the place chosea. This is not only a beautiful place, with its magnificent beddiag and landscape gardening, which is doae by Mr. Beck, whose reputatioa is second to noae as a landscape gardener, but it is also aa historical place, aad a trip here will be very beneficial to the children as well as the adults. The most important questioa now is what arrangemeats caa he made with the railroads?

E. G. Hill sailed for Europe last Wednesday. The florists of the United States may look for all the novelties of the Old World upon his return.

Great preparatioas are now being made by the citizens of Ciacinnati, looking to holding one of the old-time expositions in Music Hall this Fall. The street pageant will be very beautiful and one of the featares of the show. Prizes will be offered for the best decorated carriage, and aone will be allowed in the parade unless profusely decorated with flowers.

A communication was received a short time since from the Sporting Committee of the New York Florists' Club in regard to eatries for the bowling coatest, but as we have no regularly orgaaized club here we shall have to decliae, by thaakiag the Sporting Committee for its kiad remembraace.

The florists' business for the months of March and April was the best we have experieaced in many years.

E. G. GILLETT.

Albert Knapper, Frankford, Pa., advises us that he has on exhibition 100 plants of edelweiss, Leontopodium alpinum, which he believes to be the only stock of this interesting plant, in flower, in Americа.

The Improvement of Carnations in America.

Our carnation, Dianthus Caryophyllus, erroneously called "pink" by many people, is a native of southern Europe. In its original state it is a half-hardy herbaceous perennial, growing about 2 feet in height. The original flower was flesh-colored and contained five broad petals.

Its natural period of blooming in the open air is from June to August. It is said to exist in the wild state in England, where it was introduced supposedly about the time of the Roman invasion. As long ago as 300 years B. C., the carnation was described by Theophrastus, who gave it the name Dianthus, from the Greek Dios, Divine and Anthus, flower. The name Caryophyllus was undoubtedly taken from the clove tree Caryophyllus aromaticus, and was applied to the carnation because of the clove-like fragrance of its blooms. The name carnation, derived from the Latin carnis, flesh, refers to the flesh-colored gillyflower. As early as the beginning of the sixteenth century the development of the carnation began to attract the notice of historians, and the European gardeners contributed so many varieties that Girard, in 1587, wrote that to "describe each new variety of carnation were to roll Sisyphus' stone or number the sands."

The carnation has been divided into several distinct classifications. The French arranged all varieties into three classes, the Grenadines, Flamans and the Fancies. The English divided them into four classes: Selfs, those comprising only one color in the petals; Flakes, those having a pure ground of white or yellow and flaked or striped with one color; Bizarres, those having a pure ground color but marked with two or three different colors, and the Picotees, the latter class having a pure white or yellow ground, each petal being bordered with a band of yellow at the margin. The English still maintain this classification, and in the twenty-second annual report of the National Carnation and Picotee Society, southern section of England, we find a total of 42 classes described in their premium list, covering the above four classifications.

In the early part of the 19th century the English gardeners paid particular attention to growing carnations and produced fully as large flowers as any that we have upon the table here to-day. They practiced what is known among English gardeners as dressing, removing all imperfect and superfluous petals with a forceps and arranging the remaining petals in a perfectly formal manner. Frequently the calyx was cut down between the points to prevent what is known as bursting; that is, the growing out of the petals at one side of the calyx. All of these artificial details seem to have proved of doubtful benefit to the carnation, and eventually to have wrought its downfall, as we find that from about the middle of the nineteenth century little is heard of the carnation among English gardeners, until within a comparatively recent period.

The type of the carnation, however, flowers of the original type. The carnation has been in cultivation for more than 2,000 years, and in early Greek history is mentioned under the name of that was developed and grown by the English gardeners is not the same type that we grow at the present time; but is distinctly a race of Summer-flowering carnations. The usual plan of growing them is to keep the plants in cool houses or cold frames during the Winter and to bring them into blooming quarters in the early Spring. They were usually had and he succeeded by skillful crossing in obtaining fine varieties with stiff stems. In 1860 the number of these varieties was largely increased, and this class received the name of tree carnations; but in perfection during the months of July and August, each plant producing a profusion of blossoms during this short season. While the English seem to have lost much of their interest in the carnation about 1850, that interest appears to have been steadily reviving during the past few years.

Referring again to the annual report of the National Carnation and Picotee Society, we find that there are a total of 319 premiums offered in the 42 classes, and that this society is supported by a list of 380 subscribers, who have donated sums ranging from five shillings to fifty pounds each, toward maintaining its premium list, these donations amounting to £317 sterling, or about $1,500. We also find that this report contains as patronesses the names of Lady Ardilaun, Baroness Burdett Coutts, the Duchess of Marlborough; and as patrons, Lord Balfour, Lord Henry Grosvenor, Lord Rothschild, and Baron Schroeder and many other prominent people. Among its vice-presidents is found Sir John T. D. Llwellyn, member of Parliament. The mention of these names will give some idea of the present interest shown by English people in carnation culture.

In America we have also the American Carnation Society, a national body devoted to the improvement of the divine flower. This society is composed of a membership of upward of 300, the majority of whom are either carnation enthusiasts or engaged in the cultivation of the carnation, either commercially or as amateurs. The work of this society has been of incalculable benefit, and to its efforts may be largely attributed the advancement which has been made in the American carnation. This society holds its annual meeting in February of each year at different points throughout the United States, upon which occasions are exhibited magnificent displays of the finest carnations that can be grown. The membership of this society is open to any and all persons who are interested in or have any love for the carnation. None are barred—amateurs and professionals are equally welcome.

The carnation commonly grown in America was derived from the French strain, known as the remontant, monthly, or perpetual flowering carnation. This distinct race originated about 1840, and is said to have been produced by M. Dalmais, a gardener of Lyons, France, the original variety called Atim, having been sent out about the year 1844. This improvement was followed up in 1846 by M. Schmitt, of Lyons, who produced several fine varieties that remained in cultivation a number of years.

M. Alphonse Alegatiere was the next horticulturist to aid in the material development of this new race of carnations, in America they were generally termed monthly carnations. It is from the productions of Alegatiere that our American race of carnations was undoubtedly obtained.

As early as 1866 a number of varieties were imported into this country by Messrs. Dailledouze, Zeller and Gard, horticulturists, who were then located in Flatbush, L. I., these gentlemen having imported Edwardsii, President Degraw, La Purite and a variegated La Purite. These varieties were grown during a period of 10 years as pot plants for Summer and Winter blooming. It may be of interest to state that at the present time Mr. Charles Zeller, the survivor of the above firm, still lives in Flatbush, a hale and hearty gentleman, upward of 80 years of age; and it has been my pleasure to hear Mr. Zeller frequently declare that he was more than proud to have been one of the first who brought the carnation to this country. Mr. Zeller's partner, Mr. John Dailledouze, has long since passed away; but has left worthy sons, who have succeeded to and preserved their father's love for the carnation.

The work of improving the American carnation has been taken up and carried on successfully by such men as the late Chas. T. Starr and W. R. Shelmire, of Avondale, Pa.; Wm. Swayne, of Kennett Square, Pa.; Jos. Tailby, of Wellesley, and Sewall Fisher, of Framingham, Mass.; Fred. Dorner, of Lafayette, Ind; R. Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati, O.; Peter Fisher, of Ellis, Mass.; the Dailledouze Bros., of Flatbush, L. I., and many others whose names are not now at my command.

The foregoing historical treatment of the carnation I have gathered largely from the Cyclopædia of American Horticulture recently published by L. H. Bailey, of Cornell University.

To-day it is my purpose to give you an illustration of the development of the carnation from the original five-petaled bloom to the 4-inch flower of the present date. We find from the ancient descriptions that the wild carnation was a five-petaled flower about one inch in diameter, and that it was commonly a flesh or lavender color. Fortunately among hybrid seedlings of to-day frequent reversions furnish us with flowers that are almost identical with the original type as it existed 2,000 years ago, save perhaps in the matter of color.

In No. 1 we have the original five-petaled flower but the color is of a deep crimson. In No. 2 we have the first step toward the improvement of the flower, this being the addition of a single petal, producing a six-petaled bloom. The next step is shown in No. 3, where three or four small short petals have been added to the center of the bloom, producing a semi-double flower. In the next step, No. 4, still more petals have been added, and we now have a fairly double flower. The fourth step was made by adding still more petals, making a full double flower, as shown in No. 5; but you will notice that in all of these the relative size of the blooms remain, the same, namely, about one inch in diameter.

After the carnation hybridizer had succeeded in producing the double bloom shown in No. 5, his next aim was to increase the size of the bloom, improve the strength, as well as to elongate the stem, and to improve and diversify the shades of color. This has all been so faithfully done by our American hybridizers that you now have before you these magnificent blooms, measuring from 3 to 4 inches in diameter, with perfect calyxes and supported upon stiff stems 2 feet or more in length, some of them being equal in form to those produced by the artificial manipulation of the English dresser; embracing almost every tint of color known in flowers, save that of blue, and the approach toward this latter color is shown in varying shades of purple; several California varieties have been introduced in a distinct shade of mauve.

The study of this plate is decidedly interesting as it shows the comparative difference between the carnation as we know it to-day and the original flower that aroused the sentiment and admiration of the ancient Greeks and Romans. This comparison is accentuated when we throw upon the screen Governor Roosevelt, a seedling 4 inches in diameter, as the photographs, from which these slides were made, were taken of the same relative size. We will also find in this bunch of seedlings before us a number of these single-petaled blooms.

While the growing of seedling carnations is an intensely interesting work, and one well worthy of the careful attention requisite to obtain material results, it is not only tedious but expensive; and the seedling grower who produces a distinct advance upon the existing type of carnation is well worthy of the plaudits of his fellow carnation men, and richly deserves the praise of all those who are interested in or imbued with the love of flowers.

In Figs. 1 and 4 we have a snow-white seedling, which for beauty of form and purity of color was unsurpassed; but unfortunately it was not sufficiently free in blooming to warrant its commercial introduction. In the front view of the flower the petals are not crowded, but there are sufficient of them to give the effect of a well-formed, shapely bloom, and in the side view of the flower you will note that the guard petals are broad and stand out flat from the calyx without recurving, while the center of the flower is well built up and the calyx and stem are proportionately strong.

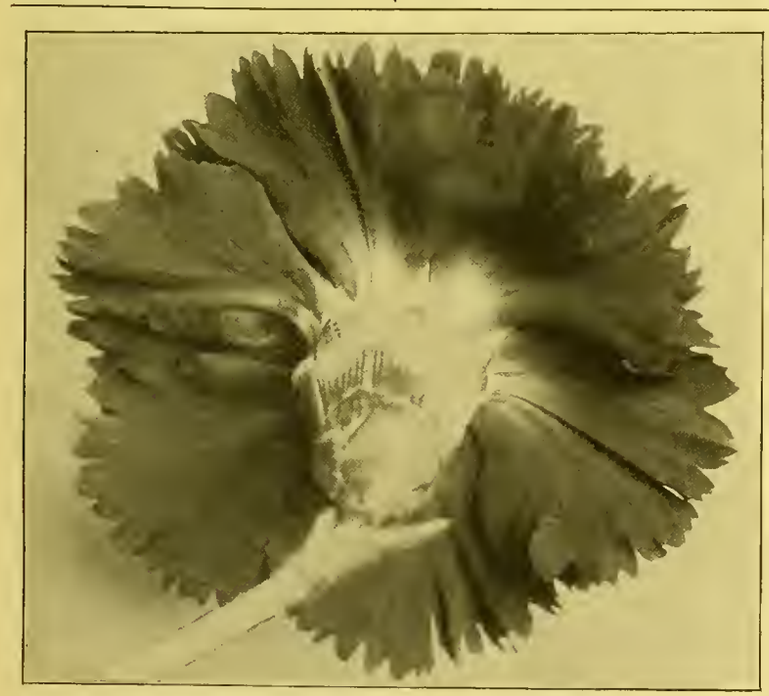

Fig. 3. Flower of Carnation Governor Roosevelt, showing Calyx

In Figs. 2 and 3 we have Governor Roosevelt, a seedling of 1897, which is particularly distinguished by its symmetrical form, large size, splendid calyx and excellent stem. This variety is probably the most advanced step in the development of the carnation yet achieved. The flowers reach 3½, even 4 inches in diameter, with stems from 2 to 3 feet in length.

Fig. 5 presents quite a new departure in carnation seedlings. This is what we may term an anemone-flowered carnation. You will notice that this flower is composed of a single row of broad guard petals, that stand out well from the calyx. Around this is a thick bunchy wreath of fine feathery petals, the same as is seen in the anemone-flowered chrysanthemum. In the center of this bloom are six miniature flowers, the largest of the secondary flowers being surrounded by the five smaller. This flower also has four pistils instead of two, and probably if it had been left to develop some of the secondary flowers might have produced additional pistils. The flower was nearly 4 inches in diameter and is the most remarkable freak that I have seen on carnation seedlings; but unfortunately we cannot proceed further in hybridizing with this variety as it produces neither seeds nor pollen.

I am asked sometimes why carnations purchased from the stores frequently keep but a few days, and I am ofttimes requested instructions as to how to care for carnation blooms. In my opinion the reason for carnations not keeping after they have passed through the commission houses and stores arises from the variety of improper treatment which they receive. I have many times seen dealers take carnations from the box as they arrive and plunge the stems immediately into ice cold water and set the flowers into a cold ice box. I think that this alternate chilling and heating of flowers, such as plunging the stems in ice water and chilling the flowers, and then placing them in highly heated dry rooms, is the reason for the premature withering away of the carnation flowers.

You will understand that a flower immediately after being severed from the plant is in a delicate condition. We all know that if we subject our plants in the greenhouses to these sudden changes in temperature, such as chilling them and again overheating them, the plants eventually fade away and die. This is especially the case with a member of the plant that has been severed, such as the cut flowers.

The treatment that I would recommend, in order to keep carnations as long as possible, is to plunge the stems in water from which the chill has been taken so that it feels just slightly warm to the hand. Then place the vase of flowers in a room not colder than 45 to 50 degrees F., and allow the flowers and water to cool down with the room. Treated in this way we keep carnations from two to three weeks, and in some instances have kept some varieties four and five weeks. If the blooms are kept in a room ranging at from 40 to 50 degrees during the night time they may be brought into the living room, where the temperature is quite high during the day time, and returned to the cool room each night without serious injury. Treated this way carnation blooms should last from 7 to 12 days, and even longer.

I have found an unoccupied bed room on the north side of a house, in which there is no direct heat, or at least very little heat, the temperature ranging from 45 to 55 degrees, an excellent place in which to keep carnation blooms. It is in this kind of a room that we are able to keep the carnations from two to three weeks, and even longer, as I have before said.

After listening to this technical description of the advanced improvement in carnation culture, a few statistics concerning the magnitude of the business, the value of the product sold, the capital invested, and the persons employed may not come amiss. It is impossible at the present time to make correct statements regarding the amount of capital employed, as we have as yet no accurate statistics. From a rough computation I am inclined to think that there is perhaps $2,000,000 invested in carnation growing in the United States to-day, and that there are probably employed in the production of carnation flowers something like 5,000, possibly more people, these employees receiving wages ranging from $35 to $100 per month, the average wages probably being $45 per month.

It is still more difficult to arrive at the value of the product produced, but basing our estimate upon the retail prices the probable value of blooms and plants sold should be from three to four times the capital invested. There are about two and one-half millions of young carnation plants and rooted cuttings sold each year; and florists produce an equal amount, which they themselves use for growing and which are not sold, so that the entire production of rooted cuttings and young carnation plants will approximate 5,000,000 per annum. Of these plants at least four-fifths are grown under glass during the Winter time for cut flower purposes, some 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 plants per annum being used for this purpose. Assuming that they produce an annual average of 20 flowers to the plant, would give 60,000,000 of blooms produced upon the American continent each year.

What becomes of this enormous number of flowers is somewhat of a mystery. They are put to innumerable uses. The carnation is a flower that awakens the love of almost every person, and as the average carnation blooms are sold at much more reasonable prices than many other flowers they come within reach of a larger class of people than do roses and orchids, consequently the consumption is larger. There is no use to which flowers may be put for which the carnation is not fitted. It lends itself to almost every scheme of decoration. Its delicious, clean, pungent, aromatic fragrance admits it to almost every sick room; it is unsurpassed for dinner or center table decorations; it is universally used in the making up of set pieces; it is also one of the best flowers for boutonnières that the florist has at his command, and finally, its wide range of pleasing colors, its lasting qualities and fresh, rich, clove fragrance combine to make it one of the most popular, as well as one of the most sought for and profitable, of florists' flowers.

A Parasite Upon Carnation Rust.

The growers of carnations in America have been troubled since 1891 with a disease known as rust, Uromyces caryophyllinus (S.) Schroet. No marked success has followed the numerous attempts to check its development. Recently a natural check was noticed infesting the pustules of rust; this was the fungus, Darluca filum (Biv.) Cast, which is described and illustrated by Mr. Frederick H. Bloodgett in Bulletin No. 175 of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, N. Y., as follows:

"This fungus is related to the Septorias and Phomas familiar to florists through the diseases they produce. In some way this fungus has become adapted to living upon the tissues of other fungi instead of deriving its nourishment solely from the host plant.

"The presence of Darluca is best determined with the microscope. But in cases where the rust is badly infested, the dwarfed and evidently crippled development of the rust pustules indicates that something is wrong. At times there are dead areas, in which are scattered a number of very fine black specks; these are the pycnidia of the Darluca. In other cases the infested area is nearly black, and the pycnidia are abundant. A third type of infestation is visible only with the aid of the microscope; in this the pycnidia are scattered among the spores in the infested pustules, which otherwise appear normal. In any case the presence of the Darluca, as of the rust, is shown externally only when it reaches maturity and produces spores.

"The spores of Darluca are two-celled and colorless. They are developed within pycnidia or flask-shaped fruit bodies, which may be nearly spherical or much elongated. When a ripe pycnidium is moistened the spores are expelled in a thick rope, which holds together by the gellatinous covering of the cell walls of the spores.

"The pycnidia are formed from a cluster of interwoven vertical branches of hyphæ. As the mass thus begun develops a cavity is formed at the center, which enlarges until only a thin membrane is left as the pycnidial wall. From the interior of this membrane short branches have been produced at the ends of which spores are formed. When ripe the spores drop from their stalks, and others are formed in their places.

"The spores germinate readily in water and produce germ tubes from either one or both cells, from any point of the cell wall. The hyphæ, or germ tubes, probably gain access to the interior of the rusted carnation leaf through a stomate. Once within and adjacent to the rust hyphæ, the parasitism begins and the two plants become closely interwoven. The growth of Darluca is most abundant close to the pustules of the rust. The leaf tissue beneath the infested spot seems filled with the hyphæ of the two fungi. Often a dark layer is developed at the original surface of the leaf, above which rise the spores and the pycnidia of the two fungi. The dark color may not be confined to a mere layer or band, but may extend to the whole of the dense mass of hyphæ, almost totally obscuring the structure of the carnation leaf.

"The pycnidia are imbedded for two-thirds of their height among the spores of the rust, showing only the dark upper third when seen from above. The surface is smooth and rather shiny, and is marked with a fine irregular network of cells. At maturity an opening is formed at the apex through which the spores exude when wet.

"The same fungus infests the rust of the asparagus; and it may be that, either by growing garden asparagus in the houses or by spraying the carnations with water in which Darluca infested asparagus has been broken, a sufficient abundance of Darluca may be obtained to check the ravages of the rust.

"At the present writing it is not known to what extent rust may be checked by the Darluca. It cannot be expected to eradicate rust from a greenhouse, but its influence is good and it is believed to be worth the florist's while to encourage its growth."

Your committee has asked me to say something about "Experiences Gained by the Easter Trade of 1900." I have made some hasty and random notes, which I will read to you, being fully conscious of how incomplete and unsatisfactory they are. But I am not without hope that they may prove useful in starting a discussion in which the members present will express themselves freely on the subject of plants and cut flowers at Easter, which has become the most important flower festival of the year in all parts of the United States and Canada.

Let us take a glance backward for twenty or thirty years and recall the growth of the demand for flowers and plants at Easter. As long back as I can remember (and I have been actively engaged in the florist business for over thirty years) there has been a demand for all the cut flowers and blooming plants to be had at that time. But three decades ago comparatively few were grown, and those mostly of an inexpensive kind, such as Chinese primulas, cinerarias, stock jellies, particularly white ones, Deutzia gracilis, a few azaleas and roses in pots, such as Hermosa and Agrippina, and a very limited number of carnations in pots. In these latter days the storemen do not care to handle cheap plants, such as, for instance, those that retail at 25 and 50 cents, claiming, very justly, that it does not pay them to deliver such cheap plants in the great rush. Therefore the limited number of stock jellies, small geraniums, etc., now grown, are disposed of mostly on the sidewalks, where the customers pay spot cash for them and carry them off, thereby entailing no expense for delivery, while the dealers are not under the incubus of lofty rent, elaborate and costly delivery teams, and high-priced salesmen.

Now, great preparations are made by those florists who make a specialty of catering to Easter trade, and the finest specimens of the florist's art, both in plants and cut flowers, are to be seen at that season. The plant trade at Christmas is growing apace, too; but at that time of the year it is impossible to have such a variety as is to be had in the Spring time. I think Easter will continue to be the most important part of the year, for the plantsmen, at any rate.

What a marvellous advance there has been in the florist business! It is observable at all seasons of the year, but has its emphatic demonstration at the time when the stores and greenhouses are so brilliant and attractive in their Easter array. I wish to be considered a young man yet, but I can recall the time when there were no florist stores in Philadelphia; when the leading cut flower business was done by Andrew Dryburg, in his greenhouses in 19th and Race Streets, and Peter MacKenzie at 18th and Spruce Streets, both locations being then in the suburbs of Philadelphia; and the next largest business was done by James Ritchie, in a cellar at the corner of 8th and Sansom streets.

Fig. 4. Mr. Ward's Ideal White Seedling Carnation.

About thirty years ago the firm of Pennock Bros. startled the community by opening a small one-story shop on 12th street below Chestnut, which was regarded by Mr. Ritchie and others as a doubtful experiment. But who could conduct a first-class florist business in a cellar now? How interesting it would be to Robert Buist, David Fergusoa, James Ritchie, Peter MacKenzie, or any of the old-time leaders, if they could come back and see the proportions to which the florist business has attained.

To return to our subject proper, let us "consider the lily, how it grows," and incidentally how many from Bermuda do not grow by reason of that happy, cheerful and indefatigable little animal, the bulb mite, which is eating out the life of the lily. I speak of the lily first, because it always has been, and is likely always to be, the most important Easter plant. A floral Easter without lilies is hardly conceivable. Many years ago the Calla Æthiopica was the lily, and later on a few L. longiflorum were forced into bloom, under great difficulties at that time, by only a few of the most enterprising florists. The houses at that time were not so well heated as we now have them, and few of the growers were willing to use the extra coal necessary to get the old-fashioned L. longiflorum in bloom at that, then considered, early date. By the way, what has become of the original L. longiflorum, with its substantial flowers, which stood out from the stem at an angle of 45 degrees, and which was entirely superior to the so-called longiflorum which we now get from Bermuda and Japan? I have not seen the true L. longiflorum for eight or ten years—nor the true Harrisii, either, for that matter. Those of the latter we get now are far departed from the original of the type introduced to commerce by the president of the club, whose name it very properly bears, and which will keep that name in pleasant remembrance after he gas gone—which God forbid for many years yet! May no pernicious blight overtake him such as has overtaken his lily, and may he continue to flourish "like a green bay tree." I well recollect the first dozen plants of this lily which he purchased from Wm. Crawford on Gray's Lane, below Woodland avenue, who had, a few years previously, received two bulbs from a lady by whom they had been brought from some Southern clime. This was, I think, in 1878, in the month of February. Mr. Harris asked me, at that time, if I had ever seen such a lily in bloom at that season of the year, and he predicted a useful career for the newly discovered treasure. But even he, with all his business sagacity, did not realize what a future was in store for that lily nor how millions of it would be grown every year to supply the demand in all parts of the world. But, alas, much of its grandeur has departed! So many seedlings of it have been raised in Bermuda and elsewhere that the original and superior type, as far as I can learn, is extinct, and the so-called Lilium Harrisii which we now get from Bermuda, while inferior in many characteristics, is so badly diseased from the ravages of the aforesaid mite that the culture of the bulbs is both unsatisfactory and unprofitable. Now we have to depend largely on Japan, where the disease has obtained but little foothold. But the bulbs from Japan, although in the main satisfactory, are not always so. There are several varieties that come from Japan, some of which, even under careful treatment, come into bloom too late for Easter. I am glad to know that our good friend Peter Barr, of narcissi fame, who sojourned for a short time among us about a year ago, is now in Japan and is instructing the Japsns to the best varieties to grow. If they will only listen to and obey him they will reap a rich reward.

Next to the lily in importance as an Easter plant is the azalea. What quantities of these are now grown! I think the quantity was a little overdone this year, especially in the larger sizes. I allude to plants wholesaling at $3 each and over. A limited number of azaleas can be retailed in Philadelphia at from $6 to $10, and a very few at higher rates; but the most popular sizes seem to be those that retail at $2 to $2.50, and at prices gradually lessening from these figures. And how few varieties are now generally popular! The catalogue of our Belgian friends names 50 or more sorts, but here three varieties supply the popular demand, viz., Van der Cruyssen, Bern-bard Andreas alba and Verveneana, with a limited sale for Empress of India, Prof. Wolters, Dr. Moore, Niobe, Apollo, Simon Mardner, Hermione, Dame Melane—the latter a delicate pink single variety, a profuse bloomer—and perhaps a few others. There are two other varieties that are worthy of special mention, namley, Prince Albert and Emperor of Brazil. These are both very beautiful sorts, but they are late varieties and should be put into heat about four weeks earlier than most azaleas. Prince Albert is particularly late if given ordinary treatment, but with more heat it comes nicely into bloom for Easter and is very pretty. New York Favorite is the name given to a pink one put on the market this year, which is of a pleasing color, but has a defect in that the flowers droop somewhat. It is said by some authorities that it is an old variety renamed. We find that most of these varieties, notably Beruhard Andreas alba, Verveneana and Dr. Moore, are vastly improved by keeping over one Summer, in this country, provided they are mulched with cow manure and watered freely and regularly every day all Summer. By this treatment they flower more profusely and keep longer in bloom than the freshly imported ones; but it is imperative that they receive constant, careful attention, with plenty of water, all Summer.

The greatest defect in the cultivation of azaleas is, to my mind, the unnatural shapes in which they are compelled to grow. They are mostly sheared off level to look like the surface of a table, or are pruned into a somewhat semi-circular shape, one branch not being allowed to project over another and the surface being almost flat. They remind you of the bouquets made 30 years ago, which were similarly stiff and rigid, and totally devoid of graceful outline. How is it that flower buyers reject altogether the old-fashioned flat bouquet, demanding their cut flowers to be loosely and gracefully arranged, but still accept the azaleas grown in this ugly, stiff way? But there are already here and there murmurs of discontent, and I predict that in a few years the public will demand azaleas more naturally and gracefully grown. It is a fact that some of the Belgian growers have for several years grown azaleas in natural and graceful fashion, particularly for the Paris market. We had at our price, this year, a few plants of the latter kind, and intend to grow for next year several thousands of them, feeling sure they will find ready sale.

Probably the next plant in Easter importance is the hydrangea. My experience is that the best results are obtained by growing the plants plunged in pots, out-of-doors, all Summer. The treatment for growing and forcing hydrangeas has been so often explained in the trade papers that I will not now detain you with details.

Perhaps the next plant in importance is the Crimson Rambler, a comparatively new comer, having been introduced only six years ago, and last year being the first that it was grown in quantity. When well grown it is a grand Easter plant and has sold readily at fairly remunerative prices. It is very desirable as a small plant in, say, a 6-inch pot, selling at $1 to $1.50 wholesale, up to large specimens at $5, $7 and $10 each, and a few can be sold at as high as $15 wholesale; but the demand in Philadelphia for these larger sizes is very light. New York is a better market for big ones. In some of the fashionable stores there they can hardly get them large enough. It has better keeping qualities, as an Easter plant, than any rose I know of.

The next best rose for Easter, when well done, is our old friend Magna Charta. Take it all in all it is the finest hybrid rose we have for this particular purpose.

It has occurred to me, in the cases of the hydrangeas and the Rambler roses particularly, that it would be a good idea to attach to each plant sold a card with an inscription upon it like this: "This plant should be soaked with water twice a day while in bloom." This would prevent much dissatisfaction from the wilting of the plants, which is sure to occur in the dry rooms of dwellings and in churches if the plants are not frequently watered. Some years ago one of our best and most practical uptown florists sent with each hydrangea sold a tin saucer with instructions to keep it filled with water and also to put a similar pan under each hydrangea used in church decoration. This is a practice worthy of general adoption.

I have named the four principal Easter pot plants, and will now briefly mention some of those next in importance. The genista, with its pure, bright yellow flowers, is desirable, and, if well grown, much in demand. Of the two varieties, Racemosa and Canariensis, the former is the better.

Astilbe is also a very useful and not costly plant. Astilboides grandiflora has superseded the old A. japonica, and A. compacta is still grown to a limited extent.

Heaths are yearly becoming more popular. All the varieties are beautiful and dainty, the Cupressiana particularly so.

Acacia paradoxa is also desirable in limited quantity. It does not flower very well in Fall imported plants; it blooms more profusely and with finer flowers when imported in the Spring and grown outdoors, in the full sun, all Summer. They should be wintered in a cool greenhouse and should, like heaths, be grown with the pots standing on a damp, cool surface all Winter.

Boronias, with their exceeding grace of delicate form and dainty flowers, have been introduced by several growers in New York and have been quite popular.

I have named, I think, most of the desirable Easter plants and will conclude by brief mention of bulbous plants which are grown in considerable quantities in pots and in shallow pans. Hyacinths, tulips and Narcissus Von Sion are seen in greatest quantity. Hyacinths, this year, have been most unsatisfactory to the grower, because of the poor condition of the hyacinths received from Holland; as a rule they were of inferior quality, particularly La Grandesse, the best white, and Czar Peter, the best blue. I am informed by the Holland growers that these two famous varieties are afflicted with disease and that some of the other varieties of lesser note are becoming constitutionally weak and therefore unsatisfactory to grow. The Hollanders have not learned how to prevent the hyacinth disease, but they might be more careful in sending over their tulips. We have noticed this year, for instance, in our batch of Coleur de Cardinal, a good sprinkling of some inferior, cheap, red sort. This might have been accidental, but it is certainly strange, if these mistakes be purely accidental, that we never find any high-priced tulips among the cheaper sorts. The culture of bulbs is so simple and now so well understood that I will not detain you longer. I may mention that we find it necessary to have but few hyacinths in bloom early in the week preceding Easter, as the general demand comes only as late as Friday or Saturday. We find it best, therefore, to have the hyacinths showing color not earlier than Thursday. When "just right" they meet with a ready sale on Saturday.

St. Louis.

Trade Notes.

Business the past week has been rather quiet, with stock receipts far too heavy for the demand. Prices are very low with considerable stock going to waste. Carnations bring 75c. per 100; roses, best, 4c., and everything else in proportion. Admiral Dewey paid our city a visit this week, which helped out those fortunate enough to get the decorating and flower orders for the various occasions, which were quite numerous and elaborate. Outside of this trade was slow among the retailers.

Plants are being handled in great quantities, the season now being at its height. Prices do not seem to have advanced in proportion to the cost of other things, as compared with values of a year or two ago. We are of the opinion that we should now get considerably more money for our product, as everything we buy costs more. We believe everything could be sold with at least a 25 per cent. advance. Geraniums will likely be short before the season is over; indications seem to point that way. Pansies have had a good run; the quality is not of the best, however. It seems very hard to get a real good strain of pansy seed.

Jottings.

This section, which was getting quite dry, was greatly benefited by a fine rain Tuesday night. The storm was quite severe, with some hail, but not enough to do any damage.

Phil. Hanswirth, of Chicago, is attending a convention of the Red Men, held at East St. Louis, and makes this side his headquarters.

H. Johan, of Collinsville, Ill., was a recent visitor. C. C. S.

Frank S. Payne, seized with sudden mental derangement, took his own life on the 6th inst. Mr. Payne was formerly an employee of the late James Vick. For a number of years he had been in business near Barnard Crossing, and was well known to every one connected with floriculture about Rochester. Happy in his domestic relations, prosperous in business, genial in disposition and buoyant in temperament, Mr. Payne's friends were profoundly shocked by his rash act.

April 23 a hailstorm skirted the city on the southwest—a strip from one to two miles wide was covered with hail to a depth of from one to several inches. Little glass was broken but early plantings were destroyed, and in some places much damage was done to fruit buds. May 7 the temperature fell to 26 degrees.

The backward season has helped out sales of greenhouse products and retailers all report an unusually good Spring trade. Prices are firm, and stocks well cleared up each week.

St. Paul.

Trade Notes.

The season here is one of the earliest on record, and vegetation of all kinds is well advanced. Hard frosts May 3 and 4 did considerable damage to tender stock outside.

Trade has been very good. Easter sales were the largest in the history of the business here, being nearly 30 per cent. ahead of last year. Stock was in fine shape, and everything sold well, both in plants and cut flowers. Carnations were scarce and hard to obtain at any figure. Roses were quite plentiful and of good quality; violets, abundant and in good demand. As usual, some stock was belated and did not get in bloom in time. A few days after Easter lilies were very plentiful, while for that occasion they were all cleaned out. Some choice Rambler roses have also been seen since, but they were very scarce for the holiday.

Lilies seem to grow more popular each season; roses are always in good demand; hydrangeas, well grown, also meet with ready sales, and spiræas always sell at a good figure. Bulbous stock is growing poorer each year, and is no longer a favorite seller. But few plant novelties for Easter blooming are seen in this section, and as long as the old tried and true varieties above mentioned are in favor there is no occasion for the introduction of newer ones. In short, good stock, well grown, will always command a good price, whether it be well known or a novelty. If the growers would only realize this and not be continually reaching out for untried novelties the balance would oftener be on the right side of the ledger.

News Jottings.

Christ Hansen met with a very serious loss a few months since by the leaking of a gas main in front of his premises. Several thousand plants were destroyed, and his loss will amount to thousands of dollars, for which he hopes to make the gas company pay.

R. C. Seeger is very busy building and expects to have his new range completed soon. He has planted 500 Liberty roses, and will put in a house of Beauty, several houses to Bridesmaid, Bride and Meteor, and others to fancy carnations. Mr. Seeger has gained a reputation in this section second to none for growing choice stock.

Pansies, geraniums and other bedding stock are making their appearance, and seem to be in good demand. Owing to the lateness of Easter this class of stock was delayed and neglected, but the bright weather since has brought everything along in fine shape.

Stock is fairly abundant, though an unusual amount of funeral work last week cleaned out everything in white.

Our local society seems to have died peacefully—more's the pity, for a strong, local association is the greatest benefit that the trade can receive.

Rain is needed badly for outside stock. Carnations that were planted before the frost were very badly nipped.

Decoration Day will be the next busy season for retailers and growers. We look for a very heavy trade for that occasion.

Travelers have been very numerous this season, the latest arrivals being C. S. Ford, Jr., of New York, and Mr. Hemer, representing J. C. Vaughan, Chicago. VERITAS.

The Recent Fire and Trade.

Our big fire has taken up so much attention that floriculture has been in the background for some time. The magnitude of the fire has to be seen to be realized, and even then it is almost impossible to think that in a few hours such a large area, thickly covered with buildings, could be so completely stripped of everything. Directly no florist suffered, but indirectly they will be considerable losers, from the fact that some of the finest residences and grounds were in the fire belt; and as so many houses were destroyed the demand for Spring bedding plants will be lessened. But the liberality of the world at large will do much to place Ottawa in its late prosperous condition again. We have been having some very annoying nights lately—just enough frost to keep outside operations at a standstill. The general stock of bedding plants round the city is plentiful and first-class. Pansies out all Winter are now in flower and on the market.

Roses and carnations are plentiful and keeping their price, owing to a run of funeral work.

C. Scrim, as Park Commissioner and general manager, is making and planning great changes in our parks.

Trade Notes.

There has been very little life in business the past few weeks, its only redeeming feature being the continued demand for funeral work. Flowers of all sorts, with the exception of carnations, which are still very scarce, are abundant for all demands. Sweet peas have made their appearance in quantity, and of fine quality. Lilies are still in good supply; there is no demand for them as pot plants, but for other purposes they come in very handy, and, so far, few have been lost. With the arrival of a spell of warm weather we began to think of putting some of the hardier plants outside; we are now, however, experiencing a cold wave, with snow flurries and heavy frosts at night that have caused us to abandon that idea.

Notes.

George Hopton is getting his place in running order again. He has a couple of houses filled with fine bedding plants brought from the old late St. Paul place, and has just finished planting a house of roses.

Martin & Son have concluded a contract with the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., and in future will supply plants and flowers on all dining cars leaving this city.

A New Park Superintendent.

Several of the practical men in this vicinity made application for the position of park superintendent. For one cause or another they were all passed aside, our aldermen evidently thinking that anyone with the practical knowledge of the business was not needed for beautiful old Mount Royal. The recommendation of the Park Committee was E. J. Chambers, a journalist, but the superintendent appointed is W. J. Henderson, who up to his appointment was a commercial traveler. And this is a reform Council! B.

DOUBLE NASTURTIUM

A VERY striking, double flowering, trailing plant, especially adapted for vases, window boxes, hanging baskets, rustic boxes, rock work; any place where trailing plants can be used it is indispensable. A free and vigorous grower, and continues to bloom the entire summer; the flowers are 3 inches or more in diameter, and are perfectly double; of a bright yellow, with a rich crimson feathered blotch at the base of each petal. The lovely shade of yellow gives them a charm that few flowers possess, and for cut-flowers, where yellow is wanted, they have no equal.

Strong plants, from 2¼ in. pots, $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000.

HYBRID CLEMATIS DUCHESS OF YORK.

We have been appointed Sole Agents for the United States and Canada by Messrs. Jackman & Sons.

An entirely new and distinct type, being crossed between Clematis Coccinea and Star of India, both of which succeed well in our climate. They combine all the good points of their parents in hardiness, vigorous growth and freedom of bloom, which, together with their entirely distinct coloring and novel shape will make them valuable additions to our list of Hardy Climbers

Countess of Onslow.—A bright violet-purple with a broad band of scarlet down the center of each petal; it is of open bell-shape form, with four to six petals to each flower; very useful for decorative purposes, as when cut will keep fresh in water for several days. $1.25 each.

Duchess of Albany.—A beautiful bright pink, deeper down the center, softening down to lilac pink round the margin; campanulate in shape, useful for cutting. $1.25 each.

Trade Conditions.

Business continues rather quiet, with now and then a little funeral work. The supply of flowers is very good, but there is very little variety. The demand is not heavy. In roses American Beauty of good quality realize from $16 to $20 per 100, but are not much sought. The seconds and smaller grades sell for what can be got for them. The supply of Brunner is shortening up, most of those now brought in being of second or smaller grades. They make from $2 to $10 per 100. Jacqueminot are about done for the season. Bride and Bridesmaid are in good supply, moving rather slowly, at prices ranging from $1 to $8 per 100, a few extras reaching $10. Kaiserin are coming in, but are not at all plentiful as yet. They make from $4 to $10 per 100, a limited supply of extras fetching $12.50.

Carnations of all kinds are plentiful and do fairly well; $1.50 is a good figure for 100 good carnations of ordinary sorts, specials of this kind making $2, while a few choice varieties realize from $2.50 to $4, which figure is outside price for Bradt.

There is a fairly good supply of tulips from out-of-doors, but very little call for them. Lilies are still in abundance, at $4 to $6 per 100, callas going at about the same prices. Valley is plentiful, especially since the advent of frame-grown stock. The latter sells pretty well at an average price of $2 per 100.

Good violets are becoming very scarce, though there is a fairly good supply of poorer ones. Sweet peas are rapidly coming into favor at this season, and meet with a lively demand, cleaning up daily at 75c. to $1.50 per 100. Pansies, too, sell well since violets have become poorer in quality.

Donald Carmichael's Eleanor Ames carnations are arriving in excellent condition. He was awarded honorable mention for this stock at Horticultural Hall on Saturday last.

Exhibition of Mass. Hort. Society.

The annual May exhibition of this society, held at Horticultural Hall last Saturday, was an exceptionally good one. The collections, which almost entirely filled the hall, were large and varied, and of a high standard of excellence. Very fine show pelargoniums were exhibited by E. J. Mitton and Chas. H. Souther, who received first and second prizes respectively. Dr. C. G. Weld staged a fine lot of Indian azaleas, and captured first for a collection, as well as first in the class for a single specimen plant. Calceolarias were a very prominent and showy feature of the exhibition, and the exhibits staged contained several of the newer kinds, as well as the best varieties of the older sorts. John Mutch, gardener to Mrs. B. P. Cheney, had it pretty much his own way in the competition for prizes in this class. Kenneth Finlayson, gardener to Dr. C. G. Weld, was also a winner.

Orchids were displayed by James E. Rothwell, and included Cattleya Skinneri, Lælia purpurata, Miltonia vexillaria and a few nice odontoglossums and masdevallias. Dr. Weld showed lily plants and some very good streptocarpus. J. S. Bailey's amaryllis were very fine. Nice cut orchids and some gloxinias were shown by H. A. Wheeler. Among the former was a magnificent spray of Odontoglossum nebulosum. Dr. Weld showed a nice lot of narcissus, as did Edward Powell, the latter also had a varied collection of attractive tulips. James Comley made an exhibit of rhododendrons and Crimson Rambler rose trusses, and Mrs. E. M. Gill a variety of seasonable flowers. A varied display of hardy herbaceous plants was made by the Blue Hills Nurseries.

The new rose, Queen of Edgely, the pink sport of the American Beauty, was shown by the Floral Exchange Co., of Philadelphia, and attracted considerable attention. A silver medal was awarded.

The vegetable display was exceptionally good, especially the tomatoes.

At a meeting of the society held the same day, the death of J. D. W. French was reported, and a committee appointed by President Appleton to prepare suitable resolutions. Messrs. Elisha N. Pierce, of Waltham, and Irving B. Frost, of Belmont, were elected to membership.

Success With House Plants

BY LIZZIE PAGE HILLHOUSE.

A complete text-book and guide to the care, cultivation and propagation of all plants in the garden and the home.

The volume is written by a woman for women, in plain, concise language, easily understood, and the book has the special merit of giving directions which can be readily followed, the methods prescribed being of the simplest, and the material suggested to be used easily within reach of all.

To Retail Florists. The old thought, that it was dangerous for a customer to know much about the care of plants, has passed away, being superseded by the newer and more intelligent one, viz.: that the more successful a customer is with plants, the greater quantity will he or she buy.

THIS great work comprises directions for the cultivation of horticultural crops and original descriptions of all the species of Fruits, Vegetables, Flowers, and ornamental plants known to be in the market in the United States and Canada.

BY L. H. BAILEY, OF CORNELL UNIVERSITY, ASSISTED BY WILHELM MILLER AND MANY EXPERT CULTIVATORS AND BOTANISTS.

THOUGH distinctly an American work, not only plants indigenous to the North American continent are mentioned, but also all the species known to be in the horticultural trade in North America, of whatever origin. It is really a survey of the cultivated plants of the world.

The chief characteristics of this great work are comprised in our describing its source, scope, and general features. It is AUTHORITATIVE since its contributors are the best specialists in America, and there will be at least 5000 signed contributions from the best-known horticulturists, cultivators, and botanists in this country and in Europe. It is also most COMPREHENSIVE in that it presents for the first time in carefully arranged and perfectly accessible form the best knowledge of the best specialists upon greenhouse and garden practice, fruit growing, vegetable culture, forestry and the like. It is moreover fresh, entirely ORIGINAL; not a rehash of old material, old cuts, etc. The articles are specially prepared and illustrated for this work alone; while the trained botanist discusses the botanical features of the important commercial plants, practical cultivators submit observations on their culture, marketing, and the like, so that the reader has before him the very best practice in the most favorable localities for the perfection of any fruit, vegetable, or economic plant. The arrangement is very systematic, clear and convenient for ready reference.

THE CYCLOPEDIA is to be completed in four handsome quarto volumes, embracing about 2000 pages, with more than that number of original illustrations. It is carefully printed upon specially made paper of a permanent character, and the work will be completed this year.

This book is sold only by subscription, and orders will be accepted for the full set only. For terms of subscription and all further information, address

The committee for the free distribution of plants among the school children reported enthusiasm all along the line from both growers and school principals. Additional offers of rooted chrysanthemum plants were received from George Smith, Popken & Collins and C. W. Ward, of Queens, L. I. The distribution will take place the middle of May.

The weather has turned cold and wet. Most of the carnations are now planted and will get a good start.

Business is steady with lots of funeral work to use up white flowers. Shipping still continues brisk, the call being mostly for carnations. Daybreak is plentiful, while red and white kinds are about equal to the demand. Roses are very plentiful; quality fair. G. F. C.

New Orleans, La.

The last few days of April and the first of May remind us that our long Summer is with us. Of late we have had some of the heaviest rains on record, followed by hot, tropical weather. Spring bedding is almost over. Our Summer plants, such as crotons, caladiums, pandanus, palms, draenas, etc., are commencing to make a fine show.

Easter trade was not very bright. Flowers of all kinds, except Harrisii lilies, were plentiful. Easter being late outside stock made business a little slow with the florists; everybody could cut flowers in their gardens for church decoration. So far I do not think any of our people had many lilies for that date, the disease being very bad in some cases. Some of the florists say trade was as good as usual, others better.

The florists who exhibited at our State Fair struck a bad week, as far as the weather was concerned—it was raining most of the time; otherwise, it was a success, being one of the best Spring shows held here. Palms, ferns, and foliage plants were all well shown. Flowering plants were very good; the geraniums and petunias were extra good. Some of the adiantum ferns exhibited were 8 feet through. The principal prizes were won by H. Papworth, E. Valdejo, J. H. Menard, Abele Bros. and F. Faesel, in floral work. Shindler & Van Geffen, C. Eble and J. H. Menard all had extra fine displays. The judges were very exacting in their work, and a few of the exhibits failed to score. A bed of seedling Latania borbonica in 4-inch pots was shown. The palms were all right to leave home in the greenhouse; as plants they were not fit for exhibition, even if they were Louisiana-grown seedlings. The two sweepstake medals, offered by the New Orleans Horticultural Society, were won by H. Papworth and E. Valdejo.

The State Fair gave $450 to the Horticultural Department. It looks as if most of the money will be used up. The judges were John Eblen, Ed. Baker and J. A. Newsham.

Cut flowers and roses were only second class. H. P.

Pittsburg.

Business Bits.

At last we are having a spell of warm weather and stock is coming in rather too plentifully. Trade has been good; several weddings of note and three prominent deaths furnished some handsome orders. Ulam & Co. made three fine pieces—a large scroll, scale of life and a column, all between 5 and 6 feet in height—done in the best style with the choicest of blooms. L. I. Neff also had several large pieces.

Roses and carnations are very abundant and prices are low. Yellow daisies are more abundant this year than ever, and are very effective. Fischer is cutting some fine ones from plants about 5 feet in height.

The plantsmen are doing a good trade already, and the prospects for an excellent one are now much brighter. Stock of hardy plants is selling better than ever, and the shipping trade is also very good. John Bader has had two very busy weeks, and is well satisfied with the outlook for the season.

The News.

G. & J. W. Ludwig, in the Allegheny Market, are offering plants of a geranium grown by A. Nauman, of Etna, which is quite an oddity. The flowering stem throws out from 6 to 10 well-formed flower heads, all perfect trusses. It is a double pink variety, a free bloomer and good grower.

The Rev. Dr. S. W. Knipe will give an interesting lecture at the next meeting of the Botanical Society of Western Pennsylvania, his subject being "A Botanist in Western Pennsylvania Thirty Years Ago;" also an answer to the question, "What Profit is there in the Study of Botany?" The society intends to arrange a program for an intended series of field meetings during the Summer.

The greenhouse of Louis Sutter was destroyed by fire last week—almost a total loss, with little insurance. The origin of the fire is supposed to be incendiary.

M. W. Woodrooffe, cut flower dealer, Philadelphia, spent several days in our city recently.

Supt. G. W. Burke, of Highland Park, makes a splendid show of tulips, bedded out most effectively and in great quantities. About 50,000 bulbs were used.

G. H. CRANE — THE BEST SCARLET CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED.

We have the finest and best selected stock of this Carnation in the country. We have 25,000 selected cuttings now ready, and can ship promptly on receipt of order.

Price, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL MACEO — THE BEST CRIMSON CARNATION.

Pure, Rich, Clear, Effective Color, the Best Keeper of all Crimsons. The Most Profuse Blooner of all. Produces 25 per cent. More Flowers than any other Carnation we have ever grown. Sells Out Clean in Quantity. Is Liked by Everybody.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL GOMEZ

Some growers who have not grown Maceo think this is the best of the two varieties. Our experience shows Maceo to be the most profitable of the two. Gomez has a longer stem, is lighter in color and sells at 20 per cent. higher price than Maceo.

If you are in doubt as to which to plant, buy an equal quantity of each variety. That will enable you to determine which is best suited for your requirements.

15,000 Cuttings ready, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Ethel Crocker A pure red-pink shade of Mrs. Jas. Dean, but darker, healthiest habit of all; fine stock now ready. $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

Morning Glory (Dorner). The Daybreak Colored Scott, the best salmon pink on the market at present; a bright, refreshing shade; very free bloomer; always in flower; ready now. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Olympia Largest variegated Carnation, only rival to Mrs. G. M. Bradt; strong plants, from soil and a few from pots, at $12.00 per 100.

Mrs. G. M. Bradt One of the largest and most sought after Carnations grown, producing blooms 3 to 4 in. in diameter; best seller of its class; strong stock, $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Genevieve Lord Fine, strong plants, from soil or pots, $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000.

American Seed Trade Association.—The eighteenth annual meeting of this association occurs June 12 to 14 next, at the Grand Pacific Hotel, corner Jackson Boulevard and Clark street, Chicago, Ill. An interesting program along the lines of new century conditions in the seed business has been prepared, and papers on subjects of practical interest will be read.

European Notes.

The 9 degrees of frost mentioned in last week's report has proved to be one of the most destructive visitations we have experienced for several years. Spring sowings that had not been visited by the fly, and were considered safe, proved, on examination three days after the frost, to have been entirely destroyed—the young seedlings were as dry as if burned.

The condition of the young radishes is very unpromising generally; there are some plots that have not suffered so badly, but these cannot be transplanted at present for lack of moisture.

Recent letters from the extreme south state that the young seed pods of the early cauliflowers have suffered badly from the frost and cold winds; this, of course, means a considerable reduction of the crop. EUROPEAN SEEDS.

Vitality and Purity of Seeds.

We have been favored by Mr. Burnet Landreth, of D. Landreth & Sons, seedsmen, Philadelphia, with the following communication, which is self-explanatory:

A. J. PIETERS, ESQ.,
Bureau of Seed Investigation,
Department of Agriculture,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Pieters:

I acknowledge the receipt of your communication of May 8, "protesting" against portions of the paragraph on page 9, of Landreth's Catalogue of 1900, which paragraph I wrote and which reads as follows:

"VITALITY AND PURITY."

The United States Department of Agriculture is endeavoring to set up a percentage standard of "Vitality and Purity" for seeds, with the idea of ultimately bringing about a system of graded prices based upon the test results.

In the case of clovers and grass seeds such a system is fairly practicable, as the weed seeds and other incidental seed mixtures can be counted out from a hundred or thousand seeds of clover or grass, and the remaining seeds be depended upon to produce plants of the ordinary type of the variety under treatment; individual scrutiny of such fully grown clover or grass plants not being so intense as that given to plants of larger development. But this system is not so feasible with grain seeds, as many varieties of oats, wheat, barley are so slightly distinguishable from each other in the appearance of the dry seed that a separation by the hand and eye would be impossible, as would be demonstrated by a field trial.

Still more impossible with seeds of flowers and vegetables, as, for example, no one can distinguish one variety of turnip from another, and so it is with cabbage, radish, carrot, celery, and yet any one or all of these might be so mixed with varieties of its own family as to be entirely valueless, while at the same time proving 100 per cent. in vitality. Consequently the so-called "purity" test of the Department of Agriculture is very misleading in the case of garden seeds, the purity of type of which can only be tested in the field. And again the Department of Agriculture is misleading the public in laying so much stress upon the subject of vitality, for purity of strain certainly so immeasurably outranks vitality that a market gardener would at any time prefer to purchase seed, cabbage for instance, of absolute purity though of only 50 per cent. vitality, rather than seed of 100 per cent. vitality and impure in type.

It will be noticed the above article treats upon two distinct features:

First, mechanical purity of seed; second, vitality of seed.

The concluding reflections of the article are that the Department has made more of these two features than of purity of strain. The proof of this is that the Department distributes annually 16,000,000 to 18,000,000 of packets of any cheap seeds, provided they are mechanically clean and of high vitality; three requirements: Cleanliness, vitality and cheapness.

Now as to the mechanical cleanliness of seed. That is more important in field seeds than in garden seeds, as freedom from weed seeds in an agricultural crop, such as clover, grass or small grains, is especially desirable, indeed necessary, for interlopers cannot well be removed from the broad expanse of agricultural crops. But in garden seeds, if by reason of gross negligence any weed seeds remain, the plants from them are easily removed by the gardener, whose principal occupation is the killing of weeds; consequently if garden seeds should perchance have a few weed seeds in them, those resultant weeds would come out with the others and no serious harm be done. But if the type is untrue to the extent of 20 or 30 per cent., the gardener cannot eradicate the undesirable plants, for he does not discover their presence until he has expended his time and cash. The result is, that at the end of the season he finds himself in debt in spite of a vitality of even 99 or 100 per cent., which the seeds might have had when planted.

Whatever the Department intended in the past, in my opinion as a seed grower and seed merchant of some experience, it has been most remiss in failing to impress upon the agricultural public the over-shadowing importance of purity of type; the Department having to a great extent expended its energy and time upon the less important subject of vitality.

An argument is always most forcible when it is accompanied with a fact in point, and here is the undeniable fact: When my firm, in April, 1896, contracted with the Department of Agriculture to furnish over 10,000,000 of seed packets, which work was commenced and finished inside of 30 days, it was required to give seeds of an exceedingly high germinative force; and you well know, for you and the late Mr. Hicks tested them, that the Department got seeds of just such vitality as was required; but let me say to you here, many of those high vitality seeds were grown from parent stock not so pure to type as the parent stocks of other seeds which my firm could have furnished of 10 to 15 per cent. lower in germinative force, but which better seeds were barred out by the Department requirements of vitality. Yet these seeds of lower germinative force would have been far more acceptable to persons of discrimination than the seeds issued; as, for instance, to a market gardener, whose profit depends upon the absolute good development of his crop of vegetables.

The Department of Agriculture should recognize the fact that the more intense the selection as to breed or purity of type the less vitality attaches both to the plant and to the seed, but on the contrary, the Department dwells to an unnecessary degree upon vitality—a very desirable quality in its way, but an inferior subject to that of purity. The practice of the Department in sending out annually $60,000 to $70,000 worth of the cheapest seeds, which can be purchased in the United States, nullifies any claims which it can put forth as to its good intentions, as expressed in its publications.

This important condition of type the United States Department of Agriculture should make of primary importance, but unfortunately it does not do so, as is proven by its annual, ridiculous stipulations as to character of seeds required—they must be clean and they must grow up to the nineties, and that is all; so they are very, very cheap. Seed merchants and observing planters well know that the Department has received, paid for and issued seeds absolutely foreign to their labeling, yet the seeds, no doubt, were thoroughly clean and highly vital. What a farce! What a reflection upon the Department of Agriculture of this country!

The leading seed merchants of America have intimate knowledge of all the details of their business, and one of their experiences, by some dearly bought, is that quality is considered by practical men and by the courts of far more importance than vitality.

Seedsmen constantly find minor subjects occupying the attention of their correspondents to the exclusion of more important ones, which escape their attention, but such short-sightedness should not prevail in the Department of Agriculture.

I therefore repeat that the United States Department of Agriculture is improperly setting up a "false standard," and puts itself in an uneaviable position before the agricultural departments of other countries when it insists in its annual requirements for seeds of a high vitality grade, while entirely ignoring the important subject of a high quality grade. Yours truly,

BURNET LANDRETH.

Denver.

The bedding season is now in full blast and greenhouse men are kept very busy. Pansies have had their turn and a great many were sold; one firm (Mahr & Dankworth) cleaning out a fine lot of 20,000. Geraniums will take the lead now, and although most of our firms are well supplied, it looks as if geraniums will be very scarce at Decoration Day. It is, perhaps, a little early to bank on flowers for that occasion (May 12); but I think that lilacs, snowballs, paeonies, and the rest of outdoor stock will about hit the mark. DENVER.

Toledo, O.

The severest hail storm known here for 15 or more years visited us on the afternoon of Monday, May 7, causing considerable loss to some of our florists and owners of private gardens. The heaviest losses were sustained by Imoberstag Bros. and S. N. Peck, their establishments being almost completely wrecked, so far as the glass is concerned. The Dalbridge Park Conservatories, in the palm section, Henry Krueger and H. A. Mills also were badly damaged. None of the other establishments had any real serious losses to report. Although the hailstones averaged from the size of marbles to that of walnuts, the injury to plants from broken glass seems to have been very light. It appears the storm followed the course of the river, and this probably accounts for the small number of greenhouses hit, as the other places were not in the "thick of the fight." The newspapers report 6 inches of hailstones on the streets. Pansies, etc., are a complete loss at the above-named places, except where the plants were indoors.

Notes from Europe.

ASPARAGUS.

Next to adiantum Asparagus plumosus nanus is the green mostly used here, and it is quite the specialty of many growers to produce sprays of the size of a large adiantum frond, with rigid stems of 10 to 20 inches in length, and of light yellow green color. This color constitutes the special value of this green. Asparagus planted out is always dark green and therefore does not have the pleasing fresh appearance, especially under artificial light, that the yellow green produces.

Let me mention that only the true plumosus nanus is good for this purpose. A. cormorensis is always darker, and more than A. p. nanus is apt to produce long, winding shoots, which the following method of growing helps to avoid: In May and June take the plants out of pots, shake off the soil and cut the rhizomes up into small pieces with two leaves to each. Pot these bits singly into thumb pots; put them into light bottom heat (on propagating bench), keep them in 70 to 80 degrees with frequent syringing. In four to six weeks they will have rooted through. Repot them into 3-inch pots, in sandy, loamy compost. At first keep them close shaded, and syringe daily, gradually giving air, and harden them off. In September they go into Winter quarters. Growers hereabouts prefer low, narrow houses, 10 to 12 feet wide, with benches each side of central wall, 50 to 60 degrees. Plunge pots close together into moisture retaining material—ashes, hop, tan or the like—and gradually take off all shade. The plants will by this time be well furnished with leaves, which keep a long while and get lighter in color with age. During Winter they grow but slowly, but a house full can furnish a lot of cut green, if the plants were well treated during the Summer. These branches or fronds are very hardy and excellent keepers when cut.

Asparagus deflexus is gaining in favor. It is exceedingly light, producing branching stems 2 to 3 feet long, of hanging habit and of glaucous green color. The plants grow readily from seed, and I have seen them three years old produce plenty of it (but I think the demand will be large.) This asparagus likes to have its resting period well observed, and then produces two good crops each year. It will be found useful for baskets, mirror decorations, and wherever airy and long green is necessary. Grow it in a temperate light house, in rather small pots suspended from the roof. Like all other asparagus it likes occasional though light feeding with nitrate of potash.

Asparagus retrofractus arboreus is certainly a fine green, and most useful for large pieces. As a decorative plant it is also worth cultivating. Grow it at the cooler end of the Asparagus plumosus house, planted in the ground. It will then produce shoots 3 to 5 feet in length, and thus furnish magnificent material for decorating. This green is so distinct and still so beautiful that it is bound to please. Every storeman should have a few dozens or more of it; he will be pleased to have it for special, fancy pieces.

GALVANIZED NETTING BENCH BOTTOMS.

A Berlin La France specialist (grows for two seasons, a late Fall and early Spring crop with sashes off during Summer) reports good success with benches on wood skeleton and a bottom of galvanized iron netting, one-half inch meshes. A good layer of leaves makes the bottom solid enough to receive and hold the soil. There certainly cannot be lack of drainage and aeration with this kind of bottom to the bench. I would like to recommend leaves at the bottom of benches in any case. They are certainly preferable to straw or sods, keeping the soil well open from below. But it appears that with their slow fermentation they help the decomposition of the soil and render the plant food contained therein more available to the plants. A trial is always safe, and will prove a success.

BANKSIA AS A STOCK FOR ROSES.

Apropos of roses, I took good note of a suggestion of one of your correspondents (some 15 or 18 months ago) advocating Banksia roses as stock to work roses on for continuous growing under glass. While in Italy I took occasion to speak about this to Mr. Brauer, a young but very intelligent and comparatively most successful raiser of roses. "Just what I thought, when I first started here," he said, "and, there, you can judge for yourself." He showed me in February a lot of older roses budded on Banksia. These were just starting into growth, while the others, on own roots, briar or manetti, were in full bloom, or past it. The fact is the Banksia, though evergreen, does rest and not only takes a long rest, but requires a high temperature to start into vegetation. In Italy the roses start in October to November, with 40 to 50 degrees in the shade after the first good rains, and their vegetation can only be a little regulated by earlier or later pruning. But the Banksia begins to grow only much later; it demands quite 60 degrees to begin life anew. In May to June it is generally in full bloom. It would be interesting to hear from your correspondent whether he made further trials with the Banksia.

FLORIST.—Whoa! Don't you know this is the twentieth century? There is no need of a man bothering himself about any purchases nowadays. We have a committee that does all that brain-racking work for us—for a consideration. Say, it's a cinch compared with old times! The florist's greatest trouble and loss just now is with his help, and the committee is making arrangements to buy up a lot of that.

THE GLASS MAN.—Want any 16x24 glass this morning? The size is short, but we were fortunate ——

FLORIST.—Hold, enough! I subscribe to the Paint, Oil, Glass, Sash, Squash, Hardware, Putty, Papa Gontier Providing Committee of the S. A. F., and they knock the Trust prices all to smithereens. I tell you, a purchasing trust is a pench. There is nothing like fighting your enemy with his own weapons.

THE PIPE MERCHANT.—I see you are building, old man; suppose you'll need lots of my specialty ——?

FLORIST.—Bah! A Henry Clay is the only pipe, to purchase which I exercise my individual effort nowadays. I am a member of the Do-all-the-buying-Committee of the S. A. F. Say, the "man with the hose" is living in an Elysium now. He beats the man with the hoe of former days.

INSECTICIDE DEALER.—I hear your plants are suffering from malaria; excuse me, bacteria, mildew, thrips, spider. Won't you try my All-Bug-Pest-Exterminator? It ——

ADVERTISING SOLICITOR.—Say, we only charge 10c. a line for advertising in the most widely read and circulated florist medium of the country. Won't you ——?

THE ONCE ADVERTISING FLORIST.—Young man, it's useless; the jackal of the florists' business has placed all the orders required by the entire trade with Petunia, Cosmos & Co., and "Othello's occupation is gone." Am just biding my time to be called to a fairer region where competition is the life of trade. Here it has been the death of it; the lowest bidder now supplies the entire country with my specialty, and the entire country is the what-do-you-call-it ——? the co-op——, pshaw, I forget. Oh, good day.

Market Notes.

There has been little or no change in business conditions the past week. Stock continues very plentiful and the demand is still light, and probably will be so until Decoration Day.

Roses hold out, of very good quality, due largely to the cool weather so far this Spring. American Beauty are plentiful and good; they meet with very little demand, however. Prices range from $16 to $25 per 100 for long-stemmed stock, while the smaller grades fetch from $3 up to $12.50. Bride, Bridesmaid and Kaiserin, too, are plentiful, and of very good quality generally.

Though carnations are in very good supply the prices on the finer grades hold up very well for this season. Fancy carnations still bring from $2.50 to $4 per 100.

Lilies are now getting scarce, being about through with until the Decoration Day lots come in. Valley is very plentiful, quantities of it being cut from frames; $2 is a good figure for No. 1 stock. There is quite a supply of tulips from outdoors in the market, but they do not move very briskly. The demand for sweet peas continues good; but within the past week the supply has increased and the flowers are not cleaned up quite so well. They bring from 50c. to 75c. per 100 for short and ordinary grades, while the select stock realizes $1. Pansies, too, are quite plentiful, as are nasturtiums, cornflowers, etc. Stock-jelly is now quite plentiful, making from $1 to $1.50 per 100, while extra large sprays bring $2.

The plant trade at the market stands has been fairly good so far, but would undoubtedly be much better were the weather a little more seasonable. Frost, of 6 to 8 degrees, two mornings in succession last week, is causing many customers to wait awhile.

Welch Bros. are now receiving a fine lot of American Beauty—the cutting from the new Spring crop.

Wm. Nicholson had a few Lilium auratum of excellent quality in this week, and Wm. Sim is cutting some of the finest candytuft on the market.

M. B. Bunker, of the Parker House, has gone to Philadelphia on a business trip.

Frank Good expects to go to Newport, R. I., for the Summer, starting some time after June 1. He has accepted a position with Mrs. Fadden.

PLANTS and FLOWERS.

EDELWEISS.—Albert Knapper, Frankford, Pa., sends to this office a nice pot specimen of edelweiss, which has been grown from seed obtained direct from Switzerland. Mr. Knapper informs us that treated the same as alternanthera the edelweiss grows and flourishes (the specimen sent us is a very thrifty subject), and the demand for the plants has been very gratifying.

GERANIUMS AND COLEUS.

Geraniums, Double Gen. Grant and mixed varieties, nice stocky plants, 4 in. pots, $5.00 per 100.
Coleus Verschaffeltii, 2¼ in. pots, $2.00 per 100
200 White Verbenas, in full bloom, $2.50 per 100. Cash with order please.

BY LIZZIE PAGE HILLHOUSE.

A complete text-book and guide to the care, cultivation and propagation of all plants in the garden and the home.

The volume is written by a woman for women, in plain, concise language, easily understood, and the book has the special merit of giving directions which can be readily followed, the methods prescribed being of the simplest, and the material suggested to be used easily within reach of all.

To Retail Florists. The old thought, that it was dangerous for a customer to know much about the care of plants, has passed away, being superseded by the newer and more intelligent one, viz.: that the more successful a customer is with plants, the greater quantity will he or she buy.

We offer Special Inducements to all who wish to handle this book. It is a good seller.

NURSERY DEPARTMENT.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN

WILSON J. PETERS, Troy, O., President; D. S. LAKE, Shenandoah, Ia., Vice-President; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Secretary; C. L. YATES, Rochester, N. Y., Treasurer.

Marshfield, Wis.—Macklin Bros. recently purchased a tract of land here for the purpose of establishing a nursery business.

Miami, Fla.—Grifling Bros. have bought land at Little River, and will start a nursery there. They have also taken 200 acres south of the Miami River, presumably for nursery purposes.

Park and Outdoor Art Association.

The annual convention of the American Park and Outdoor Art Association is to assemble at the Art Institute, Chicago, Ill., on June 5, 6 and 7, 1900. As a sufficient attendance cannot be guaranteed to secure special railroad rates, each member should make the best terms he can with local agents. The Auditorium Annex Hotel has been selected as the official headquarters of the association, where rates will range from $1.50 to $4 per day.

The program will provide for papers and discussions at the morning sessions of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, to which all interested are invited; stereopticon lectures Tuesday and Thursday evenings, to which the public will be specially invited; and visits to the park systems in the afternoons. On Friday there will be an excursion to the drainage canal, or other places can be visited. A banquet will also be tendered to the association during its sessions.

PAPERS AND DISCUSSIONS.

Mrs. Edwin D. Mead, of the Twentieth Century Club of Boston, will prepare a paper upon municipal improvement, which will be read by President Loring, and Mr. Albert Kelsey, president of the Architectural League of America, will give an address upon the same subject at a joint meeting of the two associations on Thursday evening, June 7, on which day the annual session of the Architectural League begins.

A paper prepared by Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, of Lake Forest, Ill., upon "Landscape Gardens" will be presented.

Dr. Albert Shaw, Editor of the American Review of Reviews, will present a paper upon some phase of outdoor art relating to our national growth.

Mr. William R. Smith, director of the Botanic Gardens at Washington, D. C., and ex-president of the Society of American Florists, will write upon a subject relating to the arrangement and grouping of plants about architectural structures.

Mr. William M. R. French, director of the Chicago Art Institute, will present an illustrated paper upon "Composition," giving particular attention to the proper distribution of buildings, of artificial structures and of foliage about such structures.

Mr. J. H. Patterson and Mr. Edwin L. Shuey, of Dayton, Ohio, have consented to lead in the presentation of work that has been done in this and other countries toward making more attractive the surroundings of factory buildings and employees' homes. To this meeting the general public will be specially invited.

Mr. William Ordway Partridge, of New York City, will present a paper upon the proper setting of statuary in public places.

Mr. J. Frank Foster, superintendent of the South Park System in Chicago, will present a paper upon park roads, in which he will call particular attention to their maintenance and administration. The Rev. J. A. Rondthaler, of Chicago, will present a paper upon the influence of public parks upon the morality of a community. Mr. S. M. Millard, of Highland Park, Ill., will present a paper upon a subject connected with outdoor art.

Mr. Frederick Law Olmsted, Jr., of Brookline, Mass., will present a committee report on "Advertising Bill Boards;" Prof. William J. Beal, of Michigan, upon "Prizes for Designs;" Dr. Wm. W. Folwell, of Minneapolis, upon "Park Census," and Mr. C. C. Laney will report for the committee appointed in connection with work of the Pan-American Exposition.

One of the most instructive and interesting features of the meeting is to be an exhibit of photographs, showing the good and bad treatment of various subjects connected with outdoor art and the artist's conception of beauty in various objects in landscape.

A Talk on Strawberries.

A very flattering audience considering this busy season of the cultivator, gathered at the monthly meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society on Wednesday, May 2, in the society's rooms in Orange, N. J., to listen to the veteran horticulturalist, Dr. J. B. Ward, of Newark, who delivered an instructive address on the culture of the strawberry. Upon his place at Lyons Farms Dr. Ward has 12 acres devoted to 68 varieties of this fruit, for he is an experimentor as well as a cultivator.

The soil must receive first consideration, said the speaker, for the berry is a rank feeder, and the preparation must be as thorough as for corn or potatoes, and about the same. A heavy coat of composted manure must be afforded, turned three or four times and then turned under; he uses a cutaway harrow to pulverize. This must be followed by continuous use of the cultivator. There is a great deal of material in the soil that a plant fails to get hold of anyway, but the use of the cultivator encourages the growth of roots which enables them to appropriate the more.

Dr. Ward believes in Spring planting, because at this season the weather is peculiarly favorable to the growth of the plants, while in the Fall we have dry periods, which are correspondingly fatal. Plant now and you will only lose one in a thousand. For field cultivation plant rows 3 feet apart 15 inches in the row; if for stock plant rows 4 feet apart, and you will secure good, strong plants, and a fair yield. Keep the cultivator moving at least once a week; it will pay, particularly in dry weather, besides keeping the ground loose and friable. About September 1 give a light dressing of nitrate of soda, or potash; a little later give a heavy dressing of compost. Be careful not to put this on too early or you will smother the plants; but you will find from this treatment that they will come out in the Spring in splendid condition. The past Winter has been quite fatal to the strawberry all over the country, but by pursuing this treatment you will avoid the fatality of the open Winter free from snow, and with frequent freezing and thawing.

As regards varieties Dr. Ward places the Marshall first for market or table, but not for field cultivation; for, like the Sharpless, the yield lasts but two seasons, and third produces only small-sized berries; so destroy after two years. The Belt is a good berry. The Parker Earle requires early Fall planting to fruit and succeed the following year; destroy after two yields.

The Champion of England and Bismarck are good field berries; the latter will supersede the Bubach. Glen Mary and Brandywine are good. Hilton Gem has not succeeded, the third picking hardly paying; it is not nearly as prolific as the others. The Sample was not a success last year, but then it was a poor year for fruiting. Pierson's Seedling has been planted heavy at Lyons Farms, and is an excellent berry—dark in color and a good cropper.

In answer to a question, Whether high or low ground might not determine the variety, the Doctor said, Yes; for instance, the Gandy is raised in southern Jersey in a moist soil, for which it seems peculiarly fitted, and the yield is enormous. In that soil it will do well, and is without question a money maker, but take it from that soil it will not do well. In reference to the Henry, Dr. Ward said he had observed it side by side with the Marshall and could see no difference. Recently he had shown him the Henry grown by Mr. Rockefeller's gardener, which was different, but he alluded to his own experience. In reference to the Sharpless the Doctor said he should as leave eat squash—big, soft, a poor market and poor table berry. The Marshall, on the contrary, is as delicious as anything you can put in your mouth.

After fruiting is over, plow; plant crimson clover or cow peas. This, when plowed in, will supply the necessary humus for the succeeding crop. After turning this in with the plow let it stand a week and then plow again. It will then be ready for planting after you are through pulverizing. If left all Winter the soil will be gathering nitrogen all that time, and be in condition for Spring planting.

In speaking of potted plants, if you can get your plants rooted at the right time and not pot bound, they may do well, otherwise the pot-bound plants will have received a set-back from which they never recover. Do not fail to watch for this condition.

In uncovering look out for early frosts. Remove the covering to cultivate, and replace it. This refers to whether as a Summer or Winter protection.

In manuring use a good compost, both to enrich the soil and as a Winter protection. Broadcast nitrate before a rain in Fall. It is now too late in the season to secure any good result, as the fruit buds form in the Fall.

Mention being made as to perfect and imperfect flowering, Dr. Ward said he uses three or four rows of the pistillate berry and one row of good strong staminate variety. He had lately tried the Hun with Parker Earle, and had done well: last year the yield was not quite as good as in the preceding year. The strawberry has a tendency to run out. The Charles Downing is an example of this. He would give almost anything to have it now as it was 30 years ago.

As to forcing berries, when this subject was introduced Dr. Ward preferred to listen to others who had had more experience, and President Duff was called upon. He mentioned the Marshall as a good forcing berry and the Bubach fertilized with Sharpless. He had given up the idea that plants must be frosted before bringing under glass, and had found that plants lifted from frames and brought into the house when the gardener is ready, do as well as those subjected to more elaborate preparation. Care must be exercised to avoid a check from binding in the pots. Delaying the lifting until actually needed obviates this difficulty.

J. B. D.

Madison, N. J.

Preparations for the Fall show was the main business of the evening at the last monthly meeting of Morris County Gardeners and Florists. President Duckham announced that he had secured the Madison Assembly Rooms for the dates selected, November 7 and 8, and in addition to the main hall he had arranged for a large adjoining room on the same floor, which would form a valuable annex and prove most suitable for the vegetable exhibits, which were a great feature last year and promised to be even more so this.

A general discussion then ensued which resulted in the drafting of a comprehensive schedule, which it is expected to have finally completed by the June meeting.

The special prize feature is being well worked up this year among those who have evinced great interest in the society, its meetings and shows, and although a number of donors have yet to be finally heard from some announcements were already made, showing what may be expected when the committee having this matter in charge has completed its labors.

H. McK. Twombly, Esq., offers a prize of $50 for 36 chrysanthemums in six varieties, six blooms of each. D. Willis James, Esq., offers one of $25 for 18 blooms in three varieties, while the "Fair Oaks" prize, donated by Mrs. G. F. Stone, will be $10 for 12 blooms in four varieties. These specials, supplemented by the society's appropriation in other classes, will make chrysanthemums a great feature, but groups of plants, roses, carnations and vegetables and fruit will be similarly provided for when the schedule is issued next month.

All things point to a highly successful exhibition next November, with substantial prizes announced early, giving growers ample time to prepare.

TEXAS STATE FLORAL SOCIETY.—The fifth annual chrysanthemum show of this society will take place at Waco, Tex., November 13 to 17 next. Mrs. M. D. Davis is secretary. E. H. Michel, St. Louis, will act as judge.

Firms Who Are Building.

BRACONDALE, ONT.—Messrs. Miller & Sons are preparing for an addition of 25,000 feet of glass.

A CHANCE FOR THE YOUNG MAN.

The third in this series of competitions closed May 7. The judges announce that they have awarded first prize to George H. Bowditch, Park Ridge, Ill. The paper submitted by James A. Lake, Concord, N. H., has also been considered worthy of recognition, and the publishers therefore have pleasure in awarding a suitable prize to Mr. Lake.

The subject for the next contest will be:

"The Horticultural Books I have read, and what I learned from them; the particular work that has been of most practical benefit to me, and why."

PRIZE—$4 worth of books or magazines, or $3 in cash.

CONDITIONS.

(1) Each MS. submitted must be written by an employee, without assistance, and the authenticity of these facts attested by the employer.

(2) No employee who has at any time contributed, or is now contributing to any florist trade journal, will be allowed to compete. Former competitors in this series are elegible.

MSS. must not exceed one thousand words in length.

All MSS. submitted in this competition to become the property of the publishers of the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE.

The awarding of the prize will be based on the most intelligent treatment of the subject, the diversity of the contestant's reading, and his ability to grasp the salient points presented in the books he has read; all as demonstrated in his paper submitted in the competition.

Competition will close June 7 next.

The Nineteenth Century Yearbook.

The Yearbook of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for 1899 is now in press and soon will be ready for distribution.

While the general arrangement of the volume is the same as has been followed for several years a new departure has been made in the selection of subjects and the character of matter which comprise the second part. In accordance with law, the first part is devoted to the annual report of the secretary. The second part consists of 26 papers, giving a comprehensive review of the progress and development of a century in almost every branch of scientific inquiry having a direct, practical bearing upon agriculture. These papers are largely historical and portray the development of science in its application to agriculture in the United States during the nineteenth century. Among those of greatest interest to our readers are:

"Progress in Economic Entomology in the United States," by L. O. Howard; "Agricultural Education in the United States," by A. C. True; "Progress in the Treatment of Plant Diseases in the United States," by B. T. Galloway; "The Relation of Chemistry to the Progress of Agriculture," by H. W. Wiley; "Progress of Forestry in the United States," by Gifford Pinchot; "Soil Investigations in the United States," by Milton Whitney; "Progress of Economic and Scientific Agrostology," by F. Lamson-Scribner; "Progress of Plant Breeding in the United States," by Herbert J. Webber and Ernst A. Bessey; "Agricultural Experiment Stations in the United States," by A. C. True; "Seed Selling, Seed Growing and Seed Testing," by A. J. Pieters; "Progress of Commercial Growing of Plants Under Glass," by B. T. Galloway; "Rise and Future of Irrigation in the United States," by Elwood Mead.

The third part, or Appendix, has been enlarged, and contains much information of value to all persons interested in scientific and practical agriculture. It is a convenient ready-reference book, containing not only the Department directory, the directory of colleges and experiment stations, list of state officials in charge of agriculture, secretaries of state agricultural societies, and officers of various agricultural and kindred associations, but information on agricultural topics of interest to all residents of rural districts. The Yearbook is a volume of 880 pages, and is illustrated with a frontispiece, 63 plates, and 33 text figures.

The regular edition is 500,000 copies, of which 470,000 are by law reserved for the exclusive use of Senators, Representatives and Delegates in Congress, and 30,000 are allotted to the Department of Agriculture. This allotment is fully consumed in the distribution to crop correspondents and others co-operating with the Department or rendering it some service.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Secretary of Agriculture, Congress has by resolution provided a special edition of the Yearbook for 1899, to be bound in extra binding, for distribution abroad during the Paris Exposition.

Doing Business Without Accounts.

The death of a locally well-known and successful business man in a Western city, which occurred quite recently, necessitated an adjustment of the interest of his heirs in the business of the firm of which he was an equal partner with another. This disclosed the fact that for 30 years the firm had kept no account books of any kind. It had done a strictly cash business and the partners divided each day's receipts every night before locking up, share and share alike. When a bill was received for goods purchased each partner pulled out his wallet and contributed one-half the sum needed. In this way they had gone on for more than a quarter of a century—making money, paying their debts, sleeping soundly at night, no doubt, and probably feeling very sorry for their less fortunate neighbors who could not make it go. The incident is extremely interesting, but it is instructive only as showing that where perfect good faith and confidence exists between those associated in business contracts are unnecessary and account books superfluous. Unfortunately, the basis for such a relation does not always exist between partners, and the truth expressed in the homely proverb that "good fences make good neighbors" applies equally in business alliances. As to the dispensing with books of account, the conditions under which that would be quite safe, though unusual, are much more frequent in business than might be supposed. We have known of a good many fortunes built up in just that way. One of the richest and most successful contractors and operators in franchises we know of can neither read nor write, keeps no books, never sends a letter, and if he receives one has to have it read to him. But he has a good memory, attends strictly to business, makes very few mistakes and is a multi-millionaire. The basis of every success so attained is—originally, at least—the cash basis, and, once established, this is rarely widely departed from. To buy for cash—discreetly, of course—is to leave the buyer room for a profit if he sells at the credit buyer's net cost. To sell for cash is to save a profit on the credit seller's interest charges and losses from bad debts. It is not the modern method, of course. It does not offer the road to quick fortune, but it has the incidental advantage of not offering any short cut to bankruptcy. If more of those starting in business would make the attainment and maintenance of the cash basis their objective point, and would confine their operations within the safe limits of their capital, however small this may be, assignments would be infrequent and the proportion of satisfactory business successes would be much larger than statistics now show it to be.—Metal Worker.

OBITUARY.

George A. Solley.

George A. Solley, formerly of Hartford, Conn., died at Memphis, Tenn., Wednesday, May 2. He was born in Ramsgate, Eng., in 1833. His youth was spent working in a nursery there. At the age of 19 he came to America and engaged with T. G. Yeomans, a nurseryman, of Walworth, N. Y. He was at one time a member of the Parce & Solley Nursery Company. He leaves a widow, two daughters and a son.

Chas. F. Baker.

Charles F. Baker, the well-known florist of Utica, N. Y., died suddenly Friday morning, May 11, while at work in his office, 59 and 61 Cornelia street. Mr. Baker's death was due to heart disease, from which he had long been a sufferer. During the past Winter he was for several months in a precarious condition, but lately his health had greatly improved and he was able to give daily attention to business. Deceased was born October 16, 1840, in the town of Marcy, near Stittville. His father, Warren Baker, was one of the pioneer settlers who came from New England, and was a prosperous farmer. Mr. Baker attended the public schools, and remained at his father's home until he reached his majority, when he established himself in the mercantile business, at Stittville, being the proprietor of a general store there. The discovery of oil in Pennsylvania attracted his attention in that direction. He went to Pithole, near Oil City, and opened a store, which he successfully conducted several years. He then went to Utica and became a salesman in a clothing establishment, continuing there until 1876.

The condition of his health was such as to compel him to seek outdoor occupation and he resolved to enter the florists' business, commencing with a small greenhouse, which gradually developed into one of the largest florists' establishments in Utica.

The deceased gentleman was a successful raiser of carnations, the varieties Oneida and Red Jacket, his introductions, being well known. His son, Frank J. Baker, has for some time practically had entire charge of the business. In April last he was admitted into partnership. Mr. Baker was a member of the Society of American Florists, the American Carnation Society, and when the Utica Florists' Club was in existence he served as treasurer of that organization. He was universally esteemed, honorable and upright in his business relations; intelligent, kind and companionable, devoted to his family, and loyal to his friends.

The deceased was twice married. A widow and three children mourn his loss.

The business will be continued under the firm name of Charles F. Baker & Son.

The Utica florists, at a meeting held in the store of Peter Crowe, at which about twenty-five were present, adopted the following resolutions on the death of Mr. Baker:

WHEREAS, the Supreme One, in His wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our midst Charles F. Baker, who, by his integrity, industry and estimable character, found a place in the hearts of those engaged in the trade with him, it is fit that we here assembled should express in some manner our high regard for him who has been taken from us; be it, therefore,

Resolved, That we express to the family our sincere sympathy in this their hour of darkness and sorrow; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the family of the deceased, and that we attend the funeral in a body.

Our Prize Competitions.

We desire to call the earnest attention of our readers to the Prize Competitions recently inaugurated by this journal for the purpose of stimulating an interest in and a better knowledge of several sections of the industry it covers.

To have the most successful results there must be an active competition; the publishers have done their part in the premises, and they hope their readers will be sufficiently aroused to do the rest.

There are now three different competitions running, as follows:

A CHANCE FOR THE YOUNG MAN. See this page.

COMMERCIAL HOME GROUNDS. See full terms and conditions, page 500, issue of May 12.

PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPETITION, that for this month closing on the 31st inst. Full explanatory particulars of this contest, which runs through every month up to and including September next, will be sent on application.

European Plant Notes.

The War and Trade.—The war is having an unmistakable effect upon florists all over the country. More particularly is it pressing hardly upon the little men who find themselves handicapped at every turn. As I forecasted in an earlier letter the labor problem has proved a big handful, and it is getting more difficult every day to get good men, even at a considerably higher wage than was given a twelvemonth ago. Then, the trade in cut flowers has been dumped down alarmingly. The man with money has so many calls nowadays upon his pocket that he feels constrained to economize somewhere, and, of course, it is upon the poor florist that he begins to practice first of all. In speaking to an emiaent tradesman the other day I was assured that the orders for cut flowers from a certain customer have fallen off $900 during the last six months, and that the war was to blame for it all. Even the meek-as-Moses man of flowers could scarce repress a grumble after this.

The arum season has been a good one if only we reckon the quantities of flowers that have been sent to market and sold. But the grower will not admit that the word sold represents the facts of the case; "given away" is his method of expressing it. Even after making a little allowance there is no denying it that prices have been low this year, and it does not need a very astute personage to forecast a big falling off in the next year's crop. I have heard more than one grower declare that this is the last season he is going to have anything to do with arums. One almost immediate result will be that stock will be cheap; that is, if these good malcontents do as they say.

The daffodil flux has not been characterized by anything remarkable so far; but then we cannot always have sensations served up on the bill of fare. To my way of thinking, decidedly the most promising thing of the season has been a cross between the polyanthus narcissi and the Poet's narcissus. The size and substance of the poet's flower and the fragrance of the polyanthus forms, as well as the number of blooms on an umbel, have been developed in the progeny, and the result is very noteworthy. The habit speaks of plenty of vigor, and the plants appear easy to do. It may be rather previous to be very sanguine, because only a few plants have been seen, but there is a good deal to justify the hope that the new break is going to do good service before long. Of the almost numberless other varieties which have been pasted upon the show board, and have even received certificate honors, the best far and away, in my opinion, is a Dutch variety called "Van Waveren's Giant." The flower is really a giant—full yellow, spreading cup and big lemon-yellow wings.

Petunia Charlotte.—Good, double white petunias are scarce, and yet they are eagerly snapped up. The new variety Charlotte, shown at the Royal Horticultural Society's meeting on April 24, is therefore all the more deserving of attention. An award of merit was given it then, and I shall expect to hear more about it when it gets better known. P. Erselinus, of Romford, holds the stock.—VIATOR.

Club Meeting.

The meeting on Monday evening last was again largely devoted to Convention matters, which under the able generalship of President O'Mara are progressing most favorably, all the work in connection therewith being well in hand. It was intimated that diagrams showing floor space for the trade exhibit would be distributed shortly, also that Manager Cleary had already received applications for about half the available space. Intending exhibitors should therefore lose no time in securing space, to save disappointment. Chairman Weathered of the Printing Committee reported gratifying success with the Souvenir Book advertising. Those who are to be advertisers in this book, regarding which many encomiums have been received by Mr. Weathered, should secure space at once, in order to help the committee facilitate the work of preparation.

A cup valued at $100 will be donated by Hitchings & Co., in the bowling contest. The alleys and grounds for the shooting competition have been secured, and everything points to a most enjoyable time.

The committee appointed to investigate the matter of lapsed members submitted a report, presenting most reasonable terms of re-instatement, which it is hoped will be largely taken advantage of by those who for one reason or other have meanwhile dropped from the ranks.

Daly Bros. showed a pink sport from geranium Contrast, of which they were asked to exhibit a larger specimen at some future time. Alex. J. Guttmann was proposed for membership. Mr. Ebbinger, of Holland, was a visitor. It is expected that a stereopticon lecture on flower photography will be provided by the entertainment committee at a meeting in the near future. The subject of the appointment of a superintendent for the horticultural exhibition was left in the hands of the Exhibition Committee and Board of Trustees.

The Market.

In our last week's letter we remarked that business was in a demoralized condition. We were then under the impression that trade had got about as poor as it was possible for it to get, but the torrid weather experienced at the beginning of this week, just about brought all the flower business to a standstill. The intense heat resulted in increasing the supply of flowers materially over the receipts of a few days ago and the same conditions shut off what little demand there was (excepting for steamer departures and funerals). The thermometer was climbing up in the nineties on the shady side of the street.

To give an idea of how flowers are selling we may state that white lilac is offered at $1 per barrel, carnations 25c. per 100, or from $1 to $2 per 1,000; ordinary outdoor lily of the valley, 50c. a 100; narcissus, 15c. and upward to 50c.; callas, $2 to $3 per 100; lilies, 30c. to 50c. per dozen.

Roses are the greatest drug in the market, and while a few special blooms may fetch a reasonable figure the majority of those disposed of go in straight slips at prices ranging from $2.50 to $5 per 1,000. In dozen lots special Beauty have realized 15c. each; by the hundred they could be had for 10c., but they were not wanted in such quantities. A few special Bridesmaid have brought 6c., but the number coming in of this grade is infinitesimal as compared with the total supply. Bride do not realize so well as the pink variety; this can only be accounted for by the cheapness of lilies and white lilac, and the demand being mostly for flowers for funeral uses. Pæonies have arrived in limited quantities. The supply of sweet peas is increasing, with little demand for them. Tulips are about over. Violets are only seen occasionally. Cattleyas are to be had anywhere from 25c. to 40c. each; smilax is not meeting with much demand, and has got down to 10c. and 12c.

Auction Sales.

The sales of bedding plants have been very large in the auction marts, and geraniums particularly are bringing good prices.

Among the Retailers.

Steamer trade is fairly good, but other branches of business are comparatively quiet. The excessive heat of Monday and Tuesday was more like that of midsummer than of May, and had a very depressing effect on the trade in general.

Brevities.

F. W. O. Schmitz, with his wife and family, sailed for Antwerp on the S. S. Southwark, Wednesday last.

Erast G. Asmus arrived home on Sunday from Paris, France.

W. F. Sheridan, chairman of the Reception Committee, calls for a meeting of the same in the clubrooms, corner of 27th street and Broadway, Monday the 27th inst., at 4:30 p. m.

At the recent show of the American Institute, the rose Queen of Edgely was awarded a silver medal. Julius Roehrs, Carlton Hill, N. J., took first prize for the display of orchids, and Lager & Hurrell second. Mr. Roehrs also took the premium for herbaceous calceolarias. Siebrecht & Son took first for cut roses and for h. p. roses in pots, also for violets, and a display of flowering shrubs. John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, was awarded first for collection of hardy herbaceous plants. Mr. Pettit, gardener to the Deaf and Dumb Institute, took second prize in the calceolaria exhibits.

Roses in California.

Generally speaking the nursery business here is on the move, more or less, for the entire year, stock in most all lines being carried in pots. In the matter of rose bushes very many of the retail buyers in this city do not know what a "dormant" rose bush is, having bought quite generally plants growing in tin cans, such as a lard pail or tomato can. Nearly all buyers in this city prefer to see plants in full foliage when purchasing, and not a few insist upon seeing the plants in bloom before buying having often paid for certain sorts which proved to be some others after maturity. For specimen plants and city trade we have this season used wooden boxes 7 inches square by 8 inches deep, which give a splendid root capacity; and plants can easily be transplanted from these to the open ground and with no tet-back to growth. We have used several thousand of them, and the public generally agree that they are rather ahead of tin cans.

We inclose herewith a photograph, taken last January, showing a partial view of our city salesyard located in the rear of our store and cellar. Unfortunately, your humble servant seems to be the most prominent feature of the illustration. The plants to the immediate front on the right are Maman Cochet, just potted up and not in foliage. The large plants next to the shed near store door are Marechal Niel, which are about 6 to 7 feet high and in full foliage, having been dug with the dirt on roots (balled) and transplanted to boxes.

Our basement for storing dormant plants runs full size of the store—about 30x100 feet. With us enormous cellar room is not necessary, as we are able to dig plants any day during the late Fall and Winter; in fact, having to strip the foliage from the wood regardless of time of digging.

BRIEFS FOR BUSY FLORISTS.

MARGUERITES, OR PARIS DAISIES.—Cuttings of these should be put in as soon as possible. Plenty of side shoots will be found at the lower part of the branches, and they need not be over 3 inches in length to make good cuttings. If the propagating bed is crowded, the Marguerite cuttings will strike just as well if four or five be put together in a 3-inch pot and placed in any shaded corner of the greenhouse.

COCOS WEDDELIANA.—There never seems to be too much stock of this useful palm, and those who utilize it in quantities cannot do better than procure young plants now and grow them along through the Summer. A common mistake made with the cocos is to over-pot it; this must be avoided to have well furnished plants. When repotting shift only into one size larger pots, drain thoroughly; do not have the soil fine and do not bury the neck of the plant. Keep them in a well-shaded house through the Summer. If the thermometer registers over 90 degrees they will thrive so much the better, provided they are kept sufficiently moist by regular syringings daily.

CYCAS STEMS.—To start these into growth the quickest way is, after they are potted, to plunge the pots to the rim into a moderate hotbed. A deep frame, with the sash heavily shaded, is an ideal place for them. The sash needs to be kept raised continually to admit air, and as soon as the crown of leaves is 4 or 5 inches long they must be removed to the greenhouse bench, where full light can be had. The stems can also be started without bottom heat, but much longer time is necessary. If potted and placed under the bench in the greenhouse, and kept just moist, they start well; and although they take a little longer time they make very satisfactory growth afterward.

FERN BALLS.—These are approaching their best now and have to be watched carefully that they do not suffer for water. When dormant they will stand almost any harsh treatment, from being dust dry to freezing; in fact, the Japanese dealers say they are better for being frozen slightly; but while they are growing they must not be allowed at any time to get dry and wilt, or their usefulness will be gone. When watering, lift them down and dip overhead in a pail filled with water, then every part of the ball will get thoroughly soaked.

ABUTILON SAVITZII is one of the most ornamental bedding plants we have. Last Summer it proved to be the best of anything in the line for light effect in the beds or borders. Where this plant has not been tried for such a purpose we can heartily recommend it, as in mixed bedding it can be used; and it will also add beauty to any basket, vase, window box or border.

Orchid Culture in Leaf Mould.

Epiphytal orchids, when cultivated in light leaf soil, seem to flower more abundantly than when grown in the ordinary way. The following is the course of procedure recommended by some Belgian growers: "For this culture orchids recently imported should be chosen. Sufficient drainage is placed in the pot and the plant is fixed upon the soil, which is slightly elevated to form a small hill in the pot. The surface is then covered with a layer of living sphagnum. The necessary degree of moisture to maintain the sphagnum always fresh is assured by syringing. No other vegetation, such as moss, fungus, etc., penetrates the soil, of which the roots of the orchids can thus make full use, without the air entering at the center of the pot. The soil should be thoroughly decomposed, and should consist of 30 per cent. of oak leaves, 15 of white beech, 15 of alder, 15 of ash, 15 of red beech, and 10 of coarse white sand. The exact proportion of each of these elements to be applied to one or the other kind of epiphytal orchids cannot be indicated with precision, but has to be found out by experience. The essential point in this method of culture is to place the plants as far as possible under circumstances which answer best to the natural conditions under which they are found in a wild state, and to water very carefully, avoiding every excess, as this compost is more retentive of moisture than the usual one of fibrous peat."—Orchid Review.

Pan-American News.

During the progress of the exhibition the Horticultural Department will hold several special displays of flowers. Premiums, medals and diplomas will be offered for the best exhibits in various classes at each exhibition. The announcement is thus early made so that intending exhibitors may have an opportunity to prepare suitable stock to produce exhibition quality. The dates are not definitely settled on, and in the case of roses it will be difficult to fix a date to suit wide degrees of latitude; but there is probably not more than two weeks difference between New York City and St. Paul, and the second week in June will find many fine flowers in both localities.

The second week of May will be devoted to carnations; roses the second week of June; sweet peas during the first or second week of July; gladioli, the first and second week of August; dahlias, the first week of September; cannas, the third week of September. The writer would be glad to hear from any who can suggest a better date to suit the majority of our Northern growers.

Culture of Lilies.

Read before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, by Joseph McGregor.

The question has been asked, which lily is the better, Harrisii or longiflorum? So far as my experience has been, I have never obtained the same results from longiflorum that I have from Harrisii, but I think this is on account of not being able to secure as large bulbs of longiflorum. It is claimed that the latter variety is less subject to disease than Harrisii. Both require about the same treatment.

WHEN TO POT THE BULBS.

It has been my custom to pot the bulbs just as soon as received—about the end of August—using any ordinary potting soil, such as is employed in growing roses and carnations; but I would not advise a very liberal use of manure at this potting. Much has been said and written as to whether it is best to pot the bulbs in the pots in which they are to bloom or place in a smaller size pot at first, and then shift the plants into larger size pots later. I have practiced both methods, with good results from each, but prefer to use the small-size pots when starting the bulbs, and then shift them later into larger pots.

For the largest size bulbs of Harrisii a 6-inch pot is best; medium bulbs, 5-inch, and small bulbs, 4-inch. After potting place them closely together in a cold frame, in any out of the way place, and give a good watering; cover to the depth of 2 inches with coal ashes or sphagnum moss. They will now require very little attention for the next two months; or until November 1, when they should be protected with sash or shutters at night, as they will now be pushing through the covering and must be kept from frost.

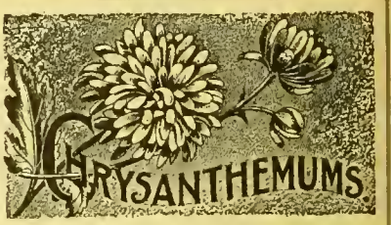
TIME TO REMOVE TO THE HOUSE.

Early in December the plants should be removed to a cool house and kept at a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees at night. By this time the pots should be well filled with working roots, and the plants should be 4 to 6 inches high. They should be shifted into their flowering pots, which should be two sizes larger than those in which they were started. Use good soil, well mixed with one-third well-rotted cow manure. After potting water well. Care must be exercised in watering; do not give too much until the roots have well taken hold of the new soil. When the plants get to be 16 to 18 inches in height they should be staked, otherwise the stems will get crooked and unsightly. The plants will now be in condition when they may be brought into bloom at the will of the grower.

TEMPERATURE.

If wanted to bloom April 1 the flower buds should show by February 10. To keep free from insects syringe occasionally with tobacco extract, or fumigate and water with liquid manure.

Lilies grown in this way will be very satisfactory, more so than those potted late and then finished by forcing in a temperature of 80 to 90 degrees, during the last two weeks before flowering as many growers do. And then they wonder why the plants collapse so soon!



The season for getting this crop into condition and planted is once more at hand. Many florists, I know, cannot plant their chrysanthemums until the bedding stock is disposed of, because their space is limited; but for the very finest flowers we like to plant in good season, to get a good "bottom" on the plants, before the extremely hot weather.

Where the head room is limited to 3 feet or so the benches should not be planted till well into June, and then only small plants used. Many flowers are spoiled every Fall for want of a little foresight at planting time. On side benches only the dwarf varieties should be set, such as Glory of the Pacific, Midge, Bonnaffon, and others.

In making up your mind what kinds to grow it is always well to study your own market, whether you intend to grow for a local trade, or wholesale. For New York market you must grow only clear decided colors. A good white, yellow and pink is all that is needed, and remember that very early kinds sold at a ridiculously low figure in New York last Fall.

For your local trade you doubtless have some varieties that your customers particularly fancied. Those are the kinds to handle, and you are the best judge as to whether you can handle many of the very early ones or not.

In regard to soil the chrysanthemum is not over particular so long as it is moderately rich and the drainage of the bench good. A good free loam, with a fair sprinkling of bone meal through it and a little well-rotted manure suits admirably.

We plant 10 inches apart and grow to single stem, and don't think it any too much when the plants get up 5 or 6 feet. For smaller-sized flowers, of course, the plants can be put in thicker; but we always like to be on top and get the highest price. After planting make the bench firm, the firmer the better, and then the plants make a firm, short-jointed growth, which, when well ripened in the Fall, is bound to produce high-class flowers.

After planting it is not wise to drown out the beds with water. Until the plants begin to make vigorous growth the soil immediately round each plant only should be watered, then the bed will not get soured. Bright, warm days the house should be sprayed well over—walls, paths, plants, and everywhere, to keep down the temperature. Such spraying also keeps down insects to a large extent. The black fly is by far the most troublesome insect that bothers the chrysanthemum, and is only got rid of by the persistent use of tobacco in any of its varied forms—dust, stems, or liquid. The green fly is quite a nuisance some years, and needs more looking for than the black fellow, because he always gets right in the tips of the shoots and injures the foliage while it is very small. There are several other kinds of insects troublesome in their season which will be dealt with some future time.

Nothing is gained without effort, and the man that starts in with the idea of growing good chrysanthemums will find it applies to his particular case just as much as if he were learning Greek or trying to figure out the Filipino question. Always try to get your plants clean as soon as they are planted, to give them every encouragement. I have seen plants growing that were wreaths of black fly, and the owner after a spasmodic effort to clean them late in the Fall figured out that it would have been cheaper to have grown nothing at all than grow chrysanthemums at the price he got. He was probably correct.

PRIZE COMPETITION.

SUBJECT—What Benefits Have I Received and Pointers Obtained from My Visits to Other Greenhouse Establishments and the Flower Shows?

FIRST PRIZE PAPER

By Geo. H. Bowditch, Park Ridge, Ill.

The pointers and benefits I have received in attending flower shows, and in visiting other greenhouse establishments are many, and some of them very valuable. I will take the flower show first.

I think one of the greatest benefits derived by florists from visiting flower shows is getting themselves acquainted with all the new plants and flowers, because they can there see them all staged together; they can compare them with each other and also with the older varieties. In visiting a show I always take a note-book with me and put down the names of all new varieties, their forms and colors, their bad and good points as I see them, and keep those notes for future reference. I examine the different classes of plants and cut flowers that are staged for competition; I find the ones which have the first, second and third-prize tags tied to them, and note the difference between them and those which did not take any prizes, thereby getting a pointer as to how good a flower or plant has to be, to be termed first-class, and which will generally take the prizes.

Then there are the table decorations, floral designs and the grouping of palms. In those classes I have received a great many pointers, by getting the different ideas of arrangement of my brother florists, all grouped together, where I could compare them, thereby obtaining the newest, from an artistic standpoint, and a knowledge of the different plants and flowers that are used to create the best effect.

Also the different pot plants, flowering and foliage. I note how they are trained, tied, and the shape and form of each, and the size of pots they are grown in. I get pointers as to which are the best for exhibition and commercial purposes. I can also see the different novelties under one roof, whereas if I did not attend the flower show I would have to spend a great deal of money and time to see all these.

Another great benefit I have received is in having the best products from greenhouses for miles around, all together, so that I could examine and compare them. Before leaving I take a general view of the show, noting the arrangement of everything to bring about the most artistic results.

The benefits and pointers I have received from visiting other greenhouse establishmeats are also many. In the first place I have made the acquaintance of a great number of my brother florists. I have got into conversation with them and found out their opinions on different subjects relating to the business. I have noted the different construction of greenhouses—the even span, long and short span to the south, also where the houses are built separate, or in blocks, and the size of glass, rafters and ventilators, which are mostly used. Then I have seen which houses are the best, those with butted glass or those with lapped glass. As far as I have observed I think the lapped glass the more preferable, as there is not so much drip as with butted glass, and it can be repaired easier. Then I have become acquainted with the different systems of heating, the up and down-hill and overhead ia hot water, and steam heating; the sizes of pipes mostly used and how they are arranged to get the best results. I have also seen the different makes of boilers and noted the good and bad points about them.

Then, too, I have noticed the effect which different soils have on flowers of the same kind and have seen which soil they liked the best; also the arrangement of the benches and which bring the best results. I have received a great many pointers on the different ways of propagating stock of all kinds, and have seen how plants grow when potted under different treatments. I have become acquainted with the different systems of tying and staking plants of all kinds, also the different ways of forcing bulbous stock and the plants and flowers not grown on the place where I work. I have also learned the natures of the different diseases of plants and the various insects that attack them, some of which I had never seen before. I inquire what treatment is given to get rid of them so that I may know what to do should they appear on plants which are under my care. Then I see the different ways of mulching, top dressing with pure manure and with half manure and half soil. I think the last the more preferable, unless the manure is well rotted. Also I have noted the several ways of feeding with manure water. The best I have seen is to have two large tanks, one raised higher than the other. Put the manure in the upper one, then fill it with water, allowing the mixture to stand to ferment, then strain off and run it into the lower tank and pump from there through pipes into the greenhouse, and water with the hose. I have also observed the different ways, and the plants that are used in filling window boxes, vases and hanging baskets; also how much nicer an establishment looks that is kept clean, with "a place for everything and everything in its place."

In conclusion, I think we all ought to visit each other more, exchange ideas, and keep up with the times in everything.

The Gardener, Florist and Flowers.

"There is something or some line that every florist may become especially skilled in. When one makes a great success in any one branch he is justly recognized as an expert. Such persons are sometimes called 'cranks.' However, when any florist has reached the point where he is called a crank he should go around behind his best greenhouse and heartily shake hands with himself and say, and say it out loud, too: 'Well, old boy, let me congratulate you; you have become a success and are Now envied.' Success in any occupation is not stumbled into. There must be ability, capacity and ambition to bring it about. The true student of nature—and there are many of them who modestly allow themselves to masquerade as simple florists or gardeners—soon becomes a veritable artist. His discernment of artistic effects becomes exceedingly acute, and nature in all her varied forms and moods is studied with pleasurable interest.

"The coming exhibition of the American Carnation Society will be a historical event in the annals of this club. Every member should feel it his duty to aid the worthy president of this club to help give himself and the other members of that society a royal welcome, to extend to them the genuine proverbial Maryland hospitality. I have noted that some of the sayings of the members of this club are in a degree paradoxical. They complain that flowers are sold in the markets at such low prices they cannot make the business pay any longer. If some of them expect to get any longer prices than they asked in the markets the Saturday before Easter Sunday, it will not matter what the market hucksters sell their truck for. The next thing I have noticed of the florist who makes such complaints is that he has started to build one or more new greenhouses, probably to further add to his poverty list.

"Since my association with this club I begin to flatter myself that I have become quite a student of florists' styles. Often I see a handsome woman come sauntering down the street behind a huge corsage bouquet. I study it—the bouquet I mean, of course—I want to satisfy myself whether I can tell by the make-up of the bouquet if it is a Hallidayian, a Feastanian, Seidewitzian, Smithsonian, Grahamania, Cookania, Bergerainan or not.

"There are some shrewd florists. The poem of 'The Man With the Hoe' doesn't fit many florists. I once read of an American florist who advertised in foreign papers giving an elaborate description of 'the Great American velvet plant.' All his orders were filled with the mullein plant. Another florist, a student of human nature, once sold to a rich customer whose financial resources were greater than his floral information a big order of plants. He called everything by their highfalutin Latin names, so that the purchaser didn't know what he was buying. He didn't know what is in a name. The customer came back, however, and reported that there had been some mistakes, as the helianthus that was sent him was nothing but a devilish big sunflower, the celosia was nothing but a blamed little sawed-off coxcomb, salvia was only sage, and the amaranthus was nothing but the princess feather."

Grand Rapids.

The weather has turned from frosty nights to torrid Summer heat, and flowers are becoming very plentiful. It is inferior stock that is a drug; all first grade flowers selling. Prices remain the same as in my last report. Great preparations are making for Decoration Day business.

Through a fire which occurred in the Farmers' Market House, May 14, M. L. Mowns, florist, was a loser to the extent of $5,000.

(112) These Bulbs Got Mixed.—I bought 100 bulbs each of Lilium Harrisii and L. longiflorum. One lot was Japan and the other Bermuda-grown. After potting both kinds in 6-inch pots they became so mixed in handling that I don't know which was which. One kind started much earlier than the other, came up to about 2 feet on the average, and bloomed in good time for Easter. The other kind started slowly and the plants were all dwarf, about 9 inches, and very unsatisfactory in every way. Can you from this description tell me which was Harrisii and which longiflorum, so that I may know which to grow next year?—J. H. W.

—The bulbs that started first and came in easily for Easter were the Harrisii. Longiflorum are always the later of the two, providing the same treatment be given to both.

(113) Soil for Roses and Carnations.—J. W.—The best soil for roses and carnations is the top, 5 or 6 inches, taken from an old pasture. Make it into a pile and mix with it one-fifth of rotted stable or cow manure.

(114) Tying Carnations.—J. W.—There are many ways of tying up carnation plants. The method we prefer is to run wires directly over the space between the rows of plants longitudinally; then run string crosswise, fastening to each wire. It will be necessary to have the first length about 8 or 10 inches from the bed; the second length need not be put in until the plants need it. With this method no sticks are required, and by being adjusted occasionally the foliage goes straight up through the squares formed by the wire and string. There are also on the market some good wire devices for staking carnations any of which is to be preferred over the wooden sticks.

A petition has been presented praying for the voluntary dissolution of the W. S. Little Company, and an order has been made returnable the last Monday in June.

The petition states: "The business for which this company was formed has not been successful or lucrative." It is further stated that the petitioners have lost all the money they invested for capital stock. There are no creditors, they say, and no debts. As a further reason for the dissolution of the corporation they state that the firm name "W. S. Little Company" has been many times confused with the firm "W. S. Little & Co.," another corporation doing a nursery business. Their mail has become mixed up, and the two corporations confused in other ways.

Newport, R. I.

Pansy Cottage, the Summer home of Mr. W. Storrs Wells, at the corner of Bellvue and Ruggles avenues, this city, was completely destroyed by fire Friday evening, 4th inst. The grounds have justly been considered among the best kept in Newport, and the loss is all the more regrettable as a considerable part of the lawn had been regraded and almost completed, as was a large addition which has been made to the house during the Winter, there being over 50 men employed at the time on the interior finishings. The work was being rushed so as to have the house ready for occupancy the present season. The building is almost a total loss, and is said to be insured for $200,000.

Hose Co. No. 3, manned chiefly by gardeners and florists, were the first on hand. Reaching the scene about 8:20 p. m. they held to their posts until 6 a. m. Saturday morning, at which time the photograph was taken.

I regret that through extreme modesty several of the members fail to appear in the picture, among them Andrew S. Meikle, the gardener at Pansy Cottage.

State of Trade.

The flower business is summerish in the extreme—even before its time. It fell off immediately after Easter, and will now hardly improve before Decoration Day, when it is hoped a better clearance at fair prices will result. Then comes the school commencement demand; afterward a settling down to Summer conditions.

The past week has seen big stocks of roses and carnations thrown on the market. Owing to four days of excessive heat—80 to 87 degrees—nearly all roses opened on exposure, and in too many instances have had to be disposed of for what could be got for them. The color of Bride suffers badly; Meteor is better, and Reinberg's Golden Gate is good, with some monster flowers but deficient in foliage.

Carnations are also very abundant, with good standards now at $1 per 100. Chinese pæonies are coming in, but so far find no great demand. Some good parrot tulips and poet's narcissus are seen, otherwise bulbous stock is about over. There are still plenty of lilies, with slow sales.

Bedding out is now in full swing, and there is no reason why a fair price should not be obtained for all the good stock there is in this market.

The show of 36,000 tulips, in front of the palm houses in South Park, was one of the best displays of tulips ever seen in this city. The colors were well assorted, and all the bulbs bloomed at the same time.

Among Growers.

The exhibits of W. N. Rudd, of Mt. Greenwood, will be missed this year at the Fall exposition, as he is growing no plants for that purpose. Two of the old houses are to be rebuilt. A splendid lot of sturdy zonal geraniums are finely in flower. They are not forced into growth and have reasonable room to grow in.

Mr. Williams, the new foreman, says there is scarcely any sale for singles. Their prime favorites are Heteranthe, John Doyle, Miss Frances Perkins and a pink and white, name not known. They have a fine lot of new kinds, from Ward, which they will put out on trial; also some charming pelargoniums. Among them—real acquisitions in this market—may be noted Dorothy, a soft rosy salmon, dark maroon blotches richly shaded with plum color around the throat; Emperor of Russia, deep purplish maroon with white margin; H. M. Stanley, lower petals soft carmine, upper ones deeper with maroon blotch; Mme. Thibaut, white blotched and marked rose upper petals crimson maroon, white center, petals ruffled; Mrs. R. Sandiford, snow white, faint blotches; Victor, bright cherry red with white markings, upper petals heavily spotted, and Captain Raikes, bright crimson, black blotch. A fine strain of a single petunia is a great favorite with lot owners. Carnations here this year are planted in the field again. The principal varieties to be grown are Crane, The Marquis, Maceo, White Cloud and two seedlings, No. 1, of Daybreak style, and No. 6, a dark red.

The chrysanthemums are all in pots ready for planting when room can be given; the number to be grown is about 5,000.

They have a very useful dwarf canna of their own raising, with dark foliage—just the thing for planting in baskets, vases and the like. It is a fine, bold, dark crimson flower.

Joseph Klimmer, Oak Park, being near cemeteries, is just beginning the Spring trade. As is usual in this city only double geraniums pay to grow. His general stock consists of Alphonse Ricard, Beaute Poitevine, J. J. Harrison and La Favorite, but he is working up a stock of Mme. Jaulin. A general assortment of bedding plants, including the Vernon section of begonias, suitable for cemetery trade, is grown. He has two houses of carnations still in good shape. America is better with him than Crane. As a white he thinks much of Glacier. Cerise Queen is no good; Mrs. Frances Joost did not pay—late in coming in. Melba is good and sells well, as does Mrs. James Dean. He still grows Triumph and Scott for general stock.

The George Wittbold Co. has begun the erection of two houses, each 27x125 feet, to be rushed through as soon as possible. George M. Garland has the contract, and also the wrecking of the old R. J. Lewis place, on Racine avenue, that the Wittbolds have purchased. They will also rebuild connecting houses, front and rear of their Buckingham place. They have planted four tons of cycas stems with three tons more on the way. They are also receiving heavy shipments of palms from Germany, of kinds they cannot grow fast enough to supply their trade. A fine business this year is doing in ground work, and planting suburban residence lots.

John Lang, on Robey street, has a few city lots on which is a greenhouse plant covering 101x100 feet, with half a dozen frames of same lengths as houses. There is also just enough land to grow carnations for his own use. He raises 7,000 chrysanthemums also. As the location is in a part of the city well settled by mechanics and the working classes he has a fair home trade in flowers. His great aim is to so work his houses as to give all possible room to bedding plants in the Spring. To that end he has now some 80,000 plants that will easily find sale between now and the end of the season. Naturally, zonal geraniums stand at the head with 25,000, of which Rev.

The Late Charles F. Baker.

Atkinson, Clifton, La Favorite, Mme. Charles Moline, Mary Hill, S. A. Nutt, Heteranthe and Centaur are the leaders. He at one time depended upon cut flowers to a large extent, but in this later day of monster cut flower farms he has wisely sought other methods, and by always keeping the houses well filled, his is an example that there is still a chance for the smaller places, even if the houses are of the older type, and the location not the best for pure air.

Fred. Hills, Maywood, is building a house 30x127 feet. When completed it will be planted with chrysanthemums, Asparagus Sprengeri and mignonette. The house is detached and on the back is a mushroom shed, 12x127 feet.

Trade Stationary.

Business remains about the same as last reported, with plenty of stock to fill all orders. Sweet peas are now coming in quite plentifully, and sell fairly well. The general price is 50c. per 100.

I notice your St. Louis scribe is somewhat amazed at my statement regarding the amount of money taken in by the growers attending our flower market the Saturday before Easter. Possibly a short sketch of this market might not be out of order: Fifty-seven growers attend the market house, which, by the way, is a building costing $15,000 and is occupied by florists exclusively, growers only holding stands. At Easter time you all well know that the grower makes his best effort to have plenty of stock for the occasion, and every stand is loaded with cut flowers and plants. Of course, the grower having the choicest material reaps the largest harvest, and many of the standholders sell from $150 to $300 worth upon this occasion. So you can easily figure out the total.

Club Meeting.

Saturday evening last was the regular meeting night of the Florists' Society. Nominations were made from which to select directors for the coming year. The annual meeting takes place June 9, and it is earnestly requested that all members will make a special effort to be present. The Summer meetings will be held at the residences of several of the craft, and invitations are already coming in. We have found these meetings to be very beneficial in many respects. They not only keep the society working, but create a degree of good fellowship that can be got in no other way.

Market News.

Owing to the extreme warm weather the cut flower business has gone from bad to worse. On three days this week the thermometer registered 90 degrees and over in the shade. This cut down transient trade and made the production of flowers larger; all kinds of stock are a complete glut, with no established price—everything is in favor of the buyer. Around the commission houses it is difficult to find room for the flowers; in fact, many are sold to the street men direct from the boxes.

All the growers of bedding plants are doing a splendid business; many things are already sold out. Cannas are now in great demand, as also are geraniums; many large growers are sold out of both.

Visitors in Town.

Penna. Hort. Society.

At the monthly meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society on Tuesday evening there were some good exhibits of hybrid calceolarias in competition for the Ridgway Prize. Thos. Roberts, gardener to Col. E. Y. Morrell, Torresdale, was first, and Wm. Kleinheinz, gardener to Mr. P. A. B. Widener, Ogontz, second. For the Michell Prizes, for herbaceous or shrubby calceolarias, Geo. A. Brown, gardener to Mr. Robt. N. Carson, Chestnut Hill, was first, and John Thatcher, gardener to Mr. Edw. Le Boutillier, Wynnewood, second. For cauliflower, Jas. Campbell, gardener to J. D. Winsor, Haverford, took first; Jos. Hurley, gardener to Mr. Jas. M. Rhodes, Ardmore, second. The latter exhibitor also staged a splendid collection of gloxinias in 4-inch pots, well flowered and with very robust foliage. These had been grown for the past two months in a medium temperature with sphagnum moss banked up between the pots. Alphonse Pericat, gardener to Mrs. Geo. B. Wilson, exhibited a plant each of Cattleya intermedia alba, and Cattleya Skinneri alba; these were awarded a silver medal and certificate in the order given. DAVID RUST.

Chestnut Hill, Pa.

For calceolarias, William Kleinheinz, gardener to Mr. P. A. B. Widener; three ferns in not over 6-inch pots, Geo. W. Brown, gardener to Mr. Robert N. Carson; three heads cauliflower, Wm. Robertson, gardener to Mr. J. W. Pepper; three heads lettuce, John Little, gardener to Mr. John Lowber Welsh; one bunch of asparagus of 25 stalks, Harry Harris, gardener to Mr. Gratz. First prize for rhubarb also went to Wm. Robertson, while the premium for the best specimen palm was taken by Geo. W. Brown. Wm. Boyce, gardener to Randal Morgan, Esq., was awarded first for the best collection of vegetables, and Frank Gould, gardener to Mr. J. T. Morris, first for best collection of herbaceous cut bloom. The following items were also of special interest: A collection of very fine double flowering wallflower, grown by Frank Gould; a grand vase of assorted roses, exhibited by Mr. Kleinheinz; specimen plant of weigelia (Eva Rathke) in full bloom, exhibited by Messrs. Landreth & Sons. Robert E. Carey, gardener to Mr. Thos. C. Price, was also given notice for a handsome vase of mixed carnations, and Michael Punch, gardener to Mr. R. Le Boutellier, was awarded special mention for a well-flowered plant of Maxillaria tenuifolia. Another novelty was a small plant of edelweiss (Leontopodium alpinum,) shown by Albert Knapper, of Frankford, Pa.

Ten were admitted to membership and 14 persons proposed. The society is going forward at a good pace, and the indications are that with the end of our first year we will have a fairly established institution. J. H. H.

Trade Items.

But little fault could be found with trade the past week—a number of funerals, wedding and dinner decorations having taken place which used up quantities of flowers. Roses are fairly good in quality, and the supply is about equal to the demand. Carnations are not overabundant; whites were very scarce the past week owing to the large demand for them. Sweet peas, all colors, are plentiful, but not much called for; quantities of them are used in funeral work. Bulbous stock is over for this season. Some very fine gladiolus and valley are being received.

The pansy plant trade is about over; this branch of the business is getting less satisfactory each year for the florists, the plants being sold by so many grocery stores and meat markets. A few years ago the florists had no trouble in disposing of all their stock at 50c. a dozen; now the grocer or meat man sells pansies at from 25c. to 35c. a dozen. The plants are raised by the near-by farmers and brought to the city by the wagon load.

The bedding plant trade has not fairly commenced yet, owing to the cold weather. The frosts last week did considerable damage to the fruit trees around here, also to the few bedding plants which had been set out. The growers are looking for a rush when trade does open up.

Notes.

John Speelman, of Speelman & Son, Holland, was a recent visitor; he was accompanied by his wife. Mr. Speelman was contemplating buying a Columbia bicycle while in this city to take back to Holland, but I did not learn whether he made his purchase or not.

C. K. Swenson had the decorations for the Schultz-Taft wedding Wednesday at St. John's Church. It was one of the largest weddings that has taken place here in some time.

John Coombs furnished the floral decorations for the Alpha Delta Phi dinner which was given at the Allyn House Friday night. The decorations were composed of asparagus, lily of the valley, roses and carnations. Covers were laid for 125, and at each plate was a boutonniere of lily of the valley.

Syracuse, N. Y.

The value of having a live horticultural society in a community could not be better illustrated than by the successful efforts of the Central New York Horticultural to inculcate a greater love of flowers among the people, and Mr. A. D. Perry, who was its able president for many years, and labored so hard to keep the society together in its younger days, must feel gratified at the results.

The season here is very backward. Last week the weather was quite cold, with several snow flurries; and on the 6th there was 5 degrees of frost. The fruit buds were not sufficiently advanced to receive much injury. H. Y.

Three Newport bowling teams went to Fall River May 10, and rolled a match on the Casino alleys. The teams were the Artillery, Gardeners and Columbia, the Artillery winning by a large margin, scoring 1,879, the Columbins making 1,598, and the Gardeners 1,497. The Gardeners were short one of their regular players.

Philadelphia.—The florists' team has entered the national bowling match to be held in Schutzen Park, West Hoboken, N. J., July 15-22 next.

To the Florists' National Bowling League.

Greeting:

To an enthusiast of this, which may be called the national game of the American florists, it is a great pleasure to peruse the scores and read the various accounts of the games as they appear weekly in the trade papers, and note the interest that is taken in the contests at the various floral centers of the country. An evening now and then passed in the company of congenial spirits engaged in friendly rivalry at a game of ten pins is not, as some who take a narrow view of life seem to think, time wasted. Such an occasion brings together socially and affords much needed recreation to men whose business demands almost their whole attention, but who manage to get an hour or two occasionally to engage in this popular game and derive much benefit from the amusement and exercise it affords them.

The inter-city matches that take place from time to time are very interesting events, and a source of great pleasure to the contestants as well as their friends who come to cheer them on to victory, or condole with them in defeat, as the case may be. Whatever the result of the game, however, it has no serious effect on the spirits of the players; they have gathered together, had a good time socially, and return home much benefited by their outing.

The last national tournament during the convention at Detroit, and others that have gone before, still linger as pleasant memories, and from the reports of the games now coming in weekly it is seen that the interest is being kept up, with the hope, no doubt, of capturing some of the prizes at the coming contest during the meeting of the S. A. F. in New York next August.

This tournament promises to eclipse all previous contests, and will doubtless exceed in magnitude all similar events that have yet been held. It is safe to say that more clubs will be entered and many more prizes offered than ever before. The New York Club has already secured several valuable trophies, and the National Association also have, in addition to its sweepstake prize of $100 or over, had given to it several handsome cups to be offered as its committee deem best.

In order that there shall be no confusion, and that everything in the matter of prizes and schedule shall be ready when the time for the contest arrives, I have appoiated a committee to attend to these important matters, and assist the officers of the national organization in carrying them out. This committee is composed of the following gentlemen: John Westcott and George C. Watson, of Philadelphia, and Wm. J. Stewart, of Boston.

I would suggest that the clubs in the different cities who intend taking part in this tournament get together individually and talk the matter over. The committee would be glad of any suggestions that the clubs have to make that will further the interests of the game. The rules adopted at the last meeting of the League in Detroit seem all right. I might call attention to the rule which says "That all contestants shall be members of the S. A. F., identified in some manner with the business and a member also of the florist's club of the city he represents." While it is a hardship to those who after coming a long distance find they are short a man, it is at the same time not fair to fully equipped teams to allow perhaps a strong bowler substituted, as it leaves them open to the imputation that the omission was intentional, with the idea of thus gaining strength. Any city who desires can enter the tournament with members from their florists' club, and of the S. A. F. as well, without belonging to the Florists' National Bowling League. Membership in this organization costs each club $10 per year, the membership fee being used as a sweepstake to purchase prizes to be bowled for by the members of the organization only.

Several of the clubs have already forwarded their dues for this year to the treasurer, Mr. J. F. Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and I would request all others who desire to join the League to forward the amount to him at once, as with the membership known the committee can work more intelligently, and having the prizes in readiness before the contest can arrange the schedule so that all shall have an even chance to win.

ROBERT KIFT.

HITCHINOS & CO., 233 MERCER STREET, N. Y.

Buffalo.

Though late in arrival Spring weather now prevails with a showing of cherry blossom displays, and the occasional tulip beds on the city lawns vie with the dandelions now most noticeable everywhere.

Cold weather that was inclined to frosty up till several days ago retarded the plant trade, the which is now starting in, and orders are said to be booking freely. Bedding pansies in flower are noticeably fine and attractive, and plentiful, too—a very fair grade retailing at but 25c. per basket of a dozen clumps.

Last week the flower trade was generally dull, with roses really too abundant to be salable. Buyers hardly seemed to care for them, and Saturday may have been called a "rose day." A department store and also a restaurant, both in the shopping district, seemed to vie in giving out gratis the largest numbers to lady callers. One florist establishment also advertised a special sale at 25c. per dozen, and it is reported that several thousand roses were here thus parted with. Only 40c. a dozen was an asking price in the Chippewa Market for good quality, and Main street stores offered freely at 5c. each.

Jottings.

C. F. Hageman, of New York, was a recent caller, and mentions a satisfactory state of order-taking in his business.

S. A. Anderson was in Philadelphia last week, buying palms, we understand.

Dan'l. B. Long has removed his publishing business to Room 30, of the Lewis block, Swan and Washington streets.

J. H. Gould, of Middleport, was in town on Saturday. He mentions such a recently increasing cut flower trade in his vicinity that he inclines to give the retail trade his better applied attention, and contemplates opening a branch in Medina most directly.

C. S. Ford arrived in town on Saturday of last week. The receipt by him of the unexpected news of the death of his brother caused him to break off his present trip, he leaving at once for his home.

Chas. Kromback, whose greenhouses are close adjoining Greenwood Cemetery, reports business in a very prosperous state this Spring. For the planting of cemetery lots pansies have been used to a larger extent than was ever before known. The prevailing taste tends to planting in blocks of separate colors. Mr. Kromback has a strain of these which, by the way, were raised from imported seed, that are of more than average size and very beautiful in their colorings; and to compare them with other strains, by which they are growing side by side, they make the latter shrink into insignificance. Although the Spring may be termed a backward one, it is a noticeable fact that the planting of geraniums and such bedding plants is more advanced this year than has been the case in previous ones at the same period. Mr. Kromback has already planted over 15,000 geraniums, with other plants in proportion. The demand for carpet bedding shows a decided increase, and this fact is welcomed by all cemetery florists. There is a great scarcity in this neighborhood of English ivies, and the price of them has advanced materially, proving a good thing to those who were fortunate enough to have some stock on hand.

Bangor, Me.

The weather in this vicinity is very cold and damp with recurring cold rains. Heavy frosts were experienced in the last couple of weeks. This has a retarding effect on bulbous stock for Memorial Day. Spring cuttings, carnations, spiræas, violets, etc., are for the most part out. The florists all report business fairly good.

Carl Beers has launched out as a horticultural auctioneer, holding weekly sales, with a success hardly to be expected in a locality small as ours, but he is a hustler, and it is the novelty of the thing that attracts. The sales were first held in the Winter Garden, which is now much too small and necessitates opening a large store on Main street, where future auctions will be held. Branches are to be opened in Ellsworth, Dover, Belfast and Houlton, in which latter place a greenhouse will be erected this year. In addition to his large area of glass at present under cultivation, four large, commodious modern houses are to be built this year for roses and carnations; the heating apparatus to be hot water under pressure.

Bedding stock this year is of the finest.

St. Louis.

Railroad Strike Hurts Trade.

This city is suffering the inconvenience and loss attending a long and determined street railway strike. All this week business has been practically at a standstill in the downtown places; uptown and in the suburbs it has not suffered quite so much, although things are bad enough all around. Stock is abundant, on which no price can be set. Some carnations were sold as low as $4 per 1,000, and lots are going to waste. All festive events that can be are postponed. Small car deliveries are troublesome and in some cases almost impossible. Some of our wholesale men advised their consignors of the state of affairs, and these parties, in consequence, reduced shipments, which will be to their benefit, as nothing can be done here until after the strike is settled, which, we are sorry to say, is uncertain, as both sides do not seem inclined to give in.

The greenhouse men put in a busy week bedding out; the weather is very favorable for the work. Market sales have been paralyzed—almost nothing doing the entire week. This is bad, as the first week in May is the very best for the craft, except Easter week.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting was held on the 10th inst., the attendance, owing to season and lack of transportation, being only seven. Everything, including the mixed flower show, was laid over till next month.

Notes.

We are sorry to report that John M. Hudson is quite ill.

John Steidel has finished a fine new house, 20x25 feet, for carnations. There is no better stock sent to this market than is produced by Mr. Steidel.

Owing to the mild Winter and favorable Spring the display of hardy shrubs is unusually fine this year—weigelias, Spiræas Reevesii, Van Houtei and snowballs are as good as they can possibly be, as is the outlook for h. p. roses and pæonias, both of which will be in bloom very shortly. C. C. S.

Toronto.

Trade News.

Business during the past week was very good. Until Sunday the weather was quite cool, and roses came along in good shape, but somewhat slowly for the time of the year. Since then we have had very hot days, and stock has come in very lively; but there is no overstock as yet and as the weather is much cooler now, and the demand still good, the bloom that has been rushed on with the heat is likely to work off all right. The beds of bulbous plants in our public parks are looking grand. Thousands of tulips and hyacinths are out, and as the weather has been, and is very dry, our people are taking full advantage of the show. There has been a wonderful change in the parks of our city during the last few years. More bulbs are now used in each of our parks than were planted in the whole of them five years ago. In several of the beds pansies will succeed the tulips, and the pansies will be replaced later on by exotic bedding plants.

Funeral Designs.

The trade in funeral designs here has been very good this season. The style of these has considerably improved and artistic and beautiful pieces are now the rule. Most of the designs called for here now are of a simple character, in which the finest long-stemmed flowers can be used—handsome long-stemmed roses and cycas leaves; cycas leaves and callas; wreaths of galax leaves with a large bunch of fine roses at one side, etc.; of course, there are many formal pieces still employed, but they are not so fashionable as they were.

On Saturday last St. Lawrence Market was dressed for Spring; the flower stands were all filled with good stock, and a very fair business was done. Nearly all the material offered was bright and clean, the most noticeable stock being the pansies of Fogarty and Dean, which sold well. T. M.

Washington, D. C.

Ex-President S. A. F. Wm. F. Gude has suffered a sad bereavement in the death of his youngest boy. The funeral took place May 7 last.

Pittsburg.

Trade Notes.

Funeral work was the main feature of the week's business. Flowers are very abundant and prices mighty unsteady. Outdoor material is very plentiful and is hurting sales of other stock. Lilacs sold remarkably well, but are not so plentiful this season.

Plant business is going pretty lively, the warm spell helping it much, people being anxious to plant. For three days the heat was a little too much for stock under glass, the thermometer reaching way up in the eighties in the shade. It is also bad for stock planted out, for rain is badly needed.

Jottings.

C. H. Harrison, who a short time ago was promoted from assistant superintendent of Schenley Park to a better position in Highland Park, is again chosen for a still and more important position—that of superintendent of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers of the City of Pittsburg.

G. H. CRANE

THE BEST SCARLET CARNATION EVER INTRODUCED.

We have the finest and best selected stock of this Carnation in the country. We have 25,000 selected cuttings now ready, and can ship promptly on receipt of order.

Price, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL MACEO

THE BEST CRIMSON CARNATION.

Pure, Rich, Clear, Effective Color, the Best Keeper of all Crimsons. The Most Profuse Bloomer of all. Produces 25 per cent. More Flowers than any other Carnation we have ever grown. Sells Out Clean in Quantity. Is Liked by Everybody.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GENERAL GOMEZ

Some growers who have not grown Maceo think this is the best of the two varieties. Our experience shows Maceo to be the most profitable of the two. Gomez has a longer stem, is lighter in color and sells at 20 per cent. higher price than Maceo.

If you are in doubt as to which to plant, buy an equal quantity of each variety. That will enable you to determine which is best suited for your requirements.

SEED TRADE REPORT

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

The Philadelphia Ledger is authority for the statement that "a flower seed industry, employing 200 hands, is to be established at Paradise, Lancaster County, Pa."

Long Island Seed Crops.—What are the prospects for the coming seed crop? is the cry from every quarter that looks to Long Island for its specialties. Just at this time it is a difficult question to answer. It is safe to say that Long Island will hardly honor all the drafts that will be presented for this year's crops, because of the fact that there was not nearly the acreage of cabbage and kale put out that was expected—this because of drought and insect pests innumerable last season. Many of the growers lost their plants by the grasshoppers, and others could not set their plants for the want of water, which was a necessity. The situation is about as follows:

CABBAGE—But little more than half the amount contracted for was set, but what there is out was never in finer condition; the stems are strong and perfectly healthy—not the slightest indication of stem rot, which is the only trouble that would present itself as yet. The plants are making a vigorous growth and are already coming into flower. Now commences the critical period with the cabbage seed crop. If we can have dry weather for the next three weeks there will be the best show for a large yield per acre ever known on the Island, excepting for the Wakefield varieties, which, as a rule, are smaller than the other sorts. If, on the other hand, we should have rainy weather, as was the case the past two years, the crop will be ruined, as fertilization cannot be effected here under such conditions. All we can say is the prospects for the acreage set was never better. After the seed pods are well filled, blight, mildew and aphis are to be dreaded, and the conditions that will insure us against the two former are quite liable to bring the latter, which, at the best, renders the crop a most uncertain one.

KALE was looking better than we anticipated, but the heavy rains of the past few days may have prevented fertilization, as most of the Scotch is coming well into bloom. Should the rain stop short now, as it seems likely to do, we have hopes of a fair crop. The Siberian is coming on fairly well, but the drought kept it back in October, and the plants are not all sufficiently strong to send up their flowering stalks. However, growth is now rapid and under favorable conditions we hope for an average crop.

SPINACH is starting finely, we might say never better, which is all that can be said at present, it being too early to make anything like a safe calculation. At the best the crop here is of but little importance, as under the most favorable conditions we cannot hope for more than 40,000 pounds.

RUTABAGAS—The small acreage out is looking as well as it is possible to do, but the amount is too small to make any showing in the trade.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS are coming on fairly well, but this is a crop you can estimate after it is secured, but never before.

BEANS.—For Long Island, which is not a bean growing country, there is quite a large acreage planted, the product being, to a large extent, for the Southern market. All that can now be said for this crop is, the "come up" is thus far very satisfactory.

European Notes.

Another sharp frost, with a probability of repetition, has cut down dwarf and pole beans, cucumbers, vegetable marrows and potatoes. Within two days we shall know if our second sowings of cabbages, etc., have suffered to the same extent as before. If they have there is no probability of our being able to resow with any chance of success. The young and tender shoots of plants growing for this year's crops have been severely nipped; but where the plants are not past recovery fresh shoots may amply compensate for the injury thus done.

Spinach, radish, cress, sweet peas and such like articles, "make haste slowly," and will need a lot of helping on to bring them into the barn in the proper season.

The season for market seeds is now practically over, and on the whole it has been quite disappointing. A lot of seed has changed hands, but the margin of profit has been very small and in some cases nil. Several of the best informed dealers prefer to hold over good stocks for a possible revival of trade in the Autumn, but only new seed is adapted for this purpose. Rape still keeps high, and holders confidently expect much higher figures in the early Autumn. As regards mustard high prices are easily obtained just now, but as a very large acreage has been sown for next season it will in all probability be obtainable after harvest on very reasonable terms.

Thousand-headed kale has proved a veritable gold mine to the few fortunate possessors, for it is being sold to-day at an advance of from 500 to 600 per cent. above the price quoted 18 months ago. As a sheep feed for very early Spring use it is without a rival.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

WE beg to acknowledge the receipt from Messrs Ellwanger & Barry, Rochester, N. Y., of a cloth-bound copy of their General Catalogue for 1900. This already handsome catalogue is still further improved by the binding, which insures it quite an extended period of longevity, and a handy reference guide for all time.

Lord & Burnham Co.'s Catalogue.

We have been favored by the Lord & Burnham Co., New York, with a copy of their "Catalogue of Greenhouses." The pamphlet is an extremely handsome one, containing 74 pages, mostly devoted to half-tone engravings of the interiors and exteriors of structures erected by the firm, fully fulfilling the objects aimed at in the issuance of the catalogue, viz., "to give an idea of the grace and beauty to which it is possible to attain in the construction of greenhouses, and to furnish a basis for correspondence to those who propose their erection."

Magazines.

THE DELINEATOR for June contains some very handsome colored plates, showing attractive Summer styles, also much other information useful to ladies. The magazine is published by The Butterick Publishing Company, Limited, New York. Price $1 per year, or single copy, 15c.

Market Notes.

The supply of cut flowers has at last begun to fall off, yet there are too many for the amount of business. Roses are selling better, but there is only about one-third as many coming in, compared with the past two weeks. For the best Beauty $3 per dozen is asked. Teas are selling at from $2 to $6 per 100. Sweet peas are still too plentiful, and only very choice flowers are wanted. Carnations are also in over-supply, the stores using only the very choicest. The balance goes to the street men. S. S. Pennock is receiving some very good flowers of Ethel Crocker from Albert M. Herr. This variety is flowering as well now as during the Winter, that is, the flowers are just as good in quality. It is also proving an excellent keeper, as during the glut last week some blooms, four days old, were sold, and apparently were as good as when first received.

Outdoor flowers, such as paeonies, etc., are now arriving, but so far are selling slow.

The demand for bedding plants continues and prices are stiffening a little. The bulk of the geraniums have been sold off at $7 per 100, and growers having stock on hand are holding it at higher rates. Pot roses are also well sold out at low values; early sales only brought 20c. and 25c. for 6-inch pot plants; now 30c. could easily be had—but roses are not to be got. All bedding plants are becoming scarce; business in this line has been very good.

Bayersdorfer & Co. have been very busy with Decoration Day demands, having had to work several nights to keep up with orders. DAVID RUST.

Cincinnati.

Trade News.

Business still remains stationary, with no special improvement over former weeks. Extreme hot weather during the fore part of the week rushed stock into bloom and put a damper on trade, but toward the latter part of the week heavy rain set in, with a tendency to drop the temperature, and stock slackened up somewhat; but we still have plenty left to fill all orders. Decoration Day will help out a little, and commencement exercises are about due, so we expect much better business for the tail end of May.

Plant trade remains good with the growers, and many are already sold out of cannas and geraniums.

Wm. Bertermann was a caller on his way home from the South, where he has been during the Winter. He is much improved in health, and on a fair road to recovery.

No decision has been made as yet by the City Fathers as to the park superintendency. The latest news is that they will abolish the office entirely and appoint a florist at each of the parks. The matter will probably be settled this week.

Wm. Rodgers, of Price Hill, is spending a few weeks at French Lick Springs, Ind., on account of poor health.

A Fatal Accident.

Lewis Donnelly fell from a moving train near Newark, N. Y., on the 20th inst., and was fatally crushed. Mr. Donnelly was a well-known and respected florist of Charlotte. He had been engaged in landscape gardening for some time, and was on his way to New York at the time of his death to get new ideas to use in embellishing the grounds of the Ontario Beach Improvement Co. Mr. Donnelly was 33 years of age, had been successful in business, and will be missed by a wide circle. G. A., JR.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN

San José Scale, Tree and Plant Diseases in Ohio.—A law was enacted by the last General Assembly of Ohio "to prevent the introduction and spread of the San José scale and other dangerous insects and dangerously contagious diseases affecting trees, shrubs, vines, plants and fruits." The law provides for an annual inspection of every nursery in the state and forbids the transportation or sale within the state of uninspected nursery stock, whether grown within or outside of the state. It also provides for the inspection of orchards and the compulsory treatment of infected orchards, or the destruction of those in which the infection has progressed so far as to render treatment impracticable. Black Knot and Peach Yellows are declared to be dangerous within the meaning of the law. The execution of this law is lodged with the Board of Control of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Board has organized the work as a department of the station, under the general control of the director of the station, as representative of the Board of Control, and under the immediate supervision of a chief assistant to be known as horticultural inspector. Mr. Lowell Roudebush, of Clermont County, a member of the State Horticultural Society, has been appointed to this position. The inspector will visit suspected orchards on request, so far as his time will permit, and will give advice respecting their treatment. This will be done without any charge to the owner of the orchard, except to convey the inspector from the nearest railway station to the orchard and back again. Orchardists throughout the state are urged to avail themselves of this opportunity to obtain expert advice, and to do so without any fear that valuable trees will be hastily condemned by the inspector. On the contrary, no tree will be destroyed so long as there remains any reasonable chance of saving it, nor until its existence becomes a source of positive danger to trees adjoining. As the inspector is himself a practical horticulturist the fruit growers of the state need have no fear but that this question will be treated from a business standpoint. As nurserymen can no longer carry on their business in Ohio without a certificate from the Experiment Station they should make application for such certificate at once. Correspondence should be addressed to Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio.

Rochester, N. Y.—John Hall, secretary of the Western New York Horticultural Society, recently met with an accident by being thrown from his wheel, seriously injuring his left hand.

Trade Notes.

There is little change in the situation here. The big street railway strike is still on, and business downtown amounts to little or nothing. Not only the florist's, but all trades are suffering; it has long since ceased to be a joke, and as one florist remarked, "the novelty of the thing has indeed worn off." The wholesale men are not getting in very much stock. Roses are rather poor in quality and would not be over plentiful were business anything like normal. Sweet peas are quite abundant and sell at 50c. per 100. Carnations also are in good supply, but bring only 1½c. for the very best, down to $5 per 1,000.

Most of the heavy bedding is over, and we are of the opinion that stock will not be sold out as clean as was expected and hoped for, as the strike simply paralyzed the market trade, and by the time business is resumed it will be late and people will not take hold as they should. We figure it that we have done less than one-half the ordinary business during the past two weeks, and that being in our very best season it will certainly make a big difference in the total sales.

Carnations in the field look fine this year, having had abundance of rain. Some of our rose men are already tearing out their old stock preparatory to replanting.

Scarcity of Good Help.

Good help is scarce here; it seems almost impossible to get capable greenhouse hands, the tendency among them being to drift back East, where, we presume, wages are better. We are of the opinion that tradesmen in this section do not pay enough wages to keep good men; on the other hand we pay as much as can be afforded. The only way out of the difficulty is to get more money for our goods, and that seems hard to do.

C. C. S.

Boston.

Market News.

Business continues fairly good for this season, though there is no rush; and everything seasonable is plentiful. However, the drugginess of the market usual at this time has so far been averted, owing to the backward Spring, and probably will be, until next month, as Decoration Day next week will likely use up quantities of flowers.

Roses are getting rather poor in quality now, but are in good supply, moving somewhat slowly. American Beauty are plentiful, and a few flowers of the new crop are coming in pretty good. The specials make $20 to $25 per 100, while ordinary grades realize from $1 to $8, with No. 1 running to $16. Bride and Bridesmaid are coming smaller, and the latter are bleaching out somewhat. Kaiserin are in fair supply. A few Carnots have been brought in.

Carnations are still plentiful but generally hold out of very good quality. Fancy carnations continue to fetch from $2.50 to $4 per 100.

Bulbous stock is now about done in this market, after a long season, which has proved quite successful to the larger growers. Lilies are plentiful enough to meet the demand, which is rather light, and the quality is none too good. Valley is in good supply, and does fairly well, at $1.50 to $2 per 100. Sweet peas are still favored with quite a brisk demand and clean up well, at 50c. to 75c. per 100, extra quality making $1.

The demand for dried stuffs—cape flowers, immortelles, milk weeds, etc., has been very good with the wholesalers this year, much of this stock going to out-of-town buyers. Though there is quite a display of designs executed in these flowers in the retail stores, yet this practice is not so general as last year, which excelled any for some seasons past. Among the best trade there is little of this dried-flower work, the galax or ivy leaf being in greater demand.

Flowers will probably be in good supply next week, though many of the out-of-door varieties will not be in time, owing to the dull, backward weather. Lilac will be in good shape for the first time in years; it generally is gone by the last of May. This fact may lighten the demand for other flowers among the out-of-town dealers, especially if prices are boosted, as is customary at this season.

Jottings.

It has been announced by the committee in charge of the banquet to be tendered to the veteran gardener, Frederick L. Harris, by his many friends, as a testimonial of their regard and high esteem for him, that the banquet will be held at Hotel Brunswick, Boston, on the evening of June 9.

William F. Malloy, for many years salesman for the Waban Rose Conservatories, is now in charge of N. F. McCarthy & Co.'s auction room.

Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, is now cutting some very fine candytuft with enormous heads of flower and stems 2 feet in length. It is the best candytuft brought into this market.

SPECIAL OFFER PANSY PLANTS

WE have about fifty thousand Pansy Plants in superb mixture, left out of a quarter million wintered over, and to close out before Decoration Day we offer them:—Five hundred (500) plants for $3.00; One thousand (1000) plants for $5.00; Five thousand (5000) plants for $22.50; Ten thousand (10,000) plants for $40.00, net cash. F. O. B., nursery; no charge for packing or boxes. These plants were wintered in open ground and are medium size and hardy. Every one is in bloom. The root development is simply wonderful and they will give much greater satisfaction than large frame plants that will be exhausted in a few weeks. Clovenn Nurseries, "Home of the Pansy," is headquarters for Pansy Seed and Plants. We can grow your plants cheaper, either from your own or our seed, than you can. Write for contract giving prices. Seeds and plants can be supplied the entire year. Address New York Market Gardeners' Association, 39 Cortlandt St., P. O. Box 2341, New York.

Ottawa.

The weather for the past two weeks has been anything but favorable to gardening operations—cold, wet days, and frosty nights. The rain has made the planting out of carnations quite a difficulty. Some that were set out early had to stand 5 degrees of frost. The plant business is starting slow; pansies are selling at 40c., and good geraniums at $1.50 per dozen.

Cut flower trade continues good and stock plentiful, especially roses, which retail at from $1 to $1.50.

The Horticultural Society held its first monthly show last week, and a good exhibition of hyacinths, narcissus and tulips was made. E. I. Mepsted was appointed judge of plants and cut flowers for the season. The prizes were mostly shared between our two leading amateurs—Messrs. Ellis and Whyte, the first named getting the best of it. Professor McKeown gave a good talk on botany in relation to gardening.

D. Cooper, for some years with C. Serim, has left Ottawa to take a position with Mr. Dunlop, of Toronto. Our city is fast recovering from the fire, and in many respects parts of the city will be greatly improved in rebuilding.

Publishers Florists' Exchange.

I was very pleased to hear I had been awarded first prize in your employes' contest, especially as it was my first writing for anything of that kind. I am sure it is a great credit to your paper in offering prizes to encourage us employes to think and write our experiences in different branches of the florist's trade. It impresses more fully on my mind that which I have always thought, that the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE is the most useful paper for information pertaining to the florist trade.

GEO. H. BOWDITCH.

Park Ridge, Ill.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society will retain possession of their old building for a year longer, during which time it is expected that the erection of the new building on the site recently purchased, at the corner of Huntington and Massachusetts avenues, will be completed. The society purchased its present building in the year 1865, paying at that time $101,000 for the estate, and $145,889 to erect its building, and while the asking price, $700,000, was not quite realized at its sale, it is understood that a figure pretty close to this was paid for it.

Present Status of the Florist Industry.

Professor B. T. Galloway, Chief of the Division of Vegetable Pathology and Physiology of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, has prepared for the "Nineteenth Century Year Book" of the Department a most interesting article on the subject of "Progress of Commercial Growing of Plants under Glass." The article is really an epitome of the industry from earliest times up to the present day. We shall give other extracts therefrom in future issues. Meantime we present Professor Galloway's remarks on the present status of the business. He says:

THE MONEY INVESTED.

It is a difficult matter to reach even approximate conclusions as to the amount of capital invested in the work, the value of the products, etc. A careful investigation of the question has been made by means of a special circular of inquiry, and also through representative men in various parts of the country. More than 12,000 copies of the circular referred to were sent out, but for one reason or another the returns were not very satisfactory. From all the data at hand, however, we are led to believe that there are now in the United States not less than 10,000 commercial establishments devoted to growing plants under glass. Of this number, probably 1,000 are engaged exclusively, or nearly so, in the forcing of Winter vegetables, such as lettuce, cucumbers, tomatoes, and some minor crops. Within 15 miles of Boston there are probably not less than 40 acres of glass, or 1,742,400 square feet, devoted to vegetables alone. Two-thirds of this is in houses, the rest being in hotbeds and frames. Around Providence, R. I., there are probably not less than 10 acres of glass, while the amount devoted to vegetable growing about New York, Chicago, and other cities will bring the total up to 100 acres, or about 4,500,000 square feet. Including all equipments, such as boilers and other accessories used in connection with the industry, this glass represents an average value of not less than 50 cents per square foot, or $2,250,000 in all, and this will bring to the grower 50 cents per square foot annually, or $2,250,000 from the producers' standpoint. Nine-tenths of the products are sold at retail, either by the grower himself, or by the retailer, who may not be a grower. The valuation from this standpoint represents double what it is from the standpoint of the wholesaler, or $4,500,000 for forced vegetables.

Summarizing the forcing of vegetables under glass in the United States, therefore, we have the following:

Number of square feet devoted to the industry	4,500,000
Value of establishments	$2,250,000
Wholesale value of annual product	$2,250,000
Retail value of annual product	$4,500,000

NUMBER OF ESTABLISHMENTS.

There are probably not less than 9,000 commercial florists' establishments in the United States. Some of these contain areas of glass which cover acres, while others contain only a few hundred square feet. Taking the country as a whole, it is estimated that there is an average of 2,500 square feet of glass for each establishment, or 22,500,000 square feet in all. New York has the largest number of establishments, there being not less than 1,100 or 1,200, with glass amounting to nearly 4,500,000 square feet; Illinois, with 600 to 800 establishments and over 4,250,000 square feet of glass, is second; while Pennsylvania, with 800 or 900 establishments and about 4,000,000 square feet of glass, is third. The estimated value of the establishments in this country, including houses, boilers, and all fixtures, is placed at 50 cents for each square foot of glass, or $11,250,000 in all. The income to the producer will average 50 cents per square foot annually, or $11,250,000, and double that amount when viewed from the standpoint of the retailer. Considering the matter from the retailer's standpoint, therefore, the total value of the annual output is $22,500,000, or $1 for each square foot of glass.

It is estimated that the retail value of cut flowers sold annually is $12,500,000, the estimated apportionment of this sum being, for

Violets	750,000
Chrysanthemums	500,000
Miscellaneous flowers, including lilies, etc	1,250,000

Estimating the average retail value of roses, carnations and violets at $6, $4 and $1 per 100, respectively, the total number of each sold annually, based on the above values, would be, of

Carnations	100,000,000
Total	275,000,000

The retail value of the plants sold is placed at $10,000,000. Taking the plant trade as a whole and the country in the aggregate, the average-sized pot used is estimated to be 3 inches, and the average retail price 10 cents per pot. This means that there are no less than 100,000,000 plants sold every year.

To handle this business in its entirety requires probably an average of not less than one man for every 1,500 square feet of glass, or 15,000 men in all. Fifteen hundred square feet of glass per man may seem like a low estimate, and such is the fact when considering commercial establishments of any size. The larger the area of glass, other things being equal, the more square feet one man can handle. As a matter of fact, some of the large rose growing establishments do not use more than one man for each 10,000 square feet. Large carnation establishments will run about the same as roses, while violets, owing to the great amount of work involved in cleaning the plants and picking the flowers, average higher. It is the many thousand small establishments that increase the amount of labor required.

SALES AT RETAIL.

In close touch with the commission houses and exchanges are the retail stores, which are by far the most important factors in connection with this business in the matter of handling and disposing of stock. The amount of flowers and plants handled by these establishments in some of the large cities is almost incredible. Undoubtedly the annual sales of some of the best establishments of this kind in New York City will not fall short of three or four hundred thousand dollars. The stores themselves are looked after with the greatest care, every attention being given to the satisfying of artistic desires on the part of the customers. As already pointed out, the successful men in this business are those having sufficient artistic ability not only to cater to the demands of the customers, but to create new fads. The arrangement and handling of the flowers, the boxes, ribbons, delivery wagons, messenger boys, and every detail must be of the most artistic kind in order to attract attention and draw trade.

A COMPARISON OF PRICES.

Through the trade journals growers, wholesalers and retailers are kept in close touch with each other. These journals are published weekly, and each has its staff of special correspondents, who watch the markets and call attention to every detail worth noting. A review of the market reports in them for the past ten years brings out some interesting points. For instance, by averaging their weekly quotations from January, 1890, to December, 1899, it is seen that while there has been an enormous increase in the production of cut flowers, prices have not decreased as much as would naturally be expected. The following table shows the average prices received for roses, carnations and violets in four of the principal markets during the period named:

Market.	Roses.*	Carnations.	Violets.
Chicago	$5.65	$1.63	$1.09
Boston	6.55	1.61	.84
Philadelphia	6.29	1.48	.87
General average	$5.70	$1.51	$0.92

* The American Beauty rose is excluded from this estimate on account of the high price it commands in comparison with other varieties.

It will be seen by this table that Chicago leads in the prices of carnations and violets, and that Boston stands at the head in the prices quoted on roses. The change in prices for the past ten years is shown in the following table, the averages being given for two periods of five years each:

Average wholesale price per 100 of roses, carnations and violets, in five-year periods, from 1890 to 1899, inclusive, in the four principal cut flower markets.

Flowers.	Chicago.	Boston.	Philadelphia.	New York.
Roses:
1890–1894	$6.77	$7.11	$6.57	$5.10
1895–1899	4.52	6.00	6.01	3.56
Carnations:
1890–1894	1.85	1.73	1.61	1.65
Violets:
1890–1894	1.17	.93	.60	1.07
1895–1899	1.01	.74	.73	.71

Percentage of decrease in wholesale prices of roses, carnations and violets, from 1895 to 1899, as compared with those received from 1890 to 1894.

Market.	Roses.	Carnations.	Violets.
	Per cent.	Per cent.	Per cent.
Chicago	33	19	9
Boston	16	12	20
Philadelphia	8	13	*22

* Increase.

Viewing the work as a whole, and considering its marvelous development, it stands out as one of the most striking examples of the advance of wealth and culture. The increasing love for flowers denotes a growing refinement and a higher appreciation of all things artistic, which promises well both for the individual and the nation.

Directions for Making Surveys.

We publish this week, on page 548, in connection with the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE Commercial Home Grounds Competition, and by permission of Mr. Warren H. Manning, of Boston, who has compiled and copyrighted same, a chart of character drawings, with "Directions for Making Surveys," copies of which, printed on heavy paper, will be sent free, together with the cross-section drawing paper, to every competitor in the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE Contest, now under way. Subscribers who are interested in the betterment of their own home ground surroundings are cordially invited to compete. Full particulars will be mailed concerning terms, conditions, etc., on application to the publishers.

City Forester Gale, of Springfield, Mass., has lodged a complaint with the Mayor against the gas company for laying its pipes under trees. It is said that trees have been killed by gas poisoning in various parts of the city.

Post Check Currency.

THE FLORISTS' EXCHANGE has, oftener than once, called attention to the very pressing necessity of a cheaper and more convenient system of forwarding money by mail, in small amounts, than at present exists. All who have had to do with procuring a money order know full well the loss of time generally experienced in obtaining same, while its recipient, at the other end of the line, has nearly as much trouble in cashing same.

The McMillan-Lentz Post Check Bill, now before Congress, comes nearer to the ideal than any other suggested remedy which has been hitherto brought to our attention, and it deserves to be heartily indorsed by all our trade.

This bill has the merit of extreme simplicity; it will be the means of giving us also not only a fractional as well as the regular $1, $2 and $5 currency now in use, but a perennially clean paper money—a consummation to be truly thankful for.

The working of the proposed new system is herewith briefly described:

Two-thirds of all the post offices in the United States are not money-order offices. Such offices are among agricultural communities, where it is especially inconvenient for the citizens to secure safe money to send in the mail.

It is proposed to reprint all $1, $2 and $5 bills now in existence, and have their faces provided with blank spaces, in the style of a commercial check.

Each Treasury note, coin certificate, silver certificate or other form of currency of $1, $2 and $5 denomination, will be replaced with a post check note of like denomination, based on the same foundation, and existing under the same law as the note retired, thus in no way changing the present financial system of the Government.

This money, with the new face, will pass from hand to hand in the ordinary transactions of the day. Then when one wishes to send money in small amount, $2 for instance, by mail to subscribe for magazine or newspaper, pay a bill, or transact any of the multitudinous pieces of business necessary by letter, he will take a $2 bill from his pocketbook, write on its face the name of the person or firm to be sent to, the city and state, and affixing a two-cent postage stamp in the square indicated (one-cent stamp for the fractional bills), sign his initials in ink, with date; the initials and date to cross and cancel the stamp.

Thus the piece of currency which up to this time has passed from hand to hand as negotiable money, has been instantly transformed into a personal check on the United States Government for $2, as safe for transmission as any piece of exchange.

This is inclosed in a letter to the person or firm desired, and when received is deposited, with other checks, in the bank, or can be collected by the receiver upon identification at bank or post office.

The tedious and inconvenient trip to the post-office to secure a money order is done away with, and a convenient, safe and instantly available form of transmissible money is supplied, with which the American public can transact business by mail, which now aggregates, in the small sums represented by inclosed postage stamps, silver pieces, money orders, express orders and other inconvenient and sometimes unsafe mediums, upward of a billion dollars per year.

Congress has also been asked to authorize an issue of $50,000,000 in fractional bills of the post check form, in denominations of 5, 10, 15, 25 and 50 cents, in place of that amount of large notes now in circulation; this fractional currency to pass current from hand to hand when left with the blank spaces unfilled. These can be transformed into checks, payable to payee, and will require a one-cent postage stamp for the Goverament fee when so transformed.

The continual retirement and re-issue of post check bills will insure a clean and crisp paper currency, and remove the objection to the present money, from a sanitary point of view.

The ordinary sender of the post check money through the mail will not care to take the trouble to register his remittance, any more than he would make special registration of a check payable to order, for experience shows that on an average not one such check is lost in a year to houses receiving large quantities of checks daily! With money, silver coin, stamps, etc., it is different.

The cautious individual can have his post check money duly registered at the post office if he desires, and the amount repaid to him if it fails to reach destination. It is safe to say, however, that this excess of caution will rarely be employed.

It is requested by friends of this bill that all in favor of same write their Senators and Representatives at once.

New York.

Market Notes.

The tone of the cut flower trade has brightened up considerably since our last report, with good prospects of remaining so for some little time yet.

The supply for Decoration Day, as relates to greenhouse products, will no doubt be limited, though outdoor flowers will be in in their usual abundance.

Roses have fallen off in quantity almost suddenly and special grades may be mentioned as very scarce. In the early part of the week it was seen that special Beauty were on the decline, and $2 per dozen was asked for them; by Thursday morning for the very best the price had been advanced to $3 per dozen, and the supply was not sufficient to meet the demand. Bride and Bridesmaid show a fair sprinkling of mildew, and have to be sold cheap on that account. There is business enough to clear up the supply, and clean, good stock brings $6 per 100, with very little of it to be had. The very poorest quality realizes 50c., and when we compare this with the price obtaining last week, we note a good improvement, as at that time plenty of long-stemmed flowers were bringing a similar price. Kaiserin A. Victoria have begnn to arrive; they are of good quality, bringing from $8 to $10 per 100. Brunner and Jacq. are over for the present; their discontinuance was a great help to Beauty.

Frame valley is now the most plentiful of this bloom, and is selling fairly well. Indoor grown stock is only in limited supply, but owing to its extra length and size it is salable at $3 per 100, while the frame product brings from $1 to $2 per 100.

Sweet peas are only of moderate quality. Pæonies have not got very plentiful yet. A few iris are seen occasionally, but the demand for them is only light. Callas are rather scarce. Good lilies bring $6 per 100. Lilac has been unsatisfactory and is about over.

Auction Sales.

In Wm. Elliot & Sons' auction rooms large specimen kentias and bay trees have been a feature this week.

On Thursday and Friday there were auction sales of Japanese plants at 19 West 125th street.

By a typographical error the call for the meeting of the Reception Committee of the Florists' Club was made to read Monday the 27th, instead of the 28th.

On Tuesday, while Samuel Henshaw, head gardener of Bronx Park Botanical Garden, was driving a spirited horse, the animal took fright and run away; Mr. Henshaw was thrown out of the buggy, suffering severe scalp wounds and had to be carried home. No serious results are expected form the accident however.

Senator Clark's daughter is to be married on Monday, the 28th, in St. Thomas' Church. The church decorations will be elaborate. Specianen palms, averaging 40 feet high, will be used; these will be made-up specimens and will be the work of S. J. Limprecht, who is a past master in that kind of work. The arches and columas will be covered with evergreens and flowers. Thorley has full charge of the church decoration. The home of the bride will be decorated by P. Bogart, Sixth avenue.

Sigmund Geller has got two spacious floors at 108 West 28th street. Fancy baskets of all descriptions are made a speciality by him. A full and complete line is carried and the newly acquired premises give ample room for displaying the goods. Mr. Geller imports direct from the makers on the other side of the Atlantic, and the newest and latest designs are always on hand. Wire frames and all trade requisites are also dealt in largely, and the move from Broome street (where he was located for several years) to the center of the cut flower district, is a good one, being convenient to all the flower buyers of the city.

Quite a number of the trade are expecting to visit the Paris Exposition this Summer, among them J. Fleischman, A. Warrendorf, H. Kuhn, and one of the Hanft Bros.

R. W. Cluess sailed for England last Saturday on the S. S. Etruria.

J. J. Van Waveren, representing L. Van Waveren & Co., Hillegon, Holland, sails for home June 2, per S.S. Potsdam.

The Planting of Home Grounds.

At the last meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, Mr. Walter Retzer delivered an address on this subject. He said in part, beauty, simplicity and harmony are the three principal objects to be sought after, and when they have been obtained you may depend upon it the effect will be pleasing to the eye. Beauty without simplicity would not be attractive. An object can be beautiful in itself, but when associated with others its beauty may be enhanced or deteriorated, depending upon the colors of the object placed in contact with it. How often do we see a beautiful bed of tulips, say the bright scarlet varieties, and in its immediate vicinity a glaring yellow, with no sort of introduction to each other. Each bed effective as it would be by itself loses over half of its beauty by coming in direct contact with the other. Again, take a specimen plant of any of our native trees and bring it in close contact with other trees, how much of the beauty is lost? How grand and majestic appear some of our native oaks, lindens and elms when standing alone, and how inferior do they appear when grouped with other trees of the same variety.

Simplicity without beauty would show a lack of taste. What can be more pleasing to the eye than to see Nature's beautiful colors all harmonizing, none more conspicuous than the other, and each showing itself to the best advantage.

Again we cannot omit harmony. It is most difficult to say which one of the three principles can be omitted in laying out the surroundings of a residence, without causing an eye-sore spot in the general view.

Follow the dictates of Nature wherever and whenever possible. Even in this a gardener may go to extremes who will try to make a house on a 25-foot lot appear as though it were situated in a forest of native shrubs and trees. We frequently see a little lot so completely filled with plants that not a square foot of lawn is to be seen, and where all colors, beautiful as they may be in themselves, become completely lost in the vast quantity of them.

Architecture and landscape gardening are two quite distinct arts, but where we have one, we frequently meet with the other. Perhaps that is the reason why you see so frequently the name of landscape architect. Architects they may be, but landscape gardeners, never! Alas, the architects who at the same time are landscape gardeners are very few. It will never do for an architect to ever try to practice his art on a bit of turf. His sharp and angular lines are just the ones we must avoid in landscaping. Nature's beautiful flowing curves are the most attractive. Avoid all sharpness in lines and angles. Have Nature's lines to all your beds.

In selecting your colors for a bed take only such as will harmonize. Never, under any circumstances, place two colors, both of which are primary, together. An example: Avoid planting red and yellow, or blue, in close proximity without the necessary relief between them. A pink color in the center of a bed bordered by a scarlet will be heightened, and the border's brightness reduced. Any of the colors which Nature has given us can be used to good advantage. One must know where and how to use them.

Pan-American News.

The past two weeks have brought about considerable changes in the landscape work of the grounds. Many hundreds of large trees, mostly maples, elms, poplars and horse chestnuts, have been brought to the grounds and planted. The lake connecting the canals is about completed, and the banks planted with a large assortment of shrubs. In the Music Garden have been planted several thousand hardy roses in masses of 500 of one variety. Two thousand of these are an exhibit by Messrs. Ellwanger & Barry, of Rochester, N. Y. With the careful planting they have received, and the heavy enriched loam they are in, they should make a splendid show in 1901. Mr. Rudolph Ulrich, the landscape gardener, is the busiest of men. The grounds surrounding the Service or Administration Building are seeded, sodded and planted, and have already a most finished appearance. Work is progressing rapidly on all the most important buildings.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING SURVEYS.

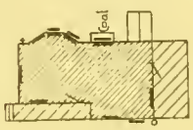
The accompanying Cross Section paper, which should be attached by the corners to a board with tacks that can be pulled out, is divided into ⅛ inch squares, which will serve as a scale for lines drawn at right angles; at other angles the edge of a card, on which the scale is marked, can be used. Make free hand drawings first with a pencil; when correct, re-draw with black ink.

In locating the position of the principal buildings on paper be sure that sufficient room is provided to get in boundaries on all sides.

The Following Signs are Recommended:

BOUNDARIES.—If without fence or wall, ———— ; FENCE —·—·—·—·— ; WALL ═══



BUILDINGS are indicated by wall lines filled in with oblique parallel lines (cross hatching), and when there are piazzas or open sheds every other cross-hatch line is omitted.

DOORS and their manner of swinging.

WINDOWS in first story.

BASEMENT OR CELLAR WINDOWS which may or may not be under a first-story window.

Incline for carts to cellars.

SILL COCK or outside hose faucets.

PRINCIPAL ROOMS of a house: "H," hall; "L," living room; "D," dining-room; "K," kitchen; "S," shed; "W. C.," water closet; in other buildings designate by words.

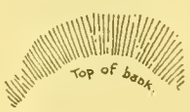
BANKS



BOULDERS and LEDGES

THE EDGES OF ROADS and walks by solid lines; indistinct paths and roads by dotted lines at edges; a rill by a single line; a stream or pond by a line showing each shore, the direction of the flow by an arrow; springs, wells, cisterns and cesspools by a circle O.

FOR PLANTATIONS use irregular lines, with the convex sides of the lines always toward the open ground or outside of the group.

Indicate by arrows and brief descriptive term the direction and character of outside views.

Points of the compass. You can locate the south point by pointing the hour hand of your watch to the sun. South will be one-half way between the hour hand and the Figure XII.

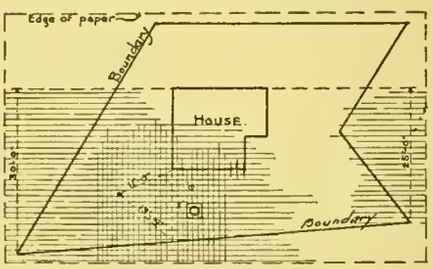
It is convenient to mark these subdivisions on the edge of a stiff, thin card and use it as a scale.

Use one prime mark to indicate feet, thus ('); use two prime marks to indicate inches, thus (").

Sight along lines of the principal buildings, or extend through grounds by stakes at regular intervals to form base lines from which to locate other objects.



For example this sketch, 1-32 of an in. to foot. The cistern is 6' down the base line made by continuing the side line of the house, and three feet off from it at a right angle.

Measurements are easily located on the plan by the squares, or a point can be located by measurements from two points already located. It is convenient to use two scales in locating such measurements on the plan.

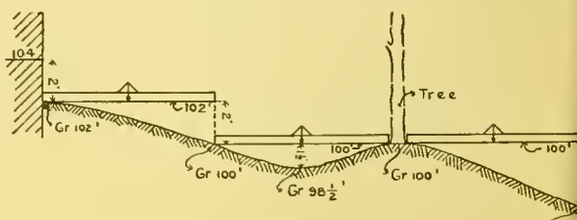
Secure levels with a "slope rod" made of a light, stiff, straight-edged board, say 10 feet long and 6 inches wide, with a piece about a foot high attached to the center. On the exact center through this piece make a mark exactly at right angles with the bottom of the board. Attach a line to a nail at the top of this mark with a pointed flat weight hanging loose on the lower end of the string. When the point of this weight, hanging loose, coincides with the lower part of the mark, then the bottom of the board is level. By placing the end of the rod at a known elevation, the difference of the elevation at other points can be found by measuring. If the slope was down hill, the elevation would be taken at the forward end; if up hill, at the back end.



These directions, printed on heavy paper, will be sent free to contestants in the FLORISTS' EXCHANGE HOME GROUNDS COMPETITION, and to all others, at 15 cts. each, postpaid, on application to Warren H. Manning, Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

BRIEFS FOR BUSY FLORISTS.

Decoration Day is close upon us, and as this is the one day in the year when rich and poor alike buy either a few flowers or a flowering plant, we should try to have something on hand that will suit the size of either a large or small pocketbook. To supply the cheaper trade we cannot do better than have a lot of pansies, alyssum, stocks, petunias, verbenas and such annuals as are in flower, potted up in 3-inch or 4-inch pots. These can be sold as single plants at a sufficient advance over what they can be sold by the dozen (as they usually are), to more than compensate for the labor of potting them, and the small cost of the pots used, besides making it possible for the very poorest of people to place a flowering plant upon the grave of their departed friends or relatives. Geraniums usually are in greatest demand at Decoration Day, and every plant that has a flower on will probably be disposed of. To avoid difficulties later all those intended for planting on the places of regular patrons, if they cannot be put out before Decoration Day, should be set aside, then there will be no danger of having to use inferior or smaller stock where only the best ought to be supplied. While on the subject of geraniums we would mention that that very dwarf variety Mars is proving a useful one where a real, free flowering, low growing kind is needed. It blooms profusely right through the season and does not attain more than a few inches in height; for massing where only a low effect is desired it is invaluable.

THE WORK OF PLANTING URNS AND VASES will be done to a great extent during the next few days, and, when filling them, the importance of having some choice plant or other for the center should not be lost sight of, as the beauty of the whole thing hinges thereon. For cheap work grevilleas do fairly well, but taken all round the dracænas are the best, and generally the most satisfactory. Where a light effect is needed D. Sanderiana can be used, and if the plants are not stocky enough two or more should be put together. If color is desired D. terminalis still heads the list. There are some showier kinds but none of them is so well adapted for outdoor work as this. Then there is D. indivisa, that looks well with all kinds of flowering plants, and can be used in the most exposed situations, as the foliage is not broad enough to be torn by any wind storm. To use palms as center plants is, in most cases, only a waste of material; they never blend with flowering plants as does a dracæna, and, excepting in very sheltered situations, the wind shakes them loose in the soil and they put on a yellow appearance before the Summer is half over. Rather than use palms for that purpose we would prefer cannas of a dwarf variety.

STOCK PLANTS of every description should be selected and planted in the garden before the selling season is over. Leaving this till the last, and then having only the culls to grow on for stock for another year, is an unsatisfactory method and should be avoided by planting now, when there is enough of all kinds to select from.

Work Around the N. Y. Cemeteries.

As Decoration Day approaches the work of planting beds and mounds in the cemeteries is being pushed with vigor. The taste for carpet bedding is becoming more emphasized each year, and this is a feature that will be welcomed by all plant growers who cater to the beautifying of the "silent cities."

John Condon, who has several extensive greenhouse establishments in the neighborhood of Greenwood Cemetery, has already planted over 50,000 pansies, the demand for Spring planting being much in excess of previous years. The planting for color effects is just about beginning, and a visit to the greenhouses reveals immense quantities of the necessary bedding stock. Of geraniums there are over 50,000, and the alternantheras number 150,000. Abutilon Savitzii has proven a good subject for either borders or center plants, and is grown in increasing numbers. Torenia Fourneri and T. Fourneri alba are much used for the edging of baskets and urns, as also is the gleehoma and the improved varieties of ivy-leaved geraniums. Shrubby calceolarias are also coming into vogue again; quite a large stock is on hand of the old yellow variety and there is a good demand for them.

The Roosevelt command of Spanish war veterans is having an immense panel of immortelles made to place over the graves of their comrades, whose remains were brought from Cuba and are resting in Greenwood. John H. Nugent, who is Mr. Condon's floral designer, showed us the plan of the panel, which will measure, when finished, 6 feet by 3½ feet. The Eagle and the Stars and Stripes are set in the center surrounded by the words "Roosevelt Command, Spanish War Veterans." The panel will be on view in a prominent store window in Brooklyn a few days previous to Decoration Day.

A. Wolmers has his houses and frames filled with choice plants, and finds business well up to the average of other years. The call for Spring bedding was satisfactory, and everything sold out well. Summer planting is now well under way and the stock to draw from is in the best possible condition. Fortunately a good stock of ivies is on hand, and owing to the scarcity of this material is bringing an advanced price over what has ruled for some seasons. Alternantheras and acalyphas are plunged in hotbeds; the sash, of course, is removed by this time, but they show the benefit of their treatment in their splendid coloring. In geraniums Snowflake is grown in great numbers, the pure white color of its flowers, together with its thrifty habit, makes it one of the most desirable sorts. For scarlet Mr. Wolmers sticks to a seedling of his own; it is unnamed, but is a splendid variety, its strongest features being its remarkable freeness in blooming and its medium low growing habit. Coleus, iresines, vincas and phlox are also grown extensively, and they are all looking in good order.

James Weir, Jr., & Sons have their store and conservatories on Fifth avenue, directly opposite the entrance to Greenwood Cemetery, with greenhouses but a short distance away. The conservatory is always kept filled with choice flowering and foliage plants, and a large cut flower business is maintained along with the planting of cemetery lots and caring for the same through the Summer. Pansies are now being lifted from the beds to be replaced by Summer bedding stock, which, by the way, is running more to dwarf or carpet bedding every year. A large force of men is continually employed for outdoor work, and as everything has to be planted before Decoration Day they are particularly rushed just now.

D. Y. Mellis is located close to the gates of Holy Cross Cemetery, having two stores but a short distance apart, and a range of greenhouses in the immediate neighborhood. Planting and caring for cemetery lots is a main feature of the business, though an extensive cut flower trade is also conducted. Last Summer a considerable piece of property was purchased and a line of nursery stock added, giving improved facilities for meeting the ever-increasing demand for evergreens and shrubs for cemetery work. We were sorry to find at the time of our visit that Mr. Mellis was very sick and unable to be out. Mrs. Mellis and daughters are in charge of the stores, and prove able managers.

James Shanley's greenhouses are situated on 25th street, just below the Fifth avenue entrance to Greenwood Cemetery. One new house was added last Fall, and as it was finished too late to install the heating apparatus, the house was planted entirely with pansies. Although far from the glass they did excellently and made fine large plants for early Spring sales. All are by this time disposed of, and proved a very profitable crop. In the remainder of the houses suitable stock for cemetery bedding is grown chiefly, those kinds raised in the largest numbers being alternanthera, coleus, Begonia Vernon, variegated stevia, mesembryanthemum and geraniums. Among the latter was a fine batch of Mars, this being considered for some kind of work the very best. A few well-shaped plants of Cryptomeria japonica were seen in one house. It is believed these can take the place of araucarias and are much quicker in growth, therefore not so costly.

There are also a few plants under special cultivation, for a customer that wanted the real thing, and had imported the seed himself from its native habitat. We can assert that the plants are in fine shape and will surely satisfy the most critical—they are specimen pot grown Scotch thistles.

Standing Wreath, Designed to Represent Human Existence from Infancy to the Autumn of Life.

(115) Trouble with Rhododendrons.—Please tell me what is the matter with my rhododendrons. I have several beds outdoors but they don't do as well as they should. They are in a half-shaded place. I placed leaf mould, rich compost and some sand in the beds. Some branches with buds dry off and some grow nice and bloom well.—M. K. E.

—Probably the ground is too rich. Soil suitable for rhododendrons is not a favorable harborage for worms. It should be from one to two feet deep, and consist largely of leaf soil and sand. As the plants are largely surface rooting, and the roots very fine, they will not stand drought. Give them a mulch of short grass, mixed with half-decayed leaves, keeping it on the ground all through the Summer, renewing it in the Spring each year. In dry weather water the plants thoroughly at least twice a week.—G.

(116) Plant for Name.—Otto E. Hansen.—The name of the flower is Bougainvillea Sanderiana. Perhaps it can be obtained from either Henry A. Dreer or Robt. Craig & Son, both of Philadelphia, Pa.

(117) Pelargoniums as Pot Plants for Spring Sales, Geraniums, Stocks.—As the best twelve pelargoniums for pot sales we would recommend Sandiford's Wonder, Sandiford's Surprise, Sandiford's Best, Victor, Mrs. Layal, Fimbriata alba, Mme. Thibaut, Dorothy, Mrs. Robert Sandiford, Captain Raikes, H. M. Stanley and The Bride.

Double white geraniums, Mme. Rozain and Mme. Buchner. Single white geraniums, L. Aube and Mrs. J. M. Gaar.

A Handsome Wreath.

Our illustration is reproduced from a photo of a large wreath arranged by order of General Congdon and others, connected with the Phoenix Silk Manufacturing Co., for the funeral of the late Mr. Albert Tilt, 5 East 67th street, which was constructed by Alex. McConnell, Fifth avenue, New York. The arrangement of the flowers was designed to represent human existence from infancy to the autumn of life; the lower right portion of the wreath was composed of lily of the valley, next a cluster of carnations followed by white rose buds, then open American Beauty, afterward a cluster of Lilium longiflorum, followed by ripe grain and brown galax leaves. Ribbon streamers were decorated with cattleyas. The base was composed of red and green galax surmounted by sago palm leaves.

Denver.

There is just enough going on to keep us busy—funeral work and light table decorations. They may not read well together but they get away with the flowers. Sweet peas have been very popular this Spring. The quality has been very fine, and although a great many have been grown none have found their way to the ash can. Pæonies are in over-supply. Some ranchman near here has evidently gone into growing pæonies, judging by the way they are coming in. Although Spring flowers are here in abundance yet the sale of roses, carnations, etc., has not greatly diminished, and prices have held up fairly well.

Carnation growers have had a busy week planting out young stock. Quite a few of them have gone into the new ones, particularly the Park Floral Co., they having ordered heavily of Lawson, Marquis, Olympia and Ethel Crocker.

Arnold Ringier, representing Barnard & Co., was a recent visitor. During his sojourn here we took him out for a little bowling on those easy alleys. He only tried two games and rolled 204 and 215. There were one or two others in the game, but Mr. Ringier was on top and refused to roll any more. He claims he can do as well at St. Louis. What have you got over there?

What's the matter with those Buffalo boys? Now Billy Kasting "has gone and done it." All gone now but one, and he did the next best thing, "jumped out," or he, too, might likewise have fallen a victim. Best wishes, Billy, from Buffalo boys in Denver, and may your only troubles be little ones.

DENVER.

Buffalo.

Though the apple trees are beautiful with bloom cool weather continues, and on most sides trade is inclined to slowness, there seeming to be nothing of note stirring. While amply plentiful, flowers are not seen in the quantities of a week ago. Roses show a warm weather growth of weakened quality and size.

On Wednesday of last week Wm. F. Kasting was married to Miss Laura LaTour. The affair was conducted most quiet and almost unknown to the craft. Only a brief bridal trip was indulged in, and William is back at work in Decoration Day trade preparations. Congratulations all aroond.

VIDI.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica avenue, has purchased a piece of property adjoining his premises to give him more space for the cultivation of herbnceous flowers. Business has been very heavy this Spring and indications point to a continuance of the same. In one of the greenhouses we noticed quite a large batch of that pretty flowering plant, Nierembergia gracilis. This is a most useful subject for boxes or vases.

In the cold frames are thousands of transplanted stock, all of which are being hardened off gradually; chief among them are alternanthera in variety, alyssum, dahlias, auriculas, petunias, asters and stocks; also several frames full of nice, clean young stock of hardy roses.
